Von Bernhardi, Ferrero and Von Bethmann-Hollweg Discuss Various Phases of the War for The Post-Dispatch

"VICTORY FOR GERMANY IS CERTAIN," SAYS GEN. VON BERNHARDI, AFTER ANALYZING FIRST YEAR OF THE WAR

"The Decision Will Undoubtedly Be Fought Out on French Fields—However This May Be, Italy Will Be the Loser—If the Central Powers Are Victorious, Italy Will Have to Pay Its Share of the Bill—If the Quadruple Entente Is Victorious, Italy Will Become Absolutely Dependent Upon France and England, and Must Relinquish Its Dominating Position in the Mediterranean."

By GEN. F. VON BERNHARDI.

(Cavalry Commander With Field Marshal Von Hindenburg and Author of "Germany and the Next War.")

(Copyright, 1915.)

THE quick taking of Przemysl and the victories of the allied German and Austrian armies at Grodeck and Lemberg, at Zolkiev and Rawa-Ruska, and the advance of their armies across the Bug and the Dneister on the one side and against Lublin on the other side; all these achievements form undoubtedly an important chapter in the present world war.

The occupation of Lemberg, the capital of Galicia, is in itself not of decisive strategical importance, although an important railroad center and commercial center was thereby taken away from the enemy. But it is important as a visible proof of the brilliant victories which the Teutonic allies have carried away over the Russian army in a number of glorious battles. It is furthermore important though the enormous moral effect which this success created everywhere in the world and that it gave proof that the Russian army was at the time no longer able to resist the hostile attack, let alone to undertake anew a big strategical offensive movement. But the real military success is to be found in the victory itself and in the violent shock which the Russian main army suffered.

GEN FRIEDRICH VON BERNHARDI.

It is true that it attempts to defend itself with astonishing tenacity against the onward press of the pursuing victors, and tries time and again to resume the offensive at least at certain points. There are visible symptoms, however, which show that the effective state of the army has been severely disrupted. During the month of June alone the armies of the Generals von Linsingen, von Mackensen and von Woyrsch have captured 409 officers, 140,650 men, 80 cannons and 268 machine guns. The troops under Field Marshal von Hindenberg captured 121 officers, 25,574 men, 7 cannons, 6 bomb throwers and 52 machine guns, while the troops fighting under Austrian command captured during the same period, 591 officers, 184,000 men, 93 cannons, 364 machine guns, 78 munition transports and 100 field railroad cars.

It is true that these figures cannot simply be added together, as it may have been possible that some items have been counted twice. But the fact that the Russian armies since the battle on the Dunajez have lost around 300,000 men, numerous artillery and other army material in Galicia alone, points to the conclusion that the various troop parts and the whole organization of the Russian army must have been smashed on a large scale.

Therein lies the importance of the Galician campaign up to date. If one considers, furthermore, the extent of the immense losses which the Russians have sustained in the battle in the Carpathians as well as in East Prussia and in Western Poland, in their fight against Hindenburg, it must be realized that, despite the immense human material which is at Russia's disposal, the offensive strength of our eastern opponent has been broken, for the time being at least, and that there must be a lack not only of trained soldiers, but also of officers and instructors for the training and formation of new troops. Many of the prisoners who have been taken recently only had a training of two weeks and can hardly be characterized as soldiers.

HOW RUSSIA HAS LOST IN MEN AND CANNON

THE final decision of the whole campaign has not been determined as yet. The Russians are still preparing new defenses, at every opportunity in Galicia and in South Poland, to the right of the Vistula, they are still holding their lines along the upper Dniester and along the left bank of the Vistula in front of Warsaw and Ivangorod (This was written, of course, before the Germans captured these cities.) and are still occupying the Bobr-Narew line and are fighting with tenacity for the possession of Courland, but the core of its army is slumbering in eternal sleep or is in German captivity.

Up to June 23 there were in German concentration camps 5557 officers and 535,307 men, exclusive of those who were captured by the Austrians and may be estimated at 300,000. In addition to these there are about 300,000 prisoners which were captured by the Austro-German forces in Galicia. More than 1000 guns had been captured at the close of 1914. This number has been materially increased since then. I have no official figures at my disposal. It will hardly be too high to estimate the number of guns captured in 1915 at between four and five hundred.

More than 1100 machine guns have been sent to Germany from the eastern theater of war up to date. An equal number has, however, been retained by the victorious armies for their immediate use. Aside from these trophies large quantities of ammunition and innumerable war materials fell into our hands. The number of the dead and wounded is probably much larger than that of the prisoners, so that the total losses of the Russians in their fights against Germans and Austrians, inclusive of the numerous sick and those who died of diseases, may be estimated at 2,000,000. Such a loss is surely not to be replaced easily by full fledged soldiers.

In addition to this the Russian situation is made more difficult by interior troubles. The revolutionary movement is becoming more and more threatening, and has already resulted in wild excesses, blood shedding, incendiarism and looting in Moscow and St. Petersburg.

Summing everything up, the situation in the east is such that while we may have to count upon severe fighting against the grave and tenacious Russian army and its strong intrenchment lines, we will soon be able to assume an assured defensive movement, in order to utilize our forces again in the west, or perhaps in the south.

It lies in the nature of the thing that we maintained in substance a defensive upon the western theater of war, while the big offensive movement in the east demanded the participation of large masses of troops. Our troops were forced to fight there against tremendously superior forces. Realizing the situation correctly the French made all possible efforts to penetrate our lines and to relieve the situation for the Russians by a timely victory; at the same time they attempted to make the most of the opportunity when the main strength of the German forces was apparently needed in the east to force a victorious decision on their front.

GERMANS HAVE MAINTAINED THEIR LINE IN WEST

POWERFUL forces were used to attain this purpose. All parts of the world had to give their troops to assist the Franco-British armies to victory. Africans, Indians and Canadians are fighting on the side of the masters. Even the remnants of the Belgian army participated in this fight. But all efforts have failed thus far. The allied armies may have won small local advantages, which were in most cases taken away from them again. The Germans have maintained their main line of defense. The enemy succeeded nowhere in achieving a real success. Insuperable, the German line in its intrenchments defies the overwhelming attacks of the enemy. On several points it has even gained important advantages. In general it waits with self-sacrificing patience for the time when it will be able to again assume fresh and decisive offensive movements.

The powerful attempts of the French to break through the German lines at Arras are apparently—as far as this may be judged at this time—to be regarded as the height of the French offensive, while the main efforts of the English may be expected at some future time.

But even if the so frequently announced great offensive of our adversaries is still impending, there is the cheerful confidence in the German ranks that this, too, will bleed to death. It is not to be overlooked that the offensive strength of the French will exhaust itself in time.

In prisoners and trophies which were taken from the allies the German concentration camps received up to June 23, 4125 French officers and 252,880 men, 664 Belgian officers and 23,813 men, and 628 British officers and 23,813 men. These numbers have been materially increased since then. In addition to these 28,000 British and Belgian soldiers have been interned in Holland. The bloody losses of these armies are much larger than those of prisoners. The British themselves recently estimated their total losses at 250,000. At the close of 1914, 1800 guns had been captured on the western front. Their number has since been much increased. Three hundred and thirty-three

Italy Seeks to Regain Army Prestige

(Lost to Barbarians in Abyssinia and Tripoli)

By Her Deeds in This War, Says Ferrero

By GUGLIELMO FERRERO.

The Noted Italian Historian.

(Copyright, 1915.)

THOSE which are usually called "official spheres" are much more tranquil today than they were two months ago when the war with Austria was about to be declared.

There was then, in those spheres, an anxiety which seemed to be concealed, but which did not escape the eyes of keen and alert observers. To these preoccupations and anxieties there has succeeded today a serenity mingled, almost, with joy, although all are persuaded that the Russian retreat will prolong the war for many months and perhaps even a year; although the end of the war and victory are as uncertain and distant as when war was declared. What, then, has happened which has so radically changed the dispositions of men?

PROF GUGLIELMO FERRERO

Today I can speak frankly, without neglecting the duties of a good citizen. I am permitted to relate a phase—a secret one, I might as well say—of Italian diplomacy, which will explain several events until now unexplained, and which will give a better understanding of the importance of the war to Italy. The long hesitation which had delayed the war between Italy and Austria almost a year has been a source of great surprise to the entire world, especially in those countries where the majority is against the Teutonic empire. But the reasons for this hesitation were numerous, and I have explained some of them in a previous article in a monthly American magazine. But at that time I could not explain them all, because, for patriotic reasons, I was obliged not to say that in those high official spheres, a small group of men who knew the true story of our war with Tripoli, hesitated, fearing that the European war would be too hard a task for our army.

ITALY'S ARMY IN TRIPOLI SOON LOST AGGRESSIVENESS

THIS statement will astonish many. Is it not true that Italy conquered Tripoli? Has not the war in Lybia been a series of brilliant and successful military feats? Yes. Italy has conquered Tripoli; the newspapers have all related that the war has been a series of brilliant and successful military feats. Unfortunately, between the newspaper reports and the truth there is often a marked difference. He who has been able to read the news in the papers with a critical attitude and who has received secret official information from the Generals knows that the army sent to conquer Tripoli gave evidence of a certain impetus in the early days, but that it soon tired out.

Although the army had to fight an enemy much less numerous and armed solely with guns, and with few and poor cannon, the army lost its aggressive energy soon, so that sent to conquer the country, in a short time it reduced itself to defensive force, which was less and less aggressive in attack. This is the reason the war lasted so long.

Furthermore, everybody knows that when the peace of Lausanne was signed, after a year of war, the Italian army had succeeded in conquering only the coast, although Tripoli was defended by an army of Turco-Arabians, which probably did not number 30,000 men and which had no cannon and which was isolated from the world, so that it could only procure ammunition as a contraband.

In Rome, those who decided between peace and war, knew these facts, which had been hidden from the public at large.

"ARMY TIMID IN TRIPOLI SHOWS ITS METTLE NOW"

IT is, therefore, natural that those who knew should ask themselves, in perplexity, if the army which had so much difficulty in conquering Tripoli, defended by 30,000 Turco-Arbians, armed with old-fashioned guns, would easily succeed in conquering the Austrian empire, defended by a European army, armed with machine guns and many types of cannon. To obtain a positive answer, either a sublime prophetic gift or a great ignorance was necessary. I confess that during the 10 months that elapsed between the beginning of the European war and the Italian declaration of war against Austria, this doubt has tormented me, too. I knew the true story of the war in Tripoli, and at times I asked myself if in urging Italy to war, I did not ask an effort too great and too dangerous.

The official world has been tranquilized and calmed because this uncertainty has passed. The army that scarcely ventured to come out of the trenches in Tripoli has attacked intrepidly in the Alps positions of the enemy that were strongest and best defended. The army that in Tripoli had shown itself often so timid and hesitating, has resisted fearlessly the shower of shrapnel, the fire of machine guns, the huge projectiles of the 305m. (12-inch) guns of the Austro-Hungarian army. The army that was discouraged by slight loss in Africa, for two months bears calmly the terrific blows of the European war. Our losses have already become enormous. This war will be for our good or for our harm, depending on the caprices of the god of war. But in either case, it has been proved that the Italian army can compete honorably with a European army, because it possesses the aggressiveness, the resisting power, the courage and the spirit of sacrifice, qualities all necessary for a modern war, in the same degree which other European nations possessed them.

What is the cause of this difference? Why does the Italian army fight better in the Alps than in Tripoli? Why does it fight better against an army more numerous, better equipped and better led than the barbarian tribes? Are they not the same soldiers, the same officers, the same Generals? Has a miracle ocurred in Italy? No, there have been no miracles. It has finally come about that an instrument has been found to accomplish this end. What has occurred in the past we can account for. Armies have been established in Europe, not for colonial wars against belligerent barbarians, but for war against people of equal advancement. The great error of Italy—or rather its misfortune, since often in politics errors are imposed by circumstances stronger than the wisdom of men—has been that the army established for wars in Europe has been twice employed against belligerent barbarians, in Abyssinia in 1896 and in Tripoli in 1911.

NECESSITY IS DRIVING ITALIAN TROOPS TO RECOVER PRESTIGE

FURTHER, the phenomenon is quite simple. The European armies are made up not of soldiers by trade, but of all the citizens that the state, under certain conditions, has a right to call to arms. They are, then, made up of men who regularly pursue peaceful occupations. They cannot be sent to the war like regular soldiers, simply because the Government wishes it. It is necessary to show cause for the war. But who does not see that it is easier to persuade the armies of the necessity of a war like the present European war, than of an expedition to Abyssinia or Tripoli, to conquer lands half desert?

The necessity of a colonial war appears more clear to a sociologist or an economist than to a farmer or a workman; but with our military system, as long as we have not, like France, created a colonial army, it will be up to the farmer and the workman to conquer the colonies, without feeling the necessity of so doing, and with a repugnance for the task.

Let it be added, the depressing effect of the distance from the motherland, and of the climate impair the efficiency of an army of recruits, such as the European armies are. It is a great comfort to be a short distance from home, in a world similar to that in which each soldier has lived, and to be able to receive news easily. Embark the army, and send it to Abyssinia or Tripoli, with a different climate, a different sort of land, different people, so that each soldier feels himself cut off from his motherland, and the spirit of the army is depressed, naturally. The army that fights valiantly in the Alps will be weak, uncertain and easily discouraged in the Ambes of Abyssinia.

Furthermore, in the European wars, the soldier knows precisely the dangers he is going against, while he is ignorant of the same in a war against belligerent barbarians. The farmer or the laborer or the clerk who goes to fight in Carnia or on the Isonzo, knows that he risks being killed, or wounded by a bullet, by shrapnel, or howitzer, or bayonet. But he knows that he is not going

This Is Comment of Kaiser's Right Hand Man When He Is Told That His Government Is Accused From Some Sources of Intriguing to Control Public Opinion in This Country—His People Do Not Really, Hate the English Now.

(Editorial Note.—The following interview with Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, the Imperial German Chancellor, and, as such, the Kaiser's right hand man in affairs of state, was secured by an American citizen, Frank Hugo Krebs of Boston. Mr. Krebs was born in that city. He practiced law there until about four years ago. He was formerly prominent in Boston politics, serving two terms in the Massachusetts State Legislature. At the beginning of the Spanish-American war, Krebs enlisted in Company H, Second Regiment Massachusetts Volunteers, and after reaching Cuba was appointed orderly to Col. Clark, and served in that capacity until the end of the war. After Mr. Krebs had written his account of his interview with the German Chancellor, it was placed in the hands of the German Foreign Office and subsequently approved by it as here published.)

BERLIN, July 18.

SOME days after reaching Berlin, I received a note at my hotel stating that his excellency, the Imperial Chancellor, Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, would see me at 12 m., and further requesting me to call at the German Foreign Office at 11:30 and see Dr. Alfred Horstmann, the secretary of the Foreign Office, who would accompany me to the palace. At about 11:45 a. m. Dr. Horstmann and I arrived at the Chancellor's palace on Wilhelmstrasse.

On entering, I found myself in a very large hall, where we were told to leave our things with an attendant and then were ushered upstairs. On going up, we were shown into a huge room, very simply furnished, the walls covered with tapestry, the most interesting bit of furniture being a small table on which there were three pictures, one of the Kaiser, another of the Kaiser and two of his grandchildren, and another of Field Marshal von Hindenburg. These pictures were all autographed in the lower right-hand corner, and were evidently personal gifts to the Chancellor.

CHANCELLOR VON BETHMAN-HOLLWEG

After waiting in this room for two or three minutes, the door opened and we were ushered into another room, equally large and also very sparsely furnished. At one minute of 12 the door leading into still another room opened, and an aide de camp came into the room and, clicking his heels together, saluting at the same time, informed us that his excellency was ready to see "Herr Krebs."

We then went into a third room, as large as either of the other two. There was a huge desk in the room. A man was seated behind it, wearing the undress uniform of a General, with no order or decoration save the Iron Cross. There was a rug on the floor—panther or leopard, I don't know which—for as I was looking around a bit, in order to get a bird's eye view of my surroundings, the man behind the desk began to rise, and kept on rising, and finally, when he had fully risen, came around to the side of the desk, held out his hand, gave mine a cordial shake and, motioning me to a chair, said: "I am very glad to see you."

A VERY TOWERING MAN IS THE CHANCELLOR

HOW tall is the Chancellor? Frankly, I don't know. I know that I stand 5 feet 10 in my socks, and he towered above me, and my hand rested in the palm of his hand as a child's might rest in mine.

The Chancellor has a remarkable face. He wears a closely cropped beard, his hair is iron gray, his face is deeply lined. Ambassador Gerard told me that the Chancellor reminded him somewhat of Lincoln, and I understand it, but I did not see in his face that tender, all-embracing sense of the fellowship of man that seems to me to be vividly present in many of the pictures of Lincoln.

The Chancellor has the face of one to whom men may mean comparatively little, but who is interested in a broad way in the history of mankind in the past and in its future development as well. The personal touch was to me lacking, but, remember, it could not be there and have him the great and wonderful exponent that he is of the most perfect human machine on the face of the earth. In Germany the welfare of the state comes first, after that, the rights of the individual.

The Chancellor lighted a cigarette, offered me one, and finding that I did not smoke and had a bad cold, he pressed a button, gave an order to the attendant who appeared, and shortly a glass of seltzer was placed by me, and the Chancellor said, with a friendly smile: "I see you are very hoarse; a sip now and then may help you to speak more easily."

I then handed the Chancellor the sealed envelope containing a letter addressed to him from America regarding the reopening of the cable between America and Germany.

The Chancellor read the letter through with great care, and then looked up at me with evident interest showing in his face.

"But, Mr. Krebs," he said, "do you think for a minute that the British would allow the cable to be opened?"

"Yes, your excellency, provided it is done under such conditions that Germany cannot gain anything, and the United States gains everything."

"But would public opinion in the United States favor the cable being reopened?"

GERMANY WOULD BE GLAD TO HAVE CABLE REOPENED

TURNING in his chair and striking his hand on the desk, the Chancellor said:

"We will do more than you suggest. We will, if cable communication can be restored, allow the American Ambassador and Consular Representatives to use the cable. We will also allow all properly accredited American newspaper representatives to use the cable and send out their reports uncensored, except as to military or naval operations which might be deemed prejudicial to Germany's best interests. If the American people want the news, Germany is willing that they should have it. GERMANY HAS NOTHING TO CONCEAL FROM THE WORLD."

A moment or two passed in a brown study. Musingly, the Chancellor then commented:

"It is sometimes very hard for us to understand you Americans, but you certainly have a great deal of push and ingenuity. Well! I will take this matter under consideration, and if I find that the cable can be repaired, of course, the matter must then be taken up by us with the Government of the United States, as it would only be through its influence that the cable could be reopened and operated."

Then, looking me straight in the eyes, the Chancellor asked me a series of fairly rapidfire questions.

"When did you leave the United States?"

"Three weeks ago."

"What was the state of public opinion then?"

"Strongly in favor of the allies."

"Why?"

"Partly on account of the violation of the neutrality of Belgium; partly on account of a very kindly feeling for France, partly on account of our close financial relations with Great Britain, and largely on account of the violent propaganda carried on in the United States by Germans and German-Americans."

"GERMANY NOT INTERESTED IN AMERICA'S INTERNAL POLITICS"

"DON'T the American people believe that a man has a right to show his fondness for the land of his birth?"

"Yes, your excellency, they do, and are very sympathetic in all matters of that kind, but suppose conditions were reversed, and suppose the United States and Great Britain were at war, and further suppose that there were about 2,500,000 Americans by birth living in Germany and enough more of American descent to bring the number up to about 20,000,000; suppose also that 75 per cent of your people favored Great Britain, and that practically all of your upper classes did so, and suppose that your Government desired to remain neutral; how long would you tolerate an agitation such as has been carried on in the United States for months past? Under those conditions wouldn't you stop it with an iron hand before it had gained any considerable headway?"

The Chancellor asked one or two questions from Dr. Horstmann, evidently desiring him to translate for him a few words that he had not entirely understood. He then said:

"Mr. Krebs, this view is a novel one to me; surely, Americans can't believe that Germany would interfere in their internal politics."

The Chancellor is not a diplomat, in the sense that he is a palterer in words and phrases; he is not a juggler in adjectives, but he is a man of the very highest character, who will not deviate one hair's breadth from what he believes is right. When the Chancellor made his famous speech in the Reichstag, at the beginning of the war, he

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

The Frank Lynching.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

In a cartoon you print today you represent justice as having been lynched in Georgia. Well, so it was—but not in the way you mean. Justice was lynched by an emotional, susceptible Governor. Bombarded by hundreds of thousands of letters, telegrams by the bushel from sentimentalists far from the scene of the crime and absolutely unfitted to judge of the Frank case on its mrits, he thwarted all the legal processes of the courts, ignored the pardoning board of the State, and outraged the sense of justice of practically the entire community. And this Governor, too, remember, was the law partner of Frank's attorney.

Was there ever such a campaign waged to ac- y nullify the decrees of established courts of ? I doubt it. Indeed, this crusade assumed proportions of a great impertinence. It as- med that there was not an unprejudiced Judge the State, nor an unbiased community.

Unfortunately, some of the testimony at the ial was unprintable. For that reason some acts which entered into a determination of the matter never reached the outside public.

When you speak of justice being lynched, you refer, I suppose, to the justice which is founded upon the processes of law. If you will permit me, I would like to call your attention to the fact that the people of Georgia did their part. Leo Frank was indicted, tried, convicted, his conviction affirmed upon appeal, and commutation denied by the legal board having the power to pass on such questions and all points, with the exception of the trial jury, were decided by trained legal minds. To think that the Governor of Georgia had the only upright mind in the State is monstrous and untenable. Therefore, the people of Georgia had a right to expect that, having patiently allowed the case to go through every possible court, and every possible consideration having been given to the pleas of the prisoner, and no reason being found for the granting of any of them, the penalty provided by the statutes would be exacted. Was it? It was not.

Something has been said of a division of opinion among the Judges in the higher courts who passed on the Frank case. Look through the decisions of all Supreme Courts—thousands and thousands of them—and how often will you find unanimity?

Again, much has been said of intimidation of the jury, hostility of the community, and that sort of thing. Did any juror sitting in the Frank case ever say that his verdict would have been different had he not feared his fellow citizens? There was hostility against the prisoner, doubtless, because the facts which were presented to the jury were known to the entire State before the trial began, but there was no intimidation of the twelve men in the box. Now hostility is a word of very wide meaning. Any people, burning with righteous indignation, may be said to have a hostile feeling, but even if the people of Georgia had it, they gave an opportunity to the courts to say whether that feeling was justified or not and they did nothing until they were cheated by a Governor.

Finally, the friends of Leo Frank say Gov. Slaton was not convinced of the guilt of the accused. Will you permit me to observe that the Constitution of Georgia does not require the Governor to be convinced of the guilt of every person convicted in the courts? The boot is on the other foot. Any convict who appeals for pardon must convince the Governor of his innocence, or, in a plea of clemency, show that the punishment is more severe than the crime warranted. In the case of Frank, he was either guilty and should have been hanged, or he was innocent and should have been put at liberty.

The Governor chose to defy the courts and the people. What happened might well have been expected.

An Indiana "Dry" Speaks Up.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

In answer to Mr. W. Y. Murphy in last Sunday's article on the liquor question, I would like to show him that if you stop the profit on the sale of liquor that will put the saloon out of business and we will not have a saloon on every corner as at the present time. This is merely a business proposition. No one is going to pay rent, hire bartenders, etc., without a return on the investment. What will be the result? The crave for liquor is a cultivated taste, and if it was not so handy to get many people would not cultivate the habit of drinking. Of course, some of the present generation might still demand liquor and think they cannot live without it, but they would gradually find that they can do without liquor and in fact they are better off without it, both in health and money. And the coming generations, not having the temptation, not having the stuff stuck under their noses at every corner saloon, would not acquire the habit, and therefore there would be no demand.

HARRY BRAY.

MEETING GERMANY HALF WAY.

The Arabic case is serious because the patient efforts of the United States to maintain friendship with Germany have been exhausted in the former attacks on American citizens.

The administration can show no greater solicitude for an amicable understanding with Berlin than it has shown in the past. It can formulate in the language of diplomacy no more vigorous protests against criminal acts than it has formulated in the past. It cannot measure grave words with greater care in conveying solemn warnings as to the future.

To what further measures can resort be made in the duty of protecting the lives of Americans on the waters? Germany has shown within recent weeks that submarine warfare can be carried on with some regard for the obligations imposed on those who use the seas. Notice was given vessels about to be attacked. Opportunity was afforded peaceful passengers and merchant crews to save themselves. Ground was given for the belief that her submarine commanders had been instructed to fulfill this duty in all instances.

If it appears that such instructions had been given and that the craft which destroyed the Arabic disregarded them, this latest crisis will have a promise of adjustment. The persistence of German unfriendliness makes the problem difficult, but the United States is willing to go more than half way in preserving the relations of the past.

But if it appears that the policies which we have resolutely determined not to tolerate are unchanged, if the rule-or-ruin naval party is shown to have the upper hand at Berlin, steps different and more effective than those of the past must be tried.

A word from Berlin can change the critical outlook. But if that word does not come, how can the necessity for action of some sort be escaped? How much farther than half way can we be expected to go in meeting Germany?

The explanation that the State Department has asked from the German Government can be justified only on the ground that an infavorable reply will be followed by decisive action.

The Interstate Commerce Commission finds that the financial troubles of the Rock Island are due to the plundering of magnates and promoters, another reason for pressing the St. Louis Republic's plan for the popular recall of the I. C. C. decisions.

SOCIAL UPLIFT IN CHICAGO.

A Chicago Board of Trade man has just had 26 suits of clothes stolen from him and from the accounts of the crime it seems that articles of use or adornment designed for wear at particular times of the day or week are much affected in that city. A watch of a pattern recognized in Chicago as a "morning-wear" watch could not be worn in the evening without loss of social prestige, and a watch distinctively for evening wear would be out of place at any but formal functions. No Chicagoan with any pretentions to being au fait would be seen on any other day with a stick pin designed for Saturday afternoon.

In fact, it appears that there has been considerable social uplift in Chicago since its world's fair period, when leading citizens used to present themselves at ceremonious breakfasts in dress suits.

The pound sterling is being pounded down.

PICTURE SHOWS FOR THE FRENCH ARMY.

"From Dixmude to Belfort a system of cinemetograph exhibitions has been inaugurated," says the Paris Figaro.

"The exhibitions will be under the Minister of War, and will be manipulated by such of the soldiers as prove competent for the work."

The idea as originally suggested by M. Armand Dayot was to take pictures of the very front, as a help to historians of the war.

"But," adds the Figaro, "our wornout men dragging themselves back of the firing line, after the awful tension in the trenches, have need, during the hours of relaxation, of something to take the gloom from their minds—something to make them laugh—and so many requests have been addressed to the Ministry for exhilarating elements, that it has been finally decided to divert the originally intended use of the cinemetograph also into this channel, towards recruiting shattered nerves."

Incidentally the paper states that the Governor of Irkutsk, Siberia, some time ago, requested films from the front for "his workingmen who are anxious to see something of the actualities of the war." His request has been granted.

If the $5,000,000,000 we are said to have spent for luxuries last year could have been devoted to national defense, our state of preparedness might have got a boost that would have started the jingoes.

BATTLESHIP AS A SPANDAU TOWER.

Nations in the war dance are beginning to make heavy payments to the piper and in a late instance the piper happens to be Uncle Sam.

Having exhausted former credits and spent for foods and materials the proceeds of loans negotiated in recent months in this country, they have been compelled to shove other medium of exchange across the counter—$19,534,200 in shining gold and probably an even greater sum in our due bills, American railroad and other securities held abroad.

Was ever shoving across the counter done more spectacularly? The gold and paper was transported on a powerful British battleship, convoyed by cruisers and torpedo boats through the submarine-infested war zone to Halifax, and was rushed from there to New York on a special train of steel cars, guarded by many armed men. No shipment as valuable on land has before been made by an American express company, it is asserted, and perhaps no single shipment more valuable was ever made by the sea.

One year ago today the great international financial problem was how we were to pay a big balance we owed Europe and which Europe had demanded because of war needs. A part of that movement of gold was being carried by the Cecelie when she learned in midocean that war had broken out with England on Aug. 4, and she turned back to Bar Harbor. In the week ending July 31, 1914, engagements of gold for London totaled $26,900,000 and for Paris $10,700,000. How all the bankers of the country subscribed to a $100,000,000 gold pool to take care of our debits abroad cannot so soon have been forgotten, and several millions of the pool was actually sent to Canada to the account of the Bank of England. George Paish and Basil B. Blackett of the British Treasury came over in October and arranged things on the basis of credits to be drawn on later and the pressure for gold exports was relieved.

Have the relations of international trade and finance shown in the past a more startling change in the space of a few months? That the millions in bonds and stocks now sent over will be dumped on the market and depress prices is not to be feared. Weeks ago it was reported that they were to be forwarded and held as security for advances by the allies' bankers in the United States.

The W on the locust must have meant Wet as well as War and Worry.

WHITE CELL CANCER CURE.

If the experiments of the Rockefeller Institute scientists on cancer cure are confirmed by time, it will be a splendid triumph for modern medicine. These experiments tend to show that the leucocytes, or so-called white blood cells, have the power, when enormously increased in number, of making one immune to cancer. And the Rockefeller Institute men have found a way to double the average number of such cells in the system.

Of course, this may be followed by some consequent ill. For one can hardly believe that a doubling of these white lymph cells can be brought about without some after effect. The white lymph cells have an apparent individuality of their own. They wander through the arteries and veins, and even through the tissues, seeking their prey, which is all those germs that may be hurtful to the body. They are the guardians of the blood and cellular tissue.

If the new method cures cancer, it will have proved that this disease is actually caused by a germ—something denied by many scientists, because the microscope has so far failed to locate the germ.

The railroads are calling attention to the statement that never in their history did all the railways in the United States together kill so many passengers in a year as were lost on the Eastland. It surely emphasizes "Safety First" for all carriers.

WAR INVALIDS.

The Vossiche Zeitung casts light upon one of the phases of the war and upon German home conditions created by it. It says:

> The employment of the host of invalids that swarm the country is fast becoming a monster proposition. Strange to say, very few of the invalids apply for positions to mercantile lines; nearly all seem to demand help from the Government. Indeed, so strong has been the flood of applications that the Government railroads and the postal service have closed their books to any and all applicants, and will not even enter names for future employment.
> In Bonn, as elsewhere, by the way, the invalids have formed singing societies and treat the public with daily exhibitions. The money thus gathered is evenly divided among the members of the society. The Catholic clergy in most cities have formed employment bureaus and have secured positions for a host.
> But the stream of invalids is steadily growing around us, and in some quarters even complaints are getting loud; so that it seems that the authorities will soon have to find means and ways to meet the growing disorder.

What a pathetic picture of war's work!

If the report that one British vessel, said to be the Goliath, was sunk in the Dardanelles, not by a submarine, but by an ordinary Turkish torpedo boat, is untrue, it has at least had details of verisimilitude. Capt. Firle's report that the fleet was so gayly lighted up that night, resembling a floating Coney Island, that he could not miss the mark is so like the British.

LATIN-AMERICAN TRADE.

A recent writer (W. E. Aughinbaugh) has discounted America's chances of doing business in Latin-America, and has published a book to substantiate his claims. He asserts that we have not the right kind of goods, the right kind of agents, or the right kind of business methods.

Now we have the right goods; only we must not try to send to Latin countries the goods which we ourselves import from Europe, they get those goods cheaper direct from Europe. But American furniture, American hardware, American machinery of all sorts, fine homemade queensware, leather goods, especially saddles, boots and shoes—in fact, all our own manufactures find ready sale in practically all the Southern countries.

Slight modifications might be necessary—all towards improving quality and appearance, not price; and, therefore, it will behoove our manufacturers to study the needs of those people on the spot. But those changes have been made in many lines and can be made in probably all lines.

If our salesmen are not "right," let us make them so. Let us convince them that salesmen in those countries must visit a town during possible months, to study the trade and to allow the trade to study them. A Latin wants to be sure that the agent from whom he buys is a reliable friend—a man who will stand between his house and the customer, whom he will protect against mistakes or sharp practice, of which latter the Latins are mortally afraid.

The American buys from need—the salesman is of little importance; the Latin buys on the word of the agent—the goods are of second consideration, and the house is totally overlooked. If the order is unsatisfactorily filled the American makes his reclamation to the house; the Latin makes no reclamation; only, next time, the agent, if he dares to present himself, is sweetly and blandly frozen to the quick—he will never sell in that town again.

Now, we can train agents to "visit," to take the buyer to tandas, operas, dinners. The Europeans have succeeded, why should the American not succeed even better?

As for formalities—we need not send down boors with rough edges unfiled. Politeness can be acquired, especially if it is mostly made up of forms.

TOBACCO.

(Reprinted by Request.)

THEY are legislating liquor into alley ways and sheds;
You can find it in the coal pile and inside of folding beds.
It is contraband in Kansas, it is gasoline in Maine,
And the South has got it hiding in the cotton and the cane

But tobacco holds its own,
Having very few regrets—
Though its purity is doubted,
I believe, in cigarettes.

I HAVE quarreled with tobacco and have said that we are quits;
There are times beyond disputing, when it obfuscates the wits;
But tobacco, I've discovered, has no substitute at all,
And it never ventures farther than as far as one can call.

It is always very glad
To make up again and play;
You may think it or dispute it,
But tobacco has a way.

WHETHER war shall leave us wiser one is much disposed to doubt.
But it has at least established what we cannot do without.
There is not a King in Europe who has donned his martial cloak,
But is busy in the trenches keeping something there to smoke.

You may say it is a weed,
Or consign it to the pit;
But of this you may be certain—
That tobacco is a hit.

LEAVE IT TO PAT.

MURPHY and Meyer were in a dispute as to Celtic and Teutonic prowess.

"Wan Irishman could whip two Germans," boasted Murphy.

"If they wuz dead Germans," retorted Meyer.

Father Connelly, approaching, heard the argument.

"Shame on you boys for not staying neutral. If you want to fight Germans, Pat, you should go to Germany."

"Yer fighting the devil, are yez not, father?" asked Pat.

"I am that," answered Father Connelly, "and hard work it is at times."

"Well, father," said Pat, "if yez are fighting the devil, I'd scarce be suggesting that yez go to purgatory to do it."—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

A DIFFICULT TASK.

THE government official had been telling a simple old Scotch farmer what he must do in the case of a German invasion on the east coast of Scotland.

"An' hae I reely tae dae this wi' a' ma beesties if the Germans come?" asked the old fellow at the finish.

An official informed him that such was the law. "All live stock of every description must be branded and driven inland."

"Weel, I'm thinking I'll hae an awfu' job wi' ma bees!"

HAD REASON ENOUGH.

AT a dance given by a social club there was a man who met with a mishap on the floor, due to his lack of skill in dancing.

"Sir, you are the only gentleman in the room."

"Thanks," replied the other dryly. "May I inquire what motive has led you to seek me out for this complimentary outburst?"

"Why," explained the man, "when I tripped in the tango just now and fell sprawling to the floor, incidentally ripping off a large section of my charming partner's gown, you were the only one in the place that did not laugh."

The other smiled grimly.

"The explanation lies in the fact that the lady is my wife and that I have paid for the gown."—Philadelphia Ledger.

HOW HE GOT EVEN.

A BUSY housewife came into the sitting room with a determined look in her eyes.

"I really shall have to punish those children," she began.

"What have the little beggars been up to now?" asked father, looking up from his newspaper.

"Why, they've made a mess of my sewing room," explained his wife. "Needles, reels of cotton, scissors—everything has been hidden away in the most unexpected places. It is really exasperating."

Her husband laid down his paper and smiled benignly.

"I did that," he said calmly. Then, in answer to a questioning look, he went on: "You tidied up my desk so beautifully the other day, that I thought it only fair to return the compliment. So I tidied up your sewing room."

HIS LOSS MADE GOOD.

AN elderly gentleman of rural appearance had hardly seated himself in the crosstown car when a young lady who had followed him approached him.

"Did you lose a $5 bill?" she asked.

For a moment the farmer observed her with a surprised, curious look, then said, convincingly, "Yes, ma'am, I did."

"Then here it is," said she, handing the bill to him. "I picked it up behind you from the car floor."

"Thank you very much, young lady, for your honesty. This is a most remarkable happening."

"Oh, I don't think so, sir. I believe everyone should return the money in such a case as this. What is there so remarkable about it?"

"Why, I lost my $5 bill two years ago."

CLEANSING.

X.—Rain coat: Sponge with a mixture of equal parts of alcohol and ether, with addition of a tablespoon of household ammonia to pint of liquid. Benzine cleans cravenette. A rubber firm that deals largely in cravenette coats says they may be washed in soap and water.

HOUSEHOLD HELPS.

N. E.—Flea remedies: One is to wash all the woodwork and floors and all furniture and clothing in hot soap suds mixed with a little kerosene and then fumigate the house with sulphur. All clothing and draperies that might bleach must be removed before the sulphur fumes are started, as the sulphur is a bleaching agent. Powdered sulphur scattered about the house will also help drive away the fleas. The other eradicator is to open a small bottle of hydrocyanic acid in each room and closet. This drug is a deadly poison not only to fleas, but to men as well, and can only be used under the supervision of a chemist. It does the work, but is expensive and so dangerous that it is seldom used. The unofficial method of getting rid of fleas is the ordinary goat. Things that the goat might like to eat are piled out of his reach. The windows are all closed, but all the inside doors are open, including the doors to closets and stairways, so that the goat may wander anywhere about the house, from cellar to garret. A few wisps of hay or a little bran is scattered about in the various rooms. The goat goes all over the house and he seems to be the natural affinity of the flea, for the fleas run to him in thousands. Twice a day the goat is taken out into the yard for exercise and twice a day he "ditches" every flea that has boarded his woolly hide in the interim and is returned free of insects and ready to gather another load. In a week a goat will clean an ordinary home of fleas. It has been tried by four Topekans and has been successful every time and was the only way they found to get rid of the fleas.

MISCELLANEOUS.

EMIL.—Pound of gold, silver, jewels, drugs, 12 ounces; of copper, iron, steel, snakes, 16 ounces.

P. F.—Arkansas law requires recording of all marriage licenses. Failure to record would not make marriage less binding.

KRAUSE.—Some old-time automobile men put small quantity of flaxseed in radiator to stop leaks. Accessory houses also sell a preparation.

LOYAL.—Dealers say stiffened raincoat cannot be softened. To prevent stiffness it should be kept in a cool place, with plenty of air.

R. G.—Convent girls are in the habit of putting S. A. G. on their letters to insure safe delivery by the patron saint of messengers, St. Anthony. In such a case S. A. G. would stand for "St. Anthony, Guide." St. Anthony also helps the girls to find lost articles, if they ask him.

THOMAS.—There would be $40 a year tuition for pupil in St. Louis public school for backward pupils; free if you should become a resident of the city. Or, you might write to Miss Compton's school, 3809 Flad avenue, St. Louis, Mo., or to Herbert Hall for Defective Children, Plainfield, N. J.

MANY THANKS.—Mail carrier, age 18 to 45; must measure not less than 5 feet 4 inches in height in bare feet and weigh not less than 125 pounds without overcoat and hat. Examination subjects include spelling, arithmetic, letter writing, penmanship, copying from plain copy, geography of the United States (political), reading addresses, systems of railway transportation. See Civil Service office, 3d and Olive.

KUSE.—Wild cherry bitters: Wild cherry bark 6 lbs., squaw vine (partridge berry) 1 lb., juniper berries 8 oz. Pour boiling water over and let stand 24 hours; strain and again pour boiling water on the ingredients; let macerate 12 hours, then express and filter through paper, so that the whole will make 5 gals., to which add 3½ lbs. sugar, 1½ gals. molasses, 6 ozs. tincture peach kernels, 3 ozs. prickly ash berries, 2 quarts alcohol.

WADE.—The proposition to elect United States Senators by direct vote of the people was discussed for some time before Congress finally submitted a constitutional amendment on the subject to the states. The amendment was submitted to Congress May 13, 1912, and on May 31, 1913, the Secretary of State proclaimed that it had been ratified by 36 of the 48 states, and was in force. It now constitutes the 17th amendment to the Constitution. Income tax amendment is the 16th.

J. M. (correction).—In your answer last Sunday in regard to first beer, the statement was made that the first brewery for lager beer was started in Philadelphia in 1842. We now have a note from the William J. Lemp Brewing Co. saying that the Lemp company of St. Louis was established and brewed lager beer in this country in 1840. This fact was set forth in their advertisement published Au. 9. This puts St. Louis first, beyond a doubt.

READER.—No person, so far as known, ever swam through Niagara Falls or the rapids or came through alive in an attempt to do so. Capt. Webb made the attempt to go through the rapids in a stout barrel made for the purpose, but lost his life. Since then two persons have made a similar venture and survived the ordeal—Capt. Carlyle D. Graham and a Mrs. Anna Edson Taylor of Bay City, Mich. The only other successful passage of the rapids in mind at present was by the owner of the steamer Maid of the Mist, who, to save his craft from seizure, put on full steam and ran her through, but his steamer was almost a wreck when she arrived at Lewiston.

CHAS.—We have no record of "financing" of Weston for his walks. Five years ago he said to the Post-Dispatch on his arrival in New York at the end of his walk from Santa Monica, Cal.: I have made this walk in the behalf of America, its growing boys and girls, its people of middle life and its old people, to whom I wish to point out that exercise is the best medicine. While making these walks my feet do not trouble me. I eat only one meal a day and for the rest take liquid refreshments on the way—milk with eggs shaken into it. Also light cereal preparations and an orange or cake of chocolate. Thus my stomach is not overloaded and I feel light on my feet. I bathe my feet in salt and water once or twice a week, when I come in from walking, or in the morning, and I am very careful to wipe them thoroughly dry. Also once or twice a week I bathe them with a common extract to take out the fever or inflammation. I wear a white sock, thick and soft, of a kind that I have worn for years. I can pick it out of a thousand, but any strong, colorless sock will do.

EXPERIMENT—To transfer photograph to watch case, prepare following mixture: Collodion, 4 oz.; Venice turpentine, 1 dr.; camphor spirits, 10 drops, and 95-per cent alcohol, 1 oz. Flow this solution over photograph to be transferred and carefully lay it aside to dry 15 minutes, or longer, then paste print, face down, on smooth piece of plain glass, using ordinary library paste. Allow it to dry for at least 1 hour, then, with bowl of a spoon, or a finger, rub picture from the center out, wetting with cold water until all the paper backing is removed, and place the glass with the picture into a bowl of hot water. The composition will free itself from the glass. Place the film on a piece of ordinary paper and cut it to the desired size. It is usually best to cut it in the shape of a disk to fit the watch case. Place this disk back into the warm water, and the film will soon float while the paper sinks to the bottom. With a solution of gum acacia, grease the case that is to receive the picture, then very carefully place the picture in the right position and attach it firmly by pressing with a silk cloth. The best place to put the picture is either on the inside of the cover or on the dial. If placed on the dial, the picture will show up in every detail, yet figures can be seen through picture.

Cotton Made Contraband of War

WHAT ENGLAND SHOULD DO.

Louisville Courier-Journal: If the blockade is to be allowed to continue in operation, and is to be supplemented by a further damaging and unwarranted invasion of neutral rights, it is difficult to regard the situation hopefully. Great Britain cannot eat her cake and have it, too. Either she must bring her blockade into conformity with international law and abide by the results, or she must abandon it and rely upon other instruments for accomplishing her purpose with Germany. This is what her best advisers—in press and in public meetings—have told her. This is the word that the State Department gave out when the orders in council were issued. It is the word from which this Government connot recede.

OUR RIGHT TO SELL.

Philadelphia Press: Germany declared cotton contraband at the very beginning and is ready to torpedo any ship carrying cotton to Great Britain. Both these belligerent Powers want our cotton very much for themselves, and want very much to exclude it from each other. Besides the demand for it by the cotton mills of both countries, cotton is the basis of guncotton and smokeless powder. Though inocuous in itself, it is easily converted into most potent munitions of war. Much more innocent products have been declared contraband. We cannot object to that designation, but we do declare we have a right to send our cotton to neutral nations, and neither Great Britain nor Germany has any right to interfere with that trade.

This is the basis of our contention with both these countries. We want them to conduct their fight with each other without distributing some of their blows upon innocent bystanders. There is no reason why neutral nations should interrupt their trade and suspend business because other nations are at war. Holland, Denmark, Norway and Sweden are at peace with the United States and have a right to buy and import our cotton and conduct all other trade with us without molestation or interference by the nations at war with each other.

INVOLVES LAW-BREAKING.

Philadelphia Record: The asertion that cotton is a necessary ingredient of ammunition and, therefore, contrabandable is not correct. Cellulose, the basis of guncotton, may be obtained from other fibrous material, and it is credibly reported that German chemists have found a substitute in wood pulp. The basic element of most varieties of smokeless powder now employed is benzol, a coal tar product. At any rate, the fact that cotton was useful in the manufacture of explosives was well known to the delegates to the London conference when they agreed to make cotton absolutely immune to belligerent seizure.

Lord Robert well says that the problem of giving American growers their market in neutral countries adjacent to Germany, and yet preventing the commodity from reaching Great Britain's enemies, is difficult of solution. Indeed, it is incapable of solution without gross violation of public law. Of course, it would make very little practical difference whether cotton shipments were seized because they had been contraband or condemned as being shipped in violation of a nonexisting blockade. The captors would be merely piling one illegality upon another. A blockade cannot be lawfully extended to neutral ports, and noncontraband goods cannot be lawfully taken from neutral vessels trading between neutral countries, even though some of the shipments migh reach enemy territory overland. The promises of Great Britain to ameliorate the hardships suffered by neutrals by all means in her power may be likened to the promise of a thug that he will crack the head of an innocent wayfarer with his bludgeon as painlessly as possible.

Philadelphia Ledger: Great pressure is being brought to bear upon the British Government to declare cotton contraband. Lord Robert Cecil, under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, who has hitherto thrown cold water on the proposal, now admits that it may have to be accepted. The right of the Government to take this step could not be disputed by the United States, nor in view of the agitation fostered by German sympathizers could it be blamed for doing so. That would be at any rate the quickest way of cutting the Gordian knot. It is plain that half-way measures, though conceived with the idea of favoring American interests, have not been successful. The administration has insisted upon law and precedent, properly enough, perhaps, but so strenuously that the British Government is under no compulsion to persist in efforts to come to a working agreement which may or may not be strictly legal.

SITUATION BAD ALREADY.

Philadelphia Evening Telegraph: At present and for some months past all cotton cargoes in the North Sea which Great Britain suspected were destined ultimately for Germany have been seized and taken into English ports.

Will the situation be much worse if England formally declares cotton contraband of war? German and Austrian ports are not open to commerce as it is, and all the American cotton those empires get at present must cross neutral soil.

It would be convenient for Great Britain if she could determine how much cotton Scandinavia and Holland require for their own needs, and then bar all above that amount from entering their ports. But those neutal kingdoms will not consent to any such arrangement.

English harbors are full of American cotton addressed to other countries. If those shipments are not to be released there are no extra terrors for us in Lord Cecil's talk about making cotton contraband.

ENGLAND'S POSSIBLE OBJECT.

Atlanta Constitution: We do not think there is any occasion further to argue the question of alleged military necessity upon which England bases her course of action against cotton. As a matter of fact, when the bottom of the matter is reached, it is more reasonable to believe that it is really an industrial question that is involved. By keeping cotton out of Germany, England can interfere with a big German industry, and she can likewise so depress the price of the staple that her own manufacturers can buy it for considerably less than its actual worth in open world markets. There seems to be the real meat in the cocoanut. What else did the action of the English master spinners mean the other day in not only protesting against any relieving of the blockade, but urging that cotton be placed forthwith on the list of contraband?

We have effectually given England to understand on two former occasions that our rights on the seas must be respected, and we should see to it that she is left in no sort of doubt upon the same subject as it affects our present situation.

The Frank Lynching Condemned

'VIEING WITH MEXICO."

Brunswick (Ga.) News: Is the proud commonwealth of Georgia vieing with bloody Mexico in the outlawry business? Have we reached that stage of brutality where every man becomes a law unto himself and banding with its infuriated neighbor stalks through the land to assassinate law and order and bring ignomy upon the head of cur once proud old State? Does not the spectacle of lynching Leo Frank offer to the sober-minded people of Georgia the most serious food for reflection that had been brought to them in a half-century?

It was wrong for the spirit of the mob to have appeared when Frank was tried. It was wrong when this same spirit pursued the trial Judge to the very brink of his grave, threatened the life of the Governor and drove him from the State.

LYNCHERS AS 'AVENGING ANGELS'

Macon (Ga.) Daily Telegraph: The shocking ease with which a score of men raped the State Penitentiary, the Warden of which has boasted that "only Von Kluck and his 42-centimeters could ever take that bastile," demands instant and vigorous attention.

It is said every effort will be made to apprehend these men. Doubtless they can be apprehended—doubtful they will.

Four publications in particular, several Governors, not a few Northern delegations invading Georgia, many editorials in prominent publications outside the State by editors who were not informed initiated the feeling of resentment in Georgia.

Thomas E. Watson, through the medium of his monthly and weekly publications, widely read in Georgia, vigorously contended that the jury was right and that Frank was guilty—that he should hang. He made out an infinitely more impressive case for the State than Dorsey ever did. Attacks were made on him by the outside press, notably by Puck, and because the New York Times and the New York World also made such a tremendous fight for Frank, aided by Collier's Weekly, attacking the State and declaring Frank was convicted because of anti-Semetic feeling rather than the evidence, Watson accepted the challenge thus thrown down and in a very few weeks the State was seething.

That Frank's commutation was secured by the use of money, and money alone, the majority of the people of Georgia believe.

These things in their minds, the 35 Cobb County men who lynched Leo Frank went ahead with their work with clear consciences. They really believed they were avenging angels.

STATE'S MAJESTY OUTRAGED.

Richmond News-Leader: It does not matter whether Leo M. Frank was innocent or guilty; if he were innocent the mob made worse the law's injustice; if he were guilty, the mob rebelled against the government of its own creation to impose a penalty the executive thought too severe. In either case the majesty of a Southern State has been outraged, justice has been defiled and the good name of Georgia has been besmirched.

"HANG THE MURDERERS!"

Louisville Courier-Journal: If, in this case of more than coutnry-wide interest, the Government of Georgia fails to round up and hang the murderers, no amount of the rhetoric of righteous indignation uttered by the Governor or by anyone else will atone for the murder or relieve of moral responsibility the State which, by negligence, permitted it to take place, and by additional negligence permitted the perpetrators of a ghastly outrage to go unpunished.

"The Frank case was, from beginning to end, an example of Jew baiting. The crime with which he was charged was horrible, the victim pitiful, but the circumstances of the trial were not those of an ordinary trial for criminal assault. The mob in its madness sought to "get the damned Jew" rather than to determine the guilt or innocence of the accused. Gov. Slaton, who declined to yield to sentiment of the Jew baiters, stands now in a position of isolated eminence as a Georgian who would not countenance the crime that was contemplated. When the case and the prisoner passed from his hands it behooved his successor to afford sufficient protection to a man committed to prison for life upon evidence which in an ordinary case would not have resulted in conviction. No explanation of the State's negligence in allowing the lynching to occur will be heard patiently outside of Georgia.

The State must now convict the murderers or confess the crime.

GEORGIA'S DUTY.

Baltimore Evening Sun: The criminals who have lynched Frank are murderers in morals as well as law, and the authorities must hunt them down relentlessly and punish them mercilessly if they are not to lay themselves open to the suspicion of virtual complicity in the crime, or sympathy with the criminals.

"Not a few Georgians have made themselves accomplices before the act by becoming parties to the mob passion which demanded Frank's life, without regard to law or evidence. It remains to be seen whether the present Governor and those associated with him in the administration of public affairs in Georgia will make themselves accomplices after the fact by a feeble and perfunctory performance of their duty, and whether at last decent public sentiment, shocked into a realization of responsibility, will assert itself with the vigor that the occasion demands.

MORAL REVOLUTION NEEDED.

Cincinnati Commercial Tribune: An analysis of the case leads to the conclusion that from the beginning there was a calm, passionless, cruel determination to destroy Frank, and the men responsible for it have violated every law of God and man, have debauched the press, stifled the voice of free speech, murdered every feeling of courage and chivalry to carry out their relentless plan.

The result is a stain upon the name of Georgia which nothing short of complete atonement and a moral revolution can wipe out.

THE STATE SOUND AT HEART.

Cincinnati Enquirer: Georgia needs to be purged, perhaps even by fire. The seeds of anarchy have been planted deep, and a harvest of wrath awaits her unless the work of the mob is quickly and completely undone by the sane, sober, responsible members of the commonwealth and the sowers of discord and destruction adequately punished. This is not a time for soft platitudes, for trivial excuses, for the plea of impotence, but a time for stern, certain inexorable action.

Constituted authority still lives in Georgia, and even though the servants of the State may have been peurile, venal or cowardly, the citizenship is sound and right at heart. It can be trusted to crush the viper of anarchy and to raise up to official station those men who will uphold and sustain the honor of the State.

AN ATROCIOUS HORROR.

Kansas City Star: The lynching of Leo Frank is an atrocious horror. The whole treatment of Frank, culminating in his savage murder, is a lasting shame to the laws of Georgia and to the government of Georgia.

The whole nation is humiliated by this sickening tragedy. The whole nation expresses its horror and condemnation. That the United States, standing in protest against the brutalities done in the hot blood of war, should have this brutal stain cast on its peaceful civilization is horrible.

Reparation? Georgia should make such reparation as can be made by the punishment for murder of every brutal member of the mob. It should punish to the limit of conscience the criminals of the law who connived at the murder or whose criminal, negligence permitted it.

But full reparation, that wipes out fully the stain on Georgia's name and Georgia's honor, there cannot be. It will take years for that State to redeem itself for the terrible night of crime which followed Frank's terrible days in the Georgia courts.

Osborne and the New Penology

VAGUE AND ANONYMOUS.

The Survey: The attack on Warden Osborne is vague and for the most part anonymous. It would merit little attention were there not indication of a systematic effort to "poison the minds" of the Governor and the public, to use the words of the Warden's friends. The latter allege that employes in the office of the State Superintendent of Prisons John B. Riley conspired to "frame up" evidence to discredit Mr. Osborne, though they do not connect Mr. Riley's name with the plot. The "old poison ring" of politicians interested in contracts is credited with instigating it. The conspiracy collapsed, apparently, when the story leaked out that an orgy was to be staged in a nearby saloon, at which convicts were to be shown abusing their "freedom."

This plot, it is asserted, will be revealed at the trial of an employe from the office of the State Superintendent of Prisons, charged with assaulting Warden Osborn when the latter prevented him from running off with the records from the prison.

THE MAN AND THE METHOD.

Washington Herald: It cannot be denied, however, that there have been some good results from Mr. Osborne's methods. The trouble seems to be that he has gone to extremes, has been too indulgent and not sufficiently discriminating. His administration would seem to vindicate the old theory that ideal prison conditions depend more upon the man in charge than any fixed methods. It looks very much like still another case of progressive efficiency moving in a circle until the starting point is reached again.

OSBORNE AND HIS CRITICS.

Louisville Courier-Journal: Interest in Sing Sing prison and its Warden, Thomas Mott Osborne, is wider than New York State. It is national in scope; any development affecting the conduct of the institution or the reform methods of Warden Osborne carries more than local significance. The charges that were made recently against Mr. Osborne and his administration met an unsympathetic response at the hands of the public. The Warden's efforts in the way of prison reform at Sing Sing, whether always wise in themselves or not, have been directed toward an obvious and clamant need. This has created a public sentiment in his favor that could not be easily overturned.

PRISON REFORM AND POLITICS.

Philadelphia Ledger: Warden Osborne of Sing Sing has undoubtedly opened himself to criticism by some excesses of humanitarian zeal, and there is some ground for the fear that in his effort to banish graft from the penitentiary and eliminate most of the inhumanities in the traditional methods of prison management he has run the risk of obliterating too completely the punitive purposes of the institution the management of which has been intrusted to him. It is an open question whether the mere deprivation of liberty is sufficient punishment for the majority of the criminals committed to Sing Sing; but every humane person will agree with Mr. Osborne's contention that a State prison ought not to be made a breeding place for criminals, an instrument for the conversion of the merely unfortunate into hardened degenerates. And, more than that, the good citizenship of New York ought to insist that whatever his mistakes, Mr. Osborne shall not be disturbed in the work he had undertaken until his experiment shall have been fairly tested, and, above all, that he shall not be made the victim of a base political intrigue bent upon the undoing of the wholesome reform at Sing Sing and the restoration of the grafters to control.

TRADES FOR CONVICTS.

Indianapolis News: The decision of President Samuel Gompers and other officials of the American Federation of Labor to withdraw their objection to teaching trades to convicts at Sing Sing prison is altogether commendable. Credit for the reform, however, belongs principally to the National Committee on Prisons and Prison Labor. It was this organization which devised the plan and ascertained that it would meet with the approval of the American Federation of Labor, and then took the steps necessary to bring about an inspection of the prison by the labor officials. Mr. Gompers was also impressed with the reforms in the conduct of prison affairs lately introduced by Warden Osborne. Thus it appears that everyone concerned deserves much credit. A new spirit of co-operation has been introduced as a substitute for the antagonism and working at cross purposes which have retarded the progress of many prison reforms, and if this spirit can be maintained, not only Sing Sing, but other prisons will benefit. The situation at Sing Sing is therefore, likely to be much changed within the next year. And this is as it should be. There is an extreme which prison reforms should not approach, but there is also a middle ground between the hardening influence of the prisons of a century ago and the extremes of liberty and unrestrained sympathy with which some persons seek to surround the felon. If a prisoner can be returned to the world a better man, then, and then only, is the state doing its best for him.

LET MR. OSBORNE TRY.

New York World: The report that Gov Whitman has decided to retain Mr. Osborne as Warden of Sing Sing is creditable to his judgment and should be true. Mr. Osborne may have been too lenient to suit some critics; too strict to suit others. But he has been the judge of his own problems, and has sought to do his best for the State and the convicts; not for himself or for any political gang. He may have erred in tact or judgment. He has not been wanting in zeal or honesty or good will. In this he stands high above some men who have managed Sing Sing; he stands above them all in representing, as none of them under the conditions could do, the new idea of prison management.

Summer Gayety Now at Its Lowest Ebb—September to Bring Many Weddings—Veiled Prophet Festivities, With Its Promise of Debutantes, a Little More Than a Month Away.

By Frances Cabanne Scovel.

THIS is the time of the year when things in the social world at home are at their lowest ebb, when everyone has gone away, who was going and those who have been away all summer are only beginning to turn their faces homeward.

It also is the time when society with a capital "S" begins "marking time" while waiting for the opening of the autumn campaign, when prophecies are made, lines are laid and interest in the coming social season begins to awaken.

One more week and September will be here with its unusually large number of weddings. After the September brides will come the debutantes who make their first formal appearance at the Veiled Prophet's ball, now little more than a month away. After that the season with its teas and luncheons, and, later, its balls, will be upon us.

At the summer resorts, gayety is at its height, while at home, golf in the mornings and plenty of dancing at the country clubs during the week beguiles the time away.

The summer has been a wonderful one for golf, and every morning has found the links at the various clubs alive with players.

The Triple A course in Forest Park has come in for more than its share of enthusiasts because it is within such easy reach of everyone.

The Saturday mornings over there have been particularly gay, the veranda looking like a pink tea after the game.

Almost any day will find among the players Miss Gertrude McLeod, Miss Virginia Simpson, Mesdames Lacy Crawford, Senter Gettys, Oliver L. Garrison Jr., Percival Phelan, Emmett Meyer and C. N. Whitehead.

AMONG the September weddings beginning to draw the interest of the social set will be that of Edward de Laureal Bakewell, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Bakewell of 4239 McPherson avenue, and Miss Kathleen Miller, which has been set for Sept. 15 and will take place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ashby Miller, at 2309 Bryant street, Minneapolis, Minn.

The ceremony will be in the evening at 8:30 o'clock and the bridegroom's parents and his sister, Miss Dorothy Bakewell, and George Bakewell Jr., are all going to Minneapolis for the wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Miller came to St. Louis from Alexandria, Va., a few years ago and resided here until last fall, when Mr. Miller's affairs took him North.

Mr. Bakewell has been engaged in business in Minneapolis for several months. He and his bride will make their home there after their return from the wedding trip.

ANOTHER wedding of much interest in St. Louis which will take place out of town will be Mrs. Louise Curtis Dryden to D'Arcy Paul Cooke.

Mrs. Dryden has been at her summer home near Traverse City, Mich., since early in the season and it is there the marriage will be celebrated Sept. 4. It will be a very quiet affair, and after a brief honeymoon trip Mr. Cooke will bring his bride home to St. Louis.

Mr. Cooke's mother, in her ninetieth year, is the daughter of the late Henry von Phul and the great-granddaughter of Dr. Antoine Saugrain, who was the friend of Benjamin Franklin, and who, is is said, was standing beside him when he flew the kite that brought on the discovery of electricity.

Mrs. Dryden is the widow of the late John Dryden and niece of the late Henry Curtis.

MR. and Mrs. John Allan Love, who are on their wedding tour, are visiting Mr. Love's brother, Edward K. Love and Mrs. Love in Biddeford Pool, Me. They will start for a motor trip in the White Mountains this week. They are expected home about Sept. 1, when they will take possession of their apartment in the Raymuth. Mrs. Love was Miss Beatrice Gillam of Canajohrie, N. Y., the daughter of Mrs. Frank Barbour.

Mrs. A. W. Jones and her daughter, Miss V. A. L Jones, returned Friday evening from Front Royal, Va., where they have been visiting relatives for the past month, and are again at the Hamilton Hotel. Front Royal is Mrs Jones' old home.

ANOTHE attractive girl's name has been added to the list of debutantes for the coming winter—that of Miss Anne Eleanor von Harten, daughter of Mrs. Edward Nichol von Harten of 5433 Von Versen avenue. She was graduated at Smith College.

Still another debutante will be Miss Grace Gettys, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Senter L. Gettys of 5335 Delmar boulevard, who finished Mary Institute in June. Although she is not yet 18 years old, the age supposed to be just right for a girl to make her bow to the social world, her parents are going to present her because all her set are coming out and it would be too bad to deny her such a happy winter as she will have this year, just because it has become the custom for a girl to wait until she is at least 18 before she makes her debut.

Former Judge and Mrs. Richard L. Goode of 4429 West Pine boulevard, are spending several weeks at Excelsior Springs, Mo.

WILLIAM C. McBRIDE is expected home Monday and Mrs. McBride, the latter part of the month from California, where they went to visit their daughter, Mrs. Lacy M. Love, Mr. Love and their new grandson, who arrived Aug. 11, and who is named William McBride Love. Mrs. McBride remained to visit the expositions.

ONE of the interesting engagements announced during the past week was that of Miss Mildred Hamilton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Hamilton of Ferguson, to Edward Lake, also of Ferguson. The marriage will take place in the fall.

Dr. and Mrs. C. F. Pfingsten of 2918 Dodier street, and their daughter, Miss Marian Pfingsten, are spending the month of August at Stratton Park, Colorado Springs, Col.

The lawn party which was to have been given Friday eevning on the lawn of St. Andrew's Episcopal Church has been postponed until Tuesday evening.

Miss Phoebe Wolf of 3914 St. Louis avenue gave a luncheon Wednesday in honor of Mrs. R. W. Nichols, a recent bride, who was Miss Edith Rainey, and whose marriage took place July 3. Mr. and Mrs. Nichol are residing at 4626 Westminster place.

My new styles and materials for fall have arrived. Your early inspection will greatly please me and will be to your advantage. M. M. Garoian, ladies' tailor, 710 N. King's highway. For. 1925.

Mr. and Mrs. Leon H. Matthey of 2043 Park avenue are receiving congratulations upon the advent of a son whom they have named Leon H. Matthey Jr. Mrs. Matthey was Miss Elizabeth Heibel before her marriage.

MISS FANNIE HURST, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hurst of 5641 Cates avenue, noted writer of short stories, has returned from a trip through California and the West. She will stay about a month and then return to New York where she has a studio, and where she will continue her writing.

Mrs. Julius Weil, of 4142 Delmar boulevard, is spending the summer in Frankfort, Mich., where Mr. Weil joined her several days ago. They will return the first week in September.

Mrs. James L. Armstrong of 5535 Maple avenue, and her daughter, Miss Ruth Fisher Armstrong, who have been spending the summer in Fort Fairfield, Me., have left there and are now motoring in the White Mountains with Mr. and Mrs. George Cary, who will take them to their summer home at St. Johnbury, Vt., for a visit.

Mrs. Armstrong and her daughter will stop also in Portland, Me., and Boston before returning home.

Mrs. E. N. Bube of 4368 Delmar boulevard departed for Los Angeles Aug. 1 to visit her grandmother, Mrs. Thomas Dooley, formerly of St. Louis, and her aunt, Mrs. Thomas Hennessy of San Mateo, Cal. On her return Mrs. Bube will visit relatives in Chicago and Kansas City.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Dodge of 1447 Shawmut place have gone to Kansas City to stay a month.

Miss Lottie Kohler of 3004 St. Vincent avenue, upon her return from a trip in the Ozarks, gave a luncheon Thursday to a few friends, among those present being Misses Cora Kinder, Agnes Wolff and Esther Williams.

Misses Rose and Edna Wolf of 3844 Utah place have returned from Chicago where they were the guests of Miss Eleanore Schauler.

Mr. Press of St. Paul's Evangelical Church officiated. The bride was attended by Miss Frieda Neutzling. Rudolph Deibel was best man. After the the ceremony there was a reception for the immediate families at the home of the bride. The couple will be at home at 3001 Osage street after Sept. 1.

Now Being Shown in Our Extensive Suit Department

MANY of the new Autumn Suits are semi-tailored, while others are made in the new box effects. The materials include poplins, gaberdines, men's-wear serges, broadcloths, velvets and fancy mixtures in such of the season's new shades as Subterranean Green, African Brown, Military Blue, etc. Fancy trimmings, especially fur, are decidedly popular. As an introductory example of the remarkable values that always prevail here, we offer Monday

The DOCTOR'S ADVICE
by Dr. Lewis Baker

The questions answered below are general in character, the symptoms or diseases are given, and the answers will apply in any case of similar nature.

Those wishing further advice, free, may address Dr. Lewis Baker, College Bldg., College-Ellwood Sts., Dayton, O., enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope for reply. Full name and address must be given, but only initials or fictitious name will be used in my answers. The prescriptions can be filled at any well-stocked drug store. Any druggist can order of wholesaler.

"Mrs. W." asks: "What can I do for a long continued case of constipation? I have headache and dizziness and my complexion is sallow. At night I can't sleep, I'm so nervous."

Answer: Continued constipation affects the blood and makes it impure. You need a good blood purifier and laxative. Use three-grain sulpherb tablets (not sulphur). They aid digestion, act on the bowels and clean and purify the blood.

"S. F. E." writes: "I have a very severe case of dandruff. My scalp itches and my hair is coming out in handfuls."

Answer: Get a jar of plain yellow minyol at your drug store. Wash the hair and, while still wet, rub well into the scalp the plain yellow minyol. Rinse out thoroughly and your scalp will feel clean and active. Repeat this treatment three or four times after washing, and in a few weeks all your dandruff should disappear and your hair become healthy and soft.

"Corpulent" asks: "What will overcome corpulency? I am so fat as to be in my own way. I'm short of breath and cannot stand exercise."

Answer: To reduce safely, use five-grain arbolone tablets. They are the most reliable reducers I could prescribe. Many are pleased with results from arbolone.

"Misery" writes: "I have been a worn-out man for the past few months. My physical and mental forces are much impaired. I do not seem to be able to think clearly. I am much depressed all the time, and my usual ambition and energy seem to have died. I have headache and pains in my back."

Answer: Your condition is identical to thousands of others brought to my attention yearly. Yes, your physical and mental forces are, as you say, much impaired, but you need not be alarmed over your condition. The use of three-grain cadomene tablets should soon put you back in normal condition and fit to combat any troubles. Cultivate regular habits of living.

"Mite" asks: "I seem to be shrinking in size. I am very pale and thin. I do not feel sick, but I'm very weak. I want to increase my weight."

Answer: You are anaemic and the food you eat does not properly nourish your system; three-grain hypo-nuclane tablets cause proper food assimilation and increase weight and strength. Take them with your meals. Sold in sealed packages.

"Mrs. Ella M." writes: "Please prescribe for me again. This time for my kidneys. I have chills and fever, look bad, have puffs under my eyes, and sometimes my back hurts."

Answer: You should get almost instant relief and permanent benefit from the use of balmwort tablets. I have prescribed these in numerous cases of kidney trouble and they have given excellent results. Most drug stores carry these tablets and they come in sealed tubes with proper directions.

Today's Beauty Suggestions

Face powder simply covers up an unattractive complexion and leaves no lasting benefits. Those who have tried a simple spurmax face lotion find it much better, as it removes skin discolorations, such as freckles and tan, and makes the skin smooth, white and velvety. This lotion is made by dissolving four ounces of spurmax in one-half pint hot water, then adding two teaspoonfuls glycerin. This complexion beautifier does not rub off or show like powder, and gives a more refined appearance. It removes both shininess and sallowness, rapidly giving the skin a permanent healthy, youthful appearance.

An especially fine shampoo for this weather can be had at trifling expense by dissolving a teaspoonful of canthrox in a cup of hot water. Pour slowly on scalp and massage briskly. This creates a soothing, cooling lather that dissolves and removes all dandruff, excess oil and dirt. Rinsing leaves the scalp spotlessly clean, soft and pliant, while the hair takes on a glossy richness of natural color, also a fluffiness which makes it seem very much heavier than it is. After a canthrox shampoo arranging the hair is a pleasure.—ADV.

De Lacy's Cucumber COLD CREAM

READY TO USE

No cooking, no mixing. Should be on your dresser and with you on your trip, for its timely use prevents the skin from peeling, tanning and burning. Improves the complexion by keeping the skin in a proper condition. De Lacy's goes farther than the ordinary cold cream. De Lacy's has merit. German Chancellor Says Kaiser Won't Interfere in U. S.

could have stated what German Foreign Office had for a long time been practically certain of—that Belgium had made tentative arrangements that were, to all intents and purposes, a violation of its neutrality; but the Chancellor preferred to make no statement until the facts were absolutely in his hands.

"Germany and Its Allies Will Certainly Triumph."

In answer to my question, "Who will win the war?" the Chancellor said:

"Germany and its allies will win; the people have made great sacrifices, and must be and are prepared to make still greater ones; but of the outcome there is no doubt."

Next, I asked the Chancellor, "Do the Germans hate the British?"

The answer, calmly given, was:

"No, I do not think that hate is the proper word to describe their feeling; we have only had a united Germany for about 45 years, but see what we have accomplished in that time. We have, I believe, the most scientifically conducted Government that the world has ever known, and we have practically succeeded in eliminating extreme poverty.

"The upper classes in Great Britain, who have for generations past lived in luxury and comfort, have given little thought to the millions of wretched slum dwellers in their large cities. To the German mind, such an attitude seems not merely selfish and cruel, but unscientific. Now, in its hour of peril, what assistance can those unfortunate beings offer to the country that has given them birth alone?

"Brutality" of the British.

The Chancellor then said, and his voice suddenly sounded as cold as ice:

"We are not unfamiliar with the stories circulated about us by the British since this war began. Was it not Shakspeare who said:

"Who steals my purse steals trash;
'tis something, nothing;
'Twas mine, 'tis his, and has been slave to thousands;
But he that filches from me my good name,
Robs me of that which not enriches him,
And makes me poor indeed.

"And, while we do not hold the masses of British gentlemen responsible for the circulation of these libels, we do feel that it is an indication of an underlying brutality in the British that places them outside the pale of our regard as intellectual and moral equals."

Then, turning in his chair, the Chancellor said:

"Let's not talk about the war any more. Tell me," with a rather quizzical look in his eyes, "how's woman suffrage coming along in the United States?"

When I told the Chancellor that it was advancing rapidly, that in all probability, in 1916, both candidates for the presidency would favor it, and that it was only a question of a few years before women would be voting in nearly every state of the Union, he seemed very much interested.

"Well," he said, almost seeming to be thinking aloud, "who can tell? It may be the best thing for YOU to do. There are no historical precedents to guide you—you are traveling along a road where you have to blaze your trail—who can tell, who can tell?"

Interested in Prohibition.

There was a distinct pause before the next question, and then:

"Is prohibition of the sale of liquor still an active issue in the United States?"

"Yes, your excellency, we have many states in the Union in which the sale of all intoxicants is forbidden. Recently the question of adopting a constitutional amendment was brought up in Congress and received very considerable support."

"Most interesting," said the Chancellor. "A movement of that sort would make no headway in Germany. The people would regard it as an absolutely unwarrantable interference with their personal liberty."

Then a clock chimed 1, the Chancellor arose, shook hands with me and said:

"Good-by, Mr. Krebs. Please don't forget that you did not do all the interviewing."

New Deal in Diplomacy.

The feeling in Germany against its diplomats is very strong and outspoken. I have had many Germans say to me: "After the war is over we will make a clean sweep of our diplomats." The Chancellor stands forth as the absolutely impeccable representative of the German aristocracy who believe in straight and clear thinking and who have an entire and almost unreasonable contempt for mental equivocation of any kind.

He is an idealist, but of the work-a-day kind. As Secretary of the Interior, he labored for years in order to put the empire in the condition in which it is today, one so economically and basically sound that it is able to withstand the shock of attack from all sides and yet maintain its poise and the integrity of its boundaries.

A man personally of the most simple, almost, one might say, Spartan, tostes, the Chancellor seeks personal recreation, when work permits, far from courts, or the ambitions of the mighty. The Kaiser has had the best there was in him to give, and when his life work is ended one can imagine the Chancellor, with that absolute loyalty to his sovereign that characterizes the German gentleman, laying aside the cares of state without a single regret save that further service may be impossible.

BUSINESS MEN OF WEST END TO HAVE OUTING TUESDAY

Free Barbecue and Other Features Arranged for Fifteenth Annual Event.

Gov. Major, Mayor Kiel and city officials have been invited to participate in the fifteenth annual outing of the West End Business Men's Association at Delmar Garden next Tuesday afternoon and evening.

A free barbecue, a theatrical performance, an auction, together with addresses by officials, are some of the features on the program. For several weeks the 1600 members of the association have been distributing 35,000 tickets.

Chief Barbecuist Adolph Hackman and his half dozen assistants at 6 o'clock tomorrow night, will begin the preparation of the charcoal pits, for the reception of a dozen carcasses of beef and mutton. The finished product will be ready to serve promptly at 4:30 p. m. Tuesday. Everyone entering the garden between 4:30 and 7:30 will receive a coupon entitling him to a portion of the barbecue. With city oficials as honorary guests, a dinner will be given in the villa at 6:30 p. m.

An exhibition drill and dress parade will be given by the First Regiment, National Guard, Col. Arthur B. Donnelly commanding. The military drill will be followed by a theatrical performance and auction in the Delmar Garden theater. Theatrical acts, a quartet arranged by Glenn Lee and a charity auction under the direction of Alex Selkirk of goods donated by St. Louis merchants will make up this entertainment. A cabaret performance will follow.

Dr. B. W. Clarke is president and W. A. Guenzburger, secretary of the association. C. P. Strother, former president, is chairman of the General Entertainment Committee.

Indian Foresees Long and Hard Winter.

MUSKOGEE, Ok., Aug. 1.—"Heap dam cold snow come quick." That is what Chunnubie Harjoe, an aged Indian, thinks is going to happen in the weather line, as revealed to him through a large crop of thick-shelled hickory nuts and the unusual thickness of fur upon a squirrel he had slain. They are Indian signs of a long and hard winter.

Von Bernhardi Says Germany Is Sure to Win

French, 108 Belgian and 17 British machine guns have thus far been sent to Germany. An equal number has been retained for use by our troops, so that the total number of captured machine guns from both theaters of the war amounts to a round 3000.

It is difficult to estimate what the losses in dead and wounded have been. But it is clear that they must be large, owing to the many desperate attacks which were made, especially by the French, and that they must surpass our losses many times.

He Estimates France's Losses at 1,500,000.

The total losses of the French, which can, of course only be estimated, may reach about 1,500,000, if not more. Seventeen-year-old boys are already called to the colors in France to fill the gaps in the ranks. As a consequence we can await the development of the situation upon this theater of war, too, with quiet confidence, and shall find means, when the time of the great offensive comes, to break through the hostile lines and to carry the attack into the heart of the hostile country, perhaps earlier than the British will be ready with the creation of their new army and the readiness of the necessary ammunition. They may have realized in the meantime, that it is not so easy to put an army into the field which is capable of defeating the German troops.

Even at sea the British have had no successes. In the sea fight in the North Sea they were even unable to nail a victory to their flag, despite numerical and artillery superiority. On the contrary, they suffered heavy losses and terminated the fight by retreating.

Their dominion at sea has been seriously shattered. Although they succeeded to prevent overseas imports from reaching Germany, they themselves are suffering the hardest from the submarine war, which will be continued more severly from day to day, and against which neither the change of flag nor the arming of merchant vessels will avail.

In Air and Under Water.

Even the aerial warfare against England has not reached its height, and our aerial flight gradually gains the upper hand in France. Thus the prospects at sea and in the air are not unfavorable for us, and German tenacity and capability will succeed, as on land, so in this respect, to gradually win the upper hand.

The German submarines have already entered the war upon the southeastern theater in a decisive manner, and forced our adversaries to abandon in general the effective co-operation of their fleets during the attack upon the Dardanelles. Voices are already raised which declare the whole undertaking as impractical, if the German submarines succeed in dominating the seas.

This fight for the Dardanelles is of high importance to the whole situation. In the first place, it occupies large fighting forces and keeps them away from Europe, and, secondly, the stakes over which it is fought are very important. If it should be possible for the Quadruple Entente to force the passage, and to take Constantinople, Turkey would be affected quite seriously. A continuance of her warfare would be made extremely difficult for her. The effect upon Bulgaria and Rumania could not be estimated and the provisioning of Russia with munitions and other necessities would be greatly facilitated.

Turks Masters of Colonials.

But such a success is hardly to be expected for ally's adversaries. The forcing of the Dardanelles, if possible at all, can only be attained by making the heaviest possible sacrifices, which might seriously threaten the dominion of the Mediterranean by the allies. The attack on land, moreover, in order to be successful, demands such large bodies of troops and such a decisive co-operation of the fleet that it is hardly possible that the allies are equal to the task. Human quantities alone are not sufficient Impoverished militia troops, Australians and other drummed together folk, will always find their masters in the Turks.

It may, therefore, be confidently expected that the Dardanelles will be held by the Turks.

This, however, will not only have a favorable influence upon the Balkan States, whose interests would be menaced by Russia and British dominion of Constantinople, but it will also enable the Turks to reap new laurels upon the other theaters of war.

The Failure of Italy.

In only remains to speak of the Italians, who saw fit to enter the Triple Entente at a time when Russia's heaviest defeat was in process of preparation. In Germany this participation of Italy in the war created, curiously enough, little impression. Everybody was convinced from the start that the success of the Italians would not be equal to their own expectations and to those of their allies.

As a matter of fact these expectations were quite large. It was hoped that Italy's entrance into the war would at once release the pressure upon the Russians and would be decisive in a general way. In Italy the war party expected easy victories, while the mass of the people was not in favor of the war. How differently everything turned out! Up to the present time the Italian armies have not won a foot of territory, unless it was conceded to them voluntarily. On the other hand, they have been severely defeated along the Isonzo front. Even its fleet cannot maintain control at sea, and in Tripoli they have already lost the largest portion of their colonies through heavy defeats by the tribes of the interior, or else have deserted their possessions.

Even if it should be possible for them to gain territory in the Tyrol and along the Isonzo their participation could never become of decisive importance. The space which is available along the Austrian front is too small to permit of the development of the whole Italian forces. A flanking movement around the Austrian positions is absolutely out of the question. It is a matter of frontal attack under the hardest conditions, which could hardly be productive of great results. An attack on Austria upon the Balkan Peninsula, on the other hand, again offers great difficulties and cannot lead to important decisions within the near future.

It appears quite impossible to defeat Austria upon this theater of war.

The decision will undoubtedly be fought out upon the French battlefields. However this may result, Italy will under all circumstances be the loser. If the central Powers are victorious, there cannot be any doubt that Italy will have to pay its share of the bill. If the Quadruple Entente is victorious, on the other hand, Italy will become absolutely dependent upon France and England and must relinquish for all times to come its dominating position in the Mediterranean.

A review of the whole situation will reveal a favorable situation for the central Powers, so much the more as the states of the Quadruple Entente have a conception relative to military successes which can be based neither upon the history of war, nor has a foundation in the nature of this war.

It is constantly said on the other side that the success in a decisive manner depends upon the quantity of munitions which is available, and that, aside from the superior masses, the technical means were instrumental to success. It is constantly emphasized that, in contrast to former wars, these factors are today determining.

How little have men who hold this belief penetrated into the real spirit of the war!

Munitions in sufficient quantities certainly are essential in warfare, and the technical means of warfare are certainly an important factor to success and it is surely not of little importance that just in this respect, in the technique of war, we are in advance of our enemies. The superiority in artillery and in number is, of course, of prime importance.

The masses, however, win their decisive importance only when they have been trained in discipline and capability, are full of belligerent spirit and are led by men who are thoroughly aware of what brings results in war, and who are masters of their profession or, rather, art. Munitions and technical war materials achieve their full value only when they are used with a purpose and with valiant, military spirit.

What did it avail the Russians that they pressed on with enormous superiority against East Prussia and the Carpathians? Their desperate attacks crumbled under the superior leadership of the German Generals and the well aimed heroic spirit of the Austro-German troops, so that they had to surrender their arms by the hundred thousands to the weaker opponent.

What did the enormous quantities of ammunition of the Frenchmen and the British superiority upon the battlefield avail against men who were led in distinguished fashion, who used their weapons with superiority, and who could not be shaken by anything in their unalterable confidence in victory?

Or does any one believe that the German submarines, which are of course superior to those of the enemy, could have achieved such brilliant results as they actually did if they had not been commanded by men like Weddingen and Hersing?

And now the British. They want to force a victory with masses of men and ammunition against the armies of a people who have been brought up in fighting spirit and patriotic sacrifice from generation to generation during centuries of history, and whose men are trained from youth on to be soldiers. All are drummed together recruits, who partly represent the moral scum of all the world, and are certainly not changed into soldiers by overwhelming forces of artillery and a waste of ammunition.

It is the spirit which decides wars, the spirit of leadership and the spirit of the troops. The moral factors today as always are the deciding ones, and as long as our adversaries expect results only from material sources, they will never succeed to master the German spirit and the German people.

The intention to starve out Germany and to deprive it of the things necessary to life will fail. We can raise a sufficient amount of foodstuffs upon our own soil. And we are amply provided with the other materials necessary to warfare.

Our allies are standing loyally by our side, determined, as we are, to fight for victory to the last drop of blood. One spirit and one will dominate the peoples of the Central Powers, whose powerful, active idealism cannot be understood in the countries of material world vision. One belief in the final victory of their just cause lives in all, a faith which could move mountains.

May our enemies do their worst? They cannot oppose anything equal to the hero spirit of our troops. From the beginning they have offended against one of the most important and decisive laws of the art of warfare because they did not succeed to use their forces simultaneously effective. In this manner they have given us the possibility to whip them one after the other.

Belgium was conquered and a large part of France occupied before the French were able to use their main forces at the decisive point. The Russian armies are now being annihilated, while the French are bleeding to death in useless attacks upon our lines of defense, and the British cannot co-operate owing to defective military organization.

If they appear at last with strong forces upon the battlefield, the French will have been finally disposed of, and the Italians have as things look now, no chance at all to take a decisive part in the war. They will hardly climb over the wall of the Alps.

Owing to this disconnection of warfare, which cannot be remedied, the allies will reap the final defeat.

John B. Capers, of 610 Pecan , Fort Worth, Texas, had a significant experience in this particular. He was afflicted with a severe case of constipation and bowel trouble. He spent a good deal of money in trying to find a remedy. To his astonishment, Peruna very quickly relieved him of his bad symptoms. This happened a number of years ago. Since then, Mr. Capers states that he has had similar attacks of trouble, the prominent symptom of which is constipation, and has always found prompt and efficient relief from Peruna. He says: "Up to the time I started using your Peruna I could drink castor oil like water. It did no good. As for salts, they were of no use. Physics of all kinds and classes were used, but we had to call on the fountain syringe for help." Peruna was able to correct this condition completely in Mr. Capers' case, and there is every reason to believe that it was the tonic qualities of Peruna, added to the laxative qualities, that procured this very desirable result. —ADV.

Quick, Painless Way to Remove Hairy Growths

(Helps to Beauty.)

Here is a simple, unfailing way to rid the skin of objectionable hairs: With some powdered delatone and water make enough paste to cover the hairy surface, apply and in about 2 minutes rub off, wash the skin and every trace of hair has vanished. This is quite harmless, but to avoid disappointment be sure to get the delatone in an original package. —ADV.

Ferrero Says Italy Seeks in This War to Regain Prestige

into a war of extermination, in which there is no pity or respect for the conquered. He knows that the enemy will not try to harm him any more than is necessary to compel retreat; that in case of a defeat or a pursuit, there is no killing for the pleasure of killing. One is made a prisoner.

Some Italian Soldiers Still Prisoners of Tripolitans.

The soldiers know that if they fall prisoners they will be interned in a fortress, where they will be kept until the end of the war, and will then be restored to their families; they know that if they fall, wounded, their own comrades as well as the enemy will do whatever is possible to help and cure them.

In wars against belligerent barbarians, be they Abyssinians or Arabians, the soldier risks less on the battlefield, because the adversaries are poorly armed and have few cannon. But in case of defeat the defeated army risks extermination; the wounded are often mutilated and maltreated; the prisoners, if not killed, as is often the case, are condemned to a most painful captivity among barbarians, a captivity which may last for years. In Cyrenacia, for example, among the Senussi, there is a certain number of Italian prisoners, some of whom have fallen into the hands of the Bedouins. Who knows when these unfortunates will again see their motherland?

Are those dangers much more fearful because vague, the reason why European armies are so timid in wars against belligerent barbarians? That which has happened to us in the wars of Abyssinia and Tripoli has befallen the Germans against the Herreros and in a measure the French in Morocco. Everybody knows that in Morocco, France used the metropolitan troops, but that she has been obliged to use them differently and more cautiously than the Colonial troops. The unlimited cruelty of the barbarians intimidates the armies of Europe much more than the machine guns and the 305 cannon. So, then, it is necessary to fight barbarians with a colonial army organized for the purpose, like the French military masterpiece, its colonial army. This explains why the Italian army which fought feebly in Tripoli is so active and brave in Europe against an enemy so well equipped.

The Incident of Adau.

The phenomenon which we are observing is not, then, a miracle. But it is most important because of that fact that our participation in the European war will be a great event in Italian history. In fact, on that account, the military prestige of Italy will finally recover from the blow which the army received in the unfortunate battle of Adua and of which the expedition in Tripoli had not been able to erase the remembrance. In the eyes of a philosopher, the battle of Adua had compromised beyond a just measure our military prestige, because it is absurd to judge what we can do in Europe by what we did on the Abyssinian plains. But philosophers are few in this world, and men judge according to the first impression which things make upon their minds.

How many were in a position to argue that 10,000 Europeans; be they Italians, French, English or Germans, be they armed with cannon and reinforced by 5000 natives, could conquer 100,000 Abyssinians. On the contrary, if such an army should fight the Abyssinians would they not be destined for extermination? The Italians had been conquered by the barbarians; so there could be no allowance either for their valor or their military capacity; thus reasoned the world, and thus would the world have continued to reason had not a new event occurred to erase the first remembrance.

Now we can hope that the event is about to take place. The European war will perhaps give to all decisive proof that the Italian army is no less able to fight than the other European armies, when it is called to fight in Europe with equal armies. And that will be a great benefit which alone will be worth the many sacrifices which the war will cost us. It will remove from the minds of all nations of Europe and America an unjust opinion of Italy, and it will remove from the Italian mind a doubt which for 20 years, from the fatal day of Adua, has preyed upon Italian confidence; a doubt as to whether we would really be much inferior to the other peoples of Europe.

"ROTTEN PEACE" IF GREAT BRITAIN DOESN'T WAKE UP

This Is the Growing Belief There According to American Resident in London.

By an American Residing in London.
Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, Aug. 6.—As an American observer in Great Britain since the first day of the war, I have had exceptional opportunities to come in contact with many influential men of affairs and to see this nation gradually uncoiling for the gigantic test of strength with the Teuton.

Certain indisputable facts have developed as corollary of the first year of the war—at least, so far as Britain is concerned. I would sum them up briefly as follows:

1. Conscription is the biggest issue facing the British nation, with fully 40 per cent of the people favoring it.

2. Lloyd-George is the strongest man in the United Kingdom—has grown from a demagogue to a demi-god.

3. There is a growing belief that on Britain depends the outcome of the war, and that if she does not awaken in six months the conflict will result in a "rotten peace."

4. Britain is feeling a great religious awakening as a result of persistent reverses for the allies.

5. Respect for the United States and President Wilson is more pronounced than at any other time during the war.

Britain Must Do Still More.

I believe the fall of Warsaw has at last indicated to Britons the possibility of having to bear the larger share of the burden of the allies. She has done all, and more, than she promised. But that, it is now clearly seen, is not enough for the purpose in view. The outward calm of a Briton does not prevent the neutral observer who has seen him daily through a year of war from noting the seriousness with which the fall of the Polish capital is understood. It overshadows for him the fall of Liege, Brussels, Antwerp or the recapture of Przemysl or Lemberg. In fact, this last blow focuses the full light of day upon the problem which has agitated his country from the first days of the war and which now, more than ever, stands in bold relief before him—the problem of universal service.

Its advocates tell me now it must and will come within a few months, if for no other reason than the indisputable fact that in Russia and in France the belief grows apace, and come more to the surface each day, that Britain is not doing her whole duty.

"A Rotten Peace."

It has been predicted to me by men of farsightedness that if Britain does not wake up in the next six months the war will be lost; a "rotten peace" at the best, they forecast. I have had men tell me that it is already too late; that if the people of the United States only realized the tragedy of the situation they would enter the war at once to save Anglo-Saxon civilization. These are unduly pessimistic, according to my observations, but I record them to indicate the wide unrest of the British mind.

The censor has been responsible for the lack of knowledge by the people of Britain of the true attitude of the Russian people the last six months. But it is now common knowledge, and even matter of press comment, that dissatisfaction in Russia is growing.

A hint of it was contained in a dispatch from Petrograd a few days ago, to wit: "A Franco-German diversion is now awaited." And on Aug. 2 an additional reminder, as follows: "The fact creates favorable conditions for the active operations of our allies."

With the Russian recovery indefinitely postponed, the soreness of mind of the Czar's people will have auspicious circumstances under which to be fostered. There is but one way to dispel such unfortunate conclusions, so numerous well informed Britons have pointed out to me, and that would be by an immediate declaration here of universal service.

The "Black Months."

The "black months" has been the prevalent description here of the last three months. Out of them has come the conviction that eventually Britain must shoulder the greater part of the allies' burden if the Teuton is to be downed, but to prevail over the enemy there must be a full and unreserved effort of the nation. No longer must thousands of ablebodied young men be permitted to parade about the streets, unmindful of their duty, or other thousands be permitted to join every other sort of war organization except that in which they should be enrolled and seeing service.

One of the most remarkable developments which has come to this country within the last 12-month has been that of its departure from the cocksureness of a year ago. Despite a noticeable apathy about the war in the lower classes and the failure of the middle class to respond to the invitations for volunteers, there is a general recognition of the fact that the war must be continued.

200 ARRESTED IN BRUSSELS

LONDON, Aug. 21.—A dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Co. from Amsterdam today says:

"Persons arriving from Brussels report that there were 200 arrests there yesterday of Belgians who were demonstrating grief on the anniversary of the German occupation. Places of amusement that had been closed as a sign of sorrow, were forcibly re-opened. Those arrested were mainly women and children.

FUNERAL TODAY FOR GIRL WHO DIED UNDER ANESTHETIC

Pulmotor Was Used in Vain to Restore Helen Gromley, Soldan Honor Student.

Miss Helen Tracey Gromley, 15 years old, of 5105 Cote Brilliante avenue, an honor student in the junior class of Soldan High School, died under an anesthetic in the Deaconess Hospital, 4125 West Belle place, Friday afternoon, when she was being prepared for an operation to remove an abscess of the throat.

As soon as she was under the influence of the anesthetic Dr. F. C. Simon, who was to perform the operation, saw that she was breathing with difficulty. He began measures to restore her, using a pulmoter for two hours, but they were unsuccessful.

Four months ago the girl suffered a severe attack of tonsilitis, after which the abscess formed in her throat. The operation was recommended by physicians several weeks ago, but the girl refused to undergo it until Friday.

Coroner Padberg accepted the statements of the physician and nurses as to the circumstances of the girl's death, and will not hold a formal inquest. The funeral will be conducted this afternoon.

Miss Gromley was a daughter of John W. Gromley, chief yard clerk for the Terminal Railroad.

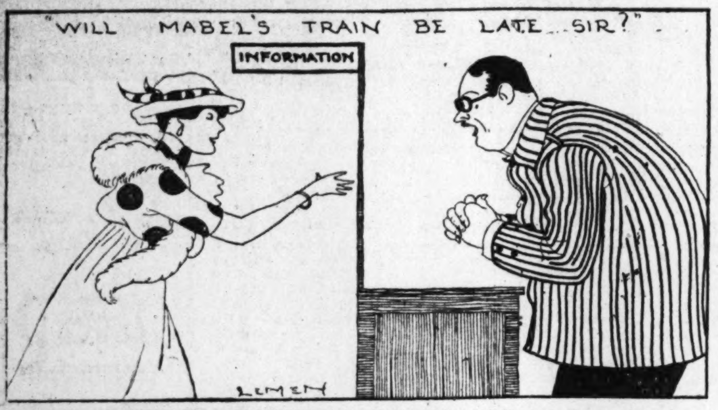
ARABELLA MEETS THE TRAIN.



"WILL MABEL'S TRAIN BE LATE...SIR?"
INFORMATION

MISS ARABELLA SIMPKINS BROWN, the fairest of creation,
To meet a friend who came to town went down to Union Station;
She found a sign on every gate, and bulletins and tables,
But nothing there to indicate which train of them was Mabel's.
She asked the Information Man: "Will Mabel's train be late, sir?"
He says: "Is Mabel on the Van?" which greatly agitates her;
For she remembers she forgot what train she went to wait for,
But like as not, she thought, that's what that man is at the gate for.
And so she asked the gateman when she might expect friend Mabel.
"I'd like to tell," he said, "but then, you see, I am not able,
Unless you know what road she's on, the Katy or the Frisco:
All aboard for Hickory Lawn, and Musket Ridge and Cisco."
The Station Master then she met, but Mabel he'd not sighted,
Which made Miss Arabella fret and feel that she was slighted.
And so she waited thereabout while many trains departed,
And some came in and switched about and backed and stopped and started.
At last to try it once again she went to "Information,"
When, lo! A sight she saw just then that gave her great elation.
Exclaiming: "Sir, I wish you WOULD please hunt up Arabella."

A CHINA BOY MESSAGE.

PEKIN, Aug. 18.

I SEND this collect because not knowing if you will print it or not. Honorable Yuan Shi Kai, president for all Chinese who have heard about it being a republic, has been completely stung by Kaiser bug which is in skull cap with little red button on top. Recently of late many times frequently he has been heard saying: 'Me and Confucius' which is very imperial sign, thank you, that he would like to sit on high throne of Manchu dynasty and let feet hang down. Reason for this is that Yuan Shi Kai has read in all papers that Man Hoo Chu is man who do. Therefore accordingly he would like to be Manchu Emperor and do everybody.

Yuan Shi Kai is not member of dynasty union. He traces ancestors back to week before last. Before that time the tracing was done by Sheriff, if at all.

American professor of Yuan Sop Kins university has advised Yuan Shi Kai that he has Pekin for Emperor job. This is joke. To get full effect it must be printed in Chinese which I hope you will do.

Many persons in China think that as president Yuan Shi Kai is fine Emperor. Being very fat president is no chance for him being elected again. Therefore he takes bull moose by the horns so he won't have to teach law when term expires.

Little boy who used to be Emperor says he should worry who gets job. He is now batting .300 in public school baseball league, which is better than sitting under fierce tungsten which beats upon throne. Batting eye is no good for fouling off back-stabs in dynasty game but is fine for baseball.

Yours Truly,
China Boy.

FASHION NOTES.

STEEL rails are coming back. It is expected that for several seasons they will be used to run railroads on. They are said to be much more stable and sustaining than the water on which many of our railroads have been running.

Expenses will be worn very low this season. Trains will still be in fashion, but there will be a lack of the directory frills which have been so much in vogue.

While dividends are out of fashion there is no reason why coupon cutters should be thrown into the scrap heap. They will be found very useful in cutting sheets of trading stamps down to the proper size for pasting in the book.

Bonuses will not be carried by retiring railroad officials this year. Pullman porters will now be the only class of employes to receive gratuities of this kind.

Railroad directors of an entirely new style will soon be seen. They will know which end of a locomotive is the cowcatcher and which is the tender. Formerly the word "tender" was not in the director's lexicon.

A LOOK AROUND

BY CLARK M'ADAMS.

THE Plattsburg idea spreads about as fast as Germany's chance of winning the war seems to increase. There is no denying that the entire movement for national defense depends upon the outcome of the war. If the allies recover to the extent of making their sympathizers as sanguine as they were a year ago the whole military propaganda in this country will collapse. Plattsburg will resume its former status as a small New York city in which there is a lively business in patent medicines, the Navy League will be forgotten, and Col. Roosevelt and his four boys will cease to drill. Upon the other hand, continued victory for the Germans, with a growing prospect that they are to win despite what looked like the odds against them, will boom these activities. We shall all have to join some organization of a military or naval nature and prepare ourselves as best we may for the unpleasant business of killing people and getting killed. It is not a prospect which any of us faces with any enthusiasm. It was much more satisfactory to be a civilian without any leaning to militarism or any fear of having to resort to that sort of thing. The truth is that except for some of the people allied by blood with the Germans, and for all we know understanding them better, this country is afraid of that warlike nation. Its absolute preparedness has made a profound impression upon Americans, and it is not half as hard to convince someone that our unpreparedness for war is suicide as it was before the German armies proved what preparedness means. The average man in this country knows how true it is that we are altogether unfitted for war. He can judge our condition pretty accurately by considering his own helplessness if attacked. He knows nothing of the use of firearms. He could not hit the side of a barn with the most improved weapon. The rigors of camp life would kill him in a jiffy. He cannot even go on a camping trip any more. Rendered effeminate by ease and comfort, accustomed to shelter from the storm, and readily succumbing either to the hot sun or the cold wind, the best he could hope for would be that the Germans might kill him as humanely as possible and be kind to his folks.

WE should have to have sufficient warning that we were to be attacked and time to get hard. The militarists, whom Mr. Bryan is pleased to call the jingoes, insist that we shall never get any such warning. If the Germans win, they will simply hit us—bing! and it will all be over. We shall have to speak German, just as Mr. Kipling says. The most refined cruelties will be practiced upon us until we learn to sing "Deutschland Ueber Alles!" and forget that we were ever anything else. Mr. Bryan is himself a fair example of the type of citizen which ridicules this. A soft, flabby old gentleman who would hope in extremity to kill the enemy with the magic of words, his usefulness, if he has any, would cease on the day the Kaiser fired the first shot. There are a great many of us who have so many German friends and like German people so well that we can't see anything in it to save our lives, but Col. Roosevelt says we are dwelling in a Fool's Paradise, and Gen. Wood says this disposition grows among us so fast that it would be well to corral and drill what males we have left before they all disappear! Isn't that a terrible way to speak of us? One would think we were all hiding under the bed, and that every time the Kaiser growls we groan in the as-

Will Gladly Recommend Both Fruitola and Traxo

Mrs. Norforth Says She Had Suffered With Gall-Stones for Several Years Without Obtaining Relief.

In a letter to the Pinus laboratories, Mrs. Rosa Norforth, Monticello, Ill., says: "I cannot praise Fruitola and Traxo too highly as I consider it saved my life. I suffered with gall-stones for several years and could not get any relief until your preparation was recommended to me. It has been six months since I took the last bottle and I feel that I am entirely well. Have anyone doubting the merit of your preparation write me as I will be only too glad to recommend Fruitola and Traxo to anyone suffering from gall-stones."

Fruitola and Traxo are the names used to identify two preparations that are taken in combination. Fruitola acts on the intestinal organs as a powerful lubricant, giving almost instant relief. Traxo is a splendid tonic, acting on the liver and stomach with most beneficial results and is recommended in connection with Fruitola to build up and restore the system that has become run down and weakened through the suffering incident to the derangement of the digestive organs.

In the files of the Pinus laboratories at Monticello, Ill., are many letters gratefully acknowledging the satisfactory results following the use of Fruitola and Traxo. Arrangements have been made for the distribution of these excellent remedies by leading drug stores everywhere.

MRS. ROSA NORFORTH

For the convenience of the public, the Pinus laboratories, Monticello, Ill., have made arrangements to supply Fruitola and Traxo through leading drug stores.

In St. Louis they can be obtained at Wolff-Wilson Drug Co. 6th and Washington.

Causes and the Present Status of Balkan Crisis

Venezelos' Return a Complication

By FRANK H. SIMONDS.

(Copyright, 1915, by the New York Tribune.)

TO the neutral observer the poetic justice of the present Balkan situation is unmistakable. For generations Europe has played with the Balkan States; they have been the pawns to be moved hither and thither as it pleased London, Petrograd, Berlin or Vienna. The ambitions of the races that inhabit this blood soaked corner of Europe, their longings, aspirations, dreams, have been ignored. Condemned to live under the Turk, to endure endless agonies because the policies of great powers crossed in their territories, not only have all these states suddenly become masters of their own destinies, but all Europe is facing Armageddon because of one of them, and Czars, Emperors and Kings are bidding for the favors of those that still remain neutral.

To get an insight into the present tangle, which is the Balkan crisis, it is necessary to review hastily the more important events in the history of Europe which concern the people of the Southeast, to note the conflicting claims and purposes of the great Powers concerned, and finally, the even more antagonistic purposes of the little states themselves.

In Balkan history 1903 is a date of real importance, because it marks the assassination of the King of Servia. At the moment the world saw in this crime only an act of unspeakable barbarity. The unfortunate Alexander became something of a royal martyr in the eyes of a world which knew next to nothing of the facts that lay south of the Danube.

Yet the crime had two great consequences. It was the beginning of the regeneration of Servia; it was the end of Austrian domination in the little Slav state. Alexander had been the tool of Vienna. He had been but the creature that Ballplatz moved back and forth to meet the Bulgarian pawn, similarly operated by Russia. With the return of a Karagoergievitch to the Servian throne, the Slav state changed sides and became a soldier of the Czar. Henceforth Austria had to face a foe on the south.

The immediate consequence was a long series of trade wars, the famous "pig wars" of other years, so named because Austria closed her frontiers to Servian pigs and well-nigh ruined the little agricultural state, which derived its chief income from its pork products.

Turkish Revolution Broke Out.

While this petty quarreling was going forward the Young Turkish revolution broke out. Turkey, the ally of Vienna and Berlin, the master of Macedonia, was suddenly torn by an internal revolution which sent Abdul Hamid into exile and prison, destroyed the Turkish army, left Turkey weak and helpless. But in its conception, the Young Turkish idea aimed at restoring Turkish power. While this idea still seemed realizable Austria, having occupied Bosnia since the Congress of Berlin, and now fearing the revitalized Turkish nation would seek to reclaim it, solemnly annexed Bosnia, thus tearing up the great Berlin document.

But the annexation of Bosnia destroyed all the hopes of that greater Servia which all Serbs had cherished for centuries. It placed definitely under Hapsburg rule the 2,000,000 Serbs living east of the Adriatic and west of the Servian kingdom.

"Russia, France and Great Britain protested against this act. There was a moment in 1908 when it seemed likely that Armageddon would come, but Germany appeared in "shining armor," rattled the saber and the triple entente gave up their protest. Austrian success in the Balkans seemed assured; the eventual advance of Austria through Servia to Salonica appeared inevitable.

But two Powers now entered definitely into an anti-Austrian campaign. Italy, seeking a balance for Austrian gains, promptly picked her quarrel with Turkey over Tripoli and went to war. Russia, defeated in the field, began to construct the Balkan confederacy which was to precipitate the Balkan wars.

Italian attacks upon Turkey, still in the throes of reorganization, disclosed the weakness of the Osmanli. No sooner had the peace of Lausanne ended the Tripolitan war than Russian diplomacy achieved the welding together of the three Slav states of the south, Servia, Bulgaria and Montenegro and the first Balkan war followed. Greece was not a party to this alliance, but Venizelos, percieving the propitious hour, sent the Greek army against the Turk.

Turkish Army Failed.

Austria, Germany, the whole statesmanship of the Central Powers looked uneasily out upon the open conflict, but were too satisfied in the strength of the German-trained Turkish army to interfere. Their mistake was patent to the world, when Lule Burgas, Kumanovo and Salonica had brought swift destruction to the Osmanli.

When in 1912 the conquerors of the Turk went to London to make terms of peace it was promptly disclosed that Bulgaria, Servia and Montenegro had gone to war with a definite bargain. The Serb states were to have northern Albania to the Skumbi river and a thin paring of Macedonia, marked by a line from the Serbo-Bulgarian frontier to Lake Achrida.

The rest of Macedonia was left to Bulgaria. Even a part of the Servian prospective profit about Uskub was made conditional on the decision of the Czar. As for Greece, she had not made any ante-bellum agreement and her claim rested only on conquest.

Austrian diplomacy now seized upon the rivalries of the Balkan States to destroy this Balkan confederacy which Russia had constructed. First of all, Vienna declared that Albania could not be annexed by Servia and Greece, but must be made a separate state. This deprived Servia of most of her prospective gain under her treaty with Bulgaria. Russia protested, but Germany again signified her readiness to go to war to support the Austrian claims, and neither France nor Great Britain was willing to back Russia in a general conflict over a few square miles of Albanian wilderness.

Servia was thus compelled to give over Albania, the Montenegrins to abandon Scutari. But Servia had conquered all of that portion of Macedonia ascribed to Bulgaria in the preliminary treaty and now demanded that as compensation for her sacrifices in Albania she receive her conquests. Greece, too, having beaten Bulgaria to Salonica by a short head, claimed the great city, the real prize of the Balkans, aside from Constantinople. The result was as Austria had expected. The Balkan league fell apart, Servia and Greece joined hands against Bulgaria and the second Balkan war resulted.

The Second Balkan War.

This war was precipitated by Bulgaria, confident of victory and driven forward by Austrian urgings. In vain the Czar sought by personal dispatches addressed to Bulgarian ministers and to the Bulgarian Czar, himself, to prevent the strift. For answer, the Bulgarian armies in Macedonia, suddenly, treacherously attacked their Greek and Servian allies without a declaration of war. But once more Austrian calculations went astray. The attack failed. The Greek and Servian armies were victorious and the Bulgarian forces were driven out of Macedonia.

Meantime, a new factor demanded attention. Rumania, with a Hohenzollern king, had always been reckoned an Austro-German ally. By taking Bessarabia in the Russo-Turkish war and thus despoiling an ally, Russia had made a permanent enemy of Rumania. But Rumania saw in the new and greater Bulgaria a dangerous rival. Bulgarians already were declaring that they would take from Rumania the Dobrudja province, gained in the Russo-Turkish war and the sole Rumanian window of the sea. To Rumanian demands for the cession by Bulgaria of the fortress of Silistria, the real key to Rumania's coast province, Austria, busy flattering Bulgaria, turned a deaf ear.

But Russia, now thoroughly enraged at Bulgaria's course, gave full consent to Rumania to attack Bulgaria and at the moment when the Greek and Servian armies were winning in Macedonia, a Rumanian army crossed the Danube and entered Bulgaria. Finally a Turkish army came back to Adrianople. Surrounded by enemies, her armies beaten, her resources exhausted, Bulgaria gave up the fight.

The Treaty of Bucharest.

The results of the second Balkan war were embodied in the treaty of Bucharest. Servia received all of Macedonia west of the Rhodopians, Greece not only Salonica, but Kavala, Seres and Drama. Rumania took the whole Silestrian region between the Danube and the Black Sea with some of the richest of Bulgarian lands. Turkey took back all but a tiny fraction of Thrace. After her great efforts Bulgaria acquired nothing but a little strip of territory fronting the Aegean, but inaccessible by reason of mountains. Of what she had hoped to gain she had lost all but a few hundred thousands of people. Servia and Greece had each acquired above 15,000 square miles of territory and 2,000,000 people, Bulgaria had gained fewer than half a million. No fewer than a million Bulgars had been lost to Greece and Servia and the whole dream of Bulgarian statesmen and people for a generation had been destroyed.

From the second Balkan war, then, Bulgaria retired sullen, resentful, revengeful. All seemed lost, but there was no surrender of Bulgarian purpose. Meantime Russia had scored another great victory and Austrian diplomacy was bankrupt. A new strong Servia was looking across the Danube into Bosnia and Croatia, pan-Servian dreams had assumed as perilous proportions as those of Balkan patriots half a century before. Servia already felt herself a second Sardinia and backed by Russia dreamed of "redeeming" the millions of southern Slavs from Trieste to the Drav and from Laibach to Belgrade.

It was the realization of the meaning of the Servian dream which precipitated the great war. Austrian diplomacy, twice defeated by Russian, having twice seen Russian influence increased by Balkan wars, recognizing the Servian menace, took advantage of the murder of the Archduke to strike at Servia and give Russia the choice between abandoning her little Slav protege and risking Armageddon. Russia's answer was the first step in the colossal drama now going forward.

Situation When War Began.

The outbreak of the great war last August found the Balkans in this situation: Servia already was engaged, Greece and Rumania were bound to Servia by treaty to preserve the treaty of Bucharest, but both were ruled by friends of Germany. Charles of Rumania was a Hohenzollern. Constantine's wife was the sister of the Kaiser. The courts of both states were strongly pro-German. The people, on the contrary, were strongly inclined to the allies.

But Greece was unable to go to the aid of Servia, because there was a steady prospect that Servian defeat would lead Bulgaria to seek to reclaim not alone the portion of Macedonia held by Servia but that occupied by Greece, including both Kavala and Salonica. Greece was then immobilized by Bulgarian menace and by the court sympathis with Germany. Rumania, quite in the same fix, was held by the fear that if she attacked Austria and were defeated, Bulagria would take her revenge.

But the Rumanian situation was still more complex. In Austria the province of Bukovina, just across the Rumanian frontier, is populated by Slavs and Rumanians. In Hungary the majority of the people of Transylvania are Rumanians and those of the Banat of Temesvar are Serb and Rumanian. Finally, the mass of the people of the Russian province of Bessarabia are Rumanian and before the Russo-Turkish war much of Bessarabia had belonged to Rumania. Rumania, therefore, began to make a price for her services. She would fight with the Germans if Austria would give her Transylvania and Bukovina. She would fight with Russia if Russia would give her Bessarabia and promise her Bukovina and both Transylvania and the Banat of Temesvar after the Teutonic allies had been defeated.

Austria promptly rejected these terms; they meant the instant rebellion of Hungary. Russia was not less prompt. Bessarabia she would not give nor the Slav half of Bukovina. For Servia she claimed the Panscova portion of Temesvar, lying opposite to Belgrade and peopled by Serbs. Here was a deadlock. Meantime, Bulgaria insisted that she would not refrain from attacking Rumania unless Rumania gave over her stealings of the peace of Bucharest, including Silistria.

Italian Problem Came.

Meantime, the Italian problem raised new difficulties. Italy claimed Dalmatia and Istria, but the mass of the people of these Austrian provinces, apart from a few coast towns, are Slavs, Croats, Serbs and Slovenes. Servia was willing to give back Macedonia to Bulgaria if she were assured her race brothers along the Adriatic and in addition Northern Albania, of which Austria had deprived her. But Italy insisted that she should have Dalmatia as far south as the Narenta River, and demanded that the Kingdom of Albania should be maintained intact. This left Servia with a much reduced future and with no readiness to surrender Macedonia to Bulgaria.

Despairing of any help from Rumania or Bulgaria, the allies turned to Greece. Ready now to launch their attack by fleet upon the Dardanelles, they wanted the Greek army to make the landward attack. Venizelos, the great Greek statesman, promptly lent friendly ear to the proposals. Before Greece could move, she must propitiate Bulgaria. This could be done by retroceding Kavala, Drama and Seres. In return the allies offered Smyrna and the Asiatic littoral from Rhodes to Mitylene. This offer Venizelos accepted.

King Spoils the Plan.

But King Constantine spoiled the plan. Hellenic hatred of Bulgaria was very intense; the proposal to cede to Bulgaria the purely Greek city of Kavala, the prize of the second Balkan war, aroused instant Greek protest. Venizelos insisted. The King at first agreed, then backed out. The King denied this publicly. Meantime, the allied fleet had tried to force the Straits and failed. This spoiled all chance of Greek support. Venizelos resigned. Greece became the creature of German diplomacy represented by the Goumaris ministry and until the recent election returned Venizelos to power, Greek neutrality was assured.

With the return of Venizelos a new situation has developed. But can the great Cretan, complete as is his hold upon his countrymen, persuade them to give over Kavala to the Bulgar? This may be doubted. Unless he can do this, Greek entrance into the war may bring Bulgaria in on the other side, and this would be a disaster, not a victory for the allies. Meantime the entrance of Italy has reduced the resources of the allies for purchasing Greece. Greece and Italy are rivals in the Aegean and along the Adriatic. Presumably, Italy would strongly oppose the cession to Greece of territory in Asia Minor or in Southern Albania.

The failure of Venizelos having removed Greece from the field for the moment, Bulgaria promptly occupied the auction block. She was prepared to send her army against the Turks, and this would mean the prompt ending of the Dardanelles deadlock, if the allies would persuade Servia to surrender Macedonia. Bulgar title to this was clear, if the desire of the inhabitants and questions of language and race were to be considered. If in addition she could be assured that Rumania would give back Silestria and that her claims to Kavala be weighed in the grand rearrangement following the war, Bulgaria was ready to take up the old road to the Chatalja.

Then Servia Balked.

But now Servia balked. She had made a wonderful fight, twice routed Austrian

SOAP IS BAD FOR THE HAIR

Soap should be used very sparingly, if at all, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle and ruins it.

The best thing for scalp use is just ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than soap or anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.—ADV.

armies, suffered from battle and from typhus fever. To please Italy she had given over her claim to Dalmatia north of the Narenta. To please Rumania she had been prepared to make sacrifices in Temesvar. To satisfy Italy further she had agreed to abide by the decision of the powers as to Northern Albania. By what right could they now expect her to surrender Macedonia, conquered in 1912, now the sole avenue open to her to draw supplies from the outside world? To this the allies replied by appeals and warnings while the cannon of Germany gave new warnings on the Danube frontier.

When these lines are written the Servian Parliament is meeting to consider the question as to whether it will make the all-important sacrifice to Bulgaria.

But Bulgaria, like Rumania, also was negotiating with the other side. From the Turks she demanded Adrianople and the part of Thrace, assured her by the agreement of London, that is, the region north of the Enos-Midia line, as the price of her neutrality. The Turk has replied by vague offers of railway concessions west of Adrianople, mere trackage rights, to let Bulgaria reach her port of Dedeagetch. This, too, is unsatisfactory. Finally Germany is endeavoring by loans to keep Bulgaria neutral and finds a powerful ally in the Czar Ferdinand, who was born a petty Austrian Prince.

Summarizing briefly, it will be seen that the following difficulties face the allied statesmen, who are trying to restore the old Balkan alliance and enlist the Balkan states against the Turk and the Teuton.

Rumania, having once been betrayed by Russia, hesitates to accept Russian promises and presses claims to Slav-inhabited regions in Bukovina and Temesvar.

Servian concessions to Bulgaria are halted by the claims of Italy on Serv-inhabited lands in Dalmatia, and by the determination of Rome to preserve Albania intact and thus make it an Italian protectorate after the war.

Greece is reluctant to cede lands inhabited by Greeks to Bulgaria. She is angered by Italian pretensions to Southern Albania, which is inhabited by an Albanian population closely affiliated with the Greeks in religion, by the Italian occupation of Rhodes and the Dodecanesus, which are by history and by the tongue and tradition of their people Hellenic. She is doubtful of allied power to give Smyrna as a compensation for Kavala.

Bulgaria makes her entrance into the war conditional on the cessions of Greek, Servian and Rumanian territory, which the allies cannot compel, and have so far been unable to persuade the present owners to make.

Finally, Germany profits very greatly by the fact that the rulers of Rumania, Greece and Bulgaria are either Austro-German by derivation or related to the German monarch by marriage.

Common Peril and Common Profit.

On the other hand the real point of advantage of the allies is discoverable in the fact that Austrian success constitutes a common danger for all the Balkan states. Only if Austria is defeated can Rumania hope to obtain Bukovina, Transylvania and Temesvar. If Austria destroys Servia, Bulgaria will be placed between a new Austrian province descending to the Aegean at Salonica and the Austro-Germany ally, Turkey. Macedonia will be permanently lost and with it all hope of regaining Adrianople.

Greece must face the peril of an Austrian seizure of Salonica. She must also consider the permanent hostility of a defeated Italy and the peril of a continuing supremacy in the Mediterranean of the sea powers. She will also be confronted by the still enduring hatred of Bulgaria, who will not be restrained from attacking her if the chance comes. All hope of reviving the glories of ancient Hellas and later Byzantium, Asia Minor, will also be lost and with this loss may also be joined the ultimate reconquest by the Turk of Mitylene, Chios and Samos.

Such then, is the present state of unstable equilibrium in the Near East. It can be indefinitely prolonged if the German threat to hack a way to the Golden Horn for ammunition is abandoned, but unless the long-standing rivalries of race and the influence of the Balkan Germanophiles in the courts of Sofia, Athens and Bucharest prevail against the self-interests of the States, it is difficult to see how the allies can ultimately lose their fight.

Moreover, it is necessary to recognize that any real success of the forces now besieging Gallipoli, which should bring about the fall of Constantinople, would leave the Balkan States at the mercy of the quadruple alliance for all time without any claim upon their sympathy or generosity.

RUSSIA PERMITS JEWS TO SETTLE IN FORBIDDEN CITIES

Moscow, Petrograd and Suburban Residences of Czar Still Denied to Them; Decision Temporary.

PETROGRAD, Aug. 21.—Owing to the occupation by the Germans of a great part of the Jewish settlements and the inclusion of the remainder in the sphere of military operations, the condition of the Jews is critical. Five hundred thousand Jewish residents have been deported and a probably greater number have taken refuge in the interior provinces, where they have no legal rights.

Prince Cherbatoff, the Minister of the Interior, brought the question of their status before the council of the empire and that body had decided temporarily to permit Jews to settle in the cities of the Empire with the exception of those of Moscow and Petrograd and the suburban residences of Emperor Nicholas.

PLANS FOR WAR WORK STOPPED

Harriman's Widow Forbids Turning of Shops Into Munitions Factory.

OMAHA, Neb., Aug. 21.—It was announced here today that preparations being made by a subsidiary of the Union Pacific company to change its extensive shops here into a war munitions factory to fill European orders have been discontinued upon orders from Mrs. E. H. Harriman, widow of the late financier.

The Post-Dispatch is the only evening newspaper in St. Louis that receives or publishes news gathered by the Associated Press.

Mr. Harbison's Department is now prepared to receive and execute orders for Costumes, Tailored Suits and Motor Coats from our importations of Novelty Woolen Fabrics and Velvets.

CONFISCATION OF BEER FOR TROOPS HINTED AT IN GERMANY

Breweries Can Escape It by Contributing Beverage Held to Be Indispensable to Soldiers.

BERLIN, Aug. 21.—Confiscation of a part of the German beer production is a possible, though not probable, step, because of the abnormal state of affairs in the country. This course will be resorted to by the Government only in case the breweries fail to set aside 20 per cent of their normal production for the use of the army.

In the semi-official announcement denying that any confiscation is contemplated immediately, it is stated:

"With the strongly patriotic feelings that inspire all branches of our people it is assumed without question that the breweries will bear present conditions in mind and will be willing to do their share toward the well-being of our troops."

The statement adds that the soldiers have to buy the "beer, which is indispensable to their strengthening and well-being," out of their own pockets, a circumstance which of necessity dictates to the army authorities in their establishment of prices paid or to be paid.

INSPECTION BUREAU SATISFIES FIRE INSURANCE MEN

Objections to New City Department That Is to Look After Wiring Withdrawn.

Director of Public Utilities Hooke, by the selection yesterday of six employes of the Fire Prevention Bureau for positions as deputies in the city's new bureau of inspection of interior wiring, caused a withdrawal of objection by the insurance companies to the new department.

It was announced afterward that the Fire Prevention Bureau, which has been maintained in St. Louis for many years by the fire insurance companies, will be abolished and that the insurance companies will accept the inspection by the city's inspectors in fixing fire insurance rates.

The insurance companies objected to municipal inspection of wiring, contending that politics would enter into the appointment of inspectors and that inspections would not be thorough.

When notified of this objection, and told that the insurance companies intended to continue their bureau, Director Hooke began negotiations with them. The result was that Director Hooke agreed to accept the bureau's men as deputies.

R. H. Robinson of 4243 Cleveland avenue, an electrical contractor with 25 years' experience, was appointed chief deputy.

The deputies taken from the Fire Prevention Bureau are Preintt Creecy, George Lehmann, R. J. Zabrasky, H. M. Mathews, R. J. Scanland and Louis Heininger. The seventh deputy is J. H. Mackay. His appointment was approved by H. C. Henley, chief of the Fire Prevention Bureau, and H. M. Blossom, representing the insurance companies.

The appointments are temporary, and the men must take the efficiency examination when it is prepared by the Efficiency Board.

AUSTRALIA TO DOUBLE ITS QUOTA OF ARMY ENLISTMENTS

Complete Brigade of Infantry Also Will Be Sent to the Front in November.

Correspondence of Associated Press.

MELBOURNE, Australia, July 20.—The recent appeal from the British War Office for more soldiers has been met with such an increase in recruiting that the Australian Government will be able to double the October and November reinforcements, making them 10,526 for each of those months, instead of 5263, the usual monthly quota. It will also be possible to send to the front in November a complete brigade of infantry, and this offer has been accepted.

When the troops now ready for the front have embarked, Australia will have dispatched 80,000 men to the firing line.

The movement of the large quotas of troops this fall will require greatly increased transportation facilities, a problem to which the newly created minister for the navy, Jens A. Jensen, is devoting his attention. Some of the largest and finest vessels in Australia have been taken over by the Government until now there are 85 steamers under the control of the naval transport department.

Former Gov. W. L. Douglas of Massachusetts Is 70 Today.

Possibly no man's photograph has been published in more different kinds of publications; and especially in the daily newspapers of the United States than that of W. L. Douglas, president and active head of the shoe company bearing his name. He is 70 years of age today—not 70 years old, possibly 70 years young. At the age of three score and ten years, said to be the quota allotted to man, W. L. Douglas is still the active head of one of the largest shoe factories in the world. He was born in Plymouth, England, and served as the forty-second Governor of Massachusetts. It is said that his administration was one of the most popular since the landing of the Mayflower.

The company's factory is at Brockton. President Douglas' summer home is within easy motoring distance of the factory and his employes say that "he is always on the job."

"Looking Around" by Clark McAdams

surance that it is our turn next. We are told that our mistake is in not looking at the Germans as a conquering race. There have been several of these, it seems, and they have in turn reduced all other races to submission. It has nothing to do with kind individuals or humane friends we happen to have of German descent. There were as truly nice people in the hosts of Genghiz Khan who killed 5,000,000 people before the world gave up, and as certainly people like the Germans we know and esteem in the ranks of Tamerlane when he overran Europe. The great flaw in our feeling of security is that it is not based upon history. It is merely based upon a local and immediate experience which no wise man lets fool him for a minute. So there you are!

CHICAGO takes this seriously enough. Like New York she is to have her Plattsburg camp. It will open in September, and a great many men are preparing to go into camp and achieve proficiency in the manual of arms. There is no indication of anything of the sort here. The local branch of the Navy League is active, but probably because we know Germans a little better than they do at Chicago and think it is a war between nations instead of races, there is no widespread disposition in St. Louis to be alarmed. There are so many of us with such good friends among the Germans that we would be perfectly content to let them shoot us if we have so far misjudged them, and we know there are many Germans who would rather be shot than have us suspect that they have any racial designs. Some of them have openly sympathized with Germany, but no more so, perhaps, than many people of English and French descent have sympathized with the allies. Neutrality is one thing, and what Col. Roosevelt and Gen. Wood are talking about is another. We expect the next session of Congress to do whatever is necessary in view of the disturbed state of mind the world around, and we cannot help feeling that our own attitude toward Germany is more conducive to peace than that of the jingoes. If we must become soldiers, we can do it with as much spirit as anybody, and if fight we must we shall fight like wildcats. If there are any number of people who think we should begin at once, we will rope off a place for them, as they have done at Plattsburg, and they can make themselves as hard as they like. We only object to sleeping out and marching around from morning till night unless our national security is at stake. If the Germans are going to torpedo everything at sea, whether we like it or not we shall not like it, and in the end we may even go to war about it; but that Germany means to scoop us in with everything else just as soon as she can get around to us, with no better motive than to become the dominant race we do not believe. We don't want to get in the way of anyone drilling who does believe it; but people drilling, in turn, must not expect us to drill, too. That seems fair, doesn't it?

Lime Against Tuberculosis

In the May 25, 1912, issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association appeared this statement concerning calcium (lime) medication in the treatment of tuberculosis:

"Under the systematic, continued and persistent regime of calcium assimilation, Van Gieson has seen a number of his patients improve. * The sputum clears up of tubercle bacilli, which finally disappear, and the patients are discharged with healed pulmonary tuberculosis."

Ethical journals seldom speak so positively about a remedial agent, yet this testimony coincides with that from many consumptives who have secured like results through the use of Eckman's Alterative.

Since calcium is a constituent of this remedy, its healing power may be due to the way this element is so combined with other valuable ingredients as to be easily assimilated.

Eckman's Alterative contains no opiates, narcotics or habit-forming drugs, so it is safe to try.

Make It Easy for the Baby in Summer

Many of the Hot-Weather Troubles Can Easily Be Avoided.

If the mother will see to it that the bowels are kept regular, much of the illness to which children are most susceptible during hot weather can be prevented.

A mild laxative, administered at regular intervals, will prove an excellent preventive of summer complaints that are caused by inactive bowels. The combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin, sold in drug stores under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is excellent for children, being pleasant to the taste, gentle yet positive in action, and free from opiate or narcotic drug of any description. It acts naturally, without griping or other discomfort, and is altogether dependable.

The cleansing of the bowels will most effectively check an attack of diarrhea by expelling the foreign matter and poisons that irritate and inflame the tissues.

In every home a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin should be on hand, ready for use when occasion requires. It costs only fifty cents a bottle and is sold in drug stores everywhere. A free trial bottle can be obtained by writing to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 453 Washington St., Monticello, Ill.

CITY'S ART MERIT PUT TO FRONT BY LIBRARY EXHIBIT

Critic Says It Contains Works Which Would Grace Any of the Big National Displays.

By F. E. A. CURLEY.
Former Curator of the City Art Museum.

The exhibition in the Central Library by the St. Louis Art League of 70 or more selected pictures by men and women of St. Louis, puts the merit of the city's art fairly up to the community.

The exhibition is, of course, of uneven merit. It is but mild appreciation and obvious fact, however, to say that the exhibit contains pictures which would grace any of the big yearly national shows in New York or elsewhere.

It is time for St. Louis to wake up to the actual merit of the work now done in this city in art. Nothing else, not even the wholesale purchase of old masters, could do so much toward getting for St. Louis the standing it should have as an art appreciative community.

In criticising the artists represented in the Art League exhibition, we may as well realize that under present conditions to cavil at their abilities is almost like looking a gift horse in the mouth. To lash them for their shortcomings is to whip ourselves over their shoulders, unconsciously. These artists would have done better if we had made their improvement possible by discriminating encouragement. Lack of that encouragement has not been a constructive influence. It has caused some of the best of our artists to leave and it has hindered and limited those who remain.

Meanwhile, however, art and art appreciation have developed in St. Louis to a degree which is not at all realized, and should make these unfavorable conditions a thing of the past. The time has come when a substantial movement to make the city a genuine center of art, and nationally recognized as such, has in it the probabilities of success.

Many Good Pictures by Women.

In the present exhibition at the Library, one of the interesting features is the display of many good pictures by St. Louis women. These pictures may be taken as representing the esthetic sense, cleverness and adaptability of several hundred St. Louis women who have been students of the School of Fine Arts, and whose natural love for the beautiful has been developed by sound technical training.

The vigorous and vibrant landscapes painted by Mrs. Viola Miller Longmire may be submitted to artists and critics without hesitation.

In one or two recent art exhibitions of the Art League have been shown pictures of remarkable decorative quality by a young artist for whom critics have a quite unanimous appreciation. This is Caroline Blackman. A set of six of her works recently exhibited by the Art League has been published by a Chicago art concern. In the present exhibition a fanciful composition for an overmantel decoration shows charming arrangement of figures and colors.

Miss Cornelius Maury, Mrs. Emily Bausch Summa, Mrs. Mary Meeker Edsall, Mrs. Carrie Horton Blackman, Mrs. Mary A. McColl, Mrs. Bertha Skrainka, Martha Hoke, Allis Willis, Anita Moore, Mrs. Emily Phelips, exhibits pictures in which the sympathy that understands and interprets nature is expressed.

Works by Men.

In the work of Edmund H. Wuerpel St. Louis makes a distinctive contribution to American art. The collection shows several pictures by Mr. Wuerpel. An "Overmantel Decoration" is one of the harmonious pictures in the collection, and meets the true standards of decorative art.

Dawson Watson shows pictures in which certain charms of nature are delightfully interpreted. The feeling of light and vibration is in the work. A view of the Art Museum on its hill, with the mirror-like lagoon below, is worthy of especial attention of anyone who thinks the Museum should be moved to a setting of skyscrapers downtown.

Fred G. Gray, one of the younger painters, has a picture called "A Summer Night," which is a strong, sturdy work of art. Another example is a colorful nocturne, "Across the River." St. Louis is seen from the farther shore. Against the dark blue sky the buildings of the city stand more darkly. Many glowing lights are reflected in the water. The river has in its painting the suggestion of movement. In the vagueness of its appearance there is a sense of mystery. At the foreground two boys stand poised, ready to plunge into the stream. The whole effect of the composition is harmonious and poetic.

Two or three good pictures are the work of Fred G. Carpenter. Oscar E. Berninghaus, too, is a good painter, one of the best in the country in handling American subjects of the prairie, the Indian and the frontier life.

No Lack of Talent and Skill.

Tom P. Barnett is another St. Louisan to whose art some honors have been extended. Barnett's brush is vigorous. He sees keenly. He is very faithful to his impressions of nature.

Charles F. Galt, is a young artist of promise. He paints in a clean, decisive manner, perhaps a little stiffly and sometimes with too little consideration for atmosphere, but his merit is undeniable.

Gustav F. Goetsch is a talented artist, as represented by the colorful decorative landscape "On the St. Lawrence," and the fanciful composition, "Venusberg." Gustav von Schlegell has an interesting picture of the "Red Church, Venice." Carl G. Waldeck, best known as a portrait painter, shows well-painted heads and character studies. Paul F. Berdanier is another of the younger workers to whose progress the attention of artists and criticis is attracted. F. B. Nuderscher is a new exhibitor of good landscapes. Kataro Date is a clever worker and his little street scene is good art. Arthur L. Zeller exhibits a Mississippi River scene which is expressively painted, and three decorative character compositions that are decidely clever. Mumphrey W. Woolrych shows landscapes and a figure study. Alfred Russell has a realistic hunting picture. Holmes Smith shows well-executed water colors. Arthur Mitchell, Paul Harney and R. A. Kissack exhibit pictures that have genuine merit.

This new downtown art exhibition could have no more convenient location. Excellently installed by Miss Mary Powell, in charge of the art room at the library, it is well lighted and attractive.

POLICE CHAUFFEUR SUSPENDED AFTER WILD DRIVE AT NIGHT

He Hits Lamp Post Curbstone and Sign When Taking Policeman on Hurry Call.

Thomas Murphy, police chauffeur, is under suspension as a result of the eccentric driving he did when, at 11 o'clock Friday night, he undertook to convey a sergeant and six policemen from the Dayton Street Station to Grand and Washington avenues, where a burglary was reported to be in progress.

On the way Murphy steered the machine into one lamp post, one curbstone, one safety-first sign, one brick wall and one steam radiator.

A police surgeon was sent for and Murphy was subjected to the sobriety test. He was declared unfit for duty and suspended.

Winslow Commands Pacific Fleet.

GOOD NEWS FOR THE DEAF

If you are losing your hearing—if you are troubled with buzzing and ringing in the ears—if you find that your nostrils are clogged—if you hawk and spit in the morning—if you have given up hopes of finding relief, just go to Johnson-Enderle-Pauley Drug Co., 6 stores; Judge & Dolph Drug Co., 3 stores, or any other drug store, and purchase one ounce of Fluid Enserol. Mix this with one pint of warm water. Put two drops in the affected ear every night. Put one tablespoonful in a fourth of a glass of warm water and gargle throat and snuff up nose night and morning. Keep this up for a few weeks and test your hearing and you will be pleased to note the improvement. You will also, no doubt, discover that your catarrh has disappeared and head noises gone.—ADV.

Joplin Woman Is Restored by Remedy

Mrs. Hillman Took Treatment Two Years Ago—Has Been Well Ever Since.

Mrs. Ida Hillman of Joplin suffered from stomach ailments for twelve years. She followed the advice of several expert physicians and took a great deal of medicine. Two years ago she discovered Mayr's Wonderful Remedy—and she has been well since. Mrs. Hillman took but a few doses. She writes:

"I suffered with stomach trouble almost twelve years. I tried many doctors but received no help until, while in Cleveland, Ohio, I read your notice in a paper and concluded to try Mayr's Wonderful Remedy. Since then I have felt like a new woman.

"I took only four bottles, but that was all that was needed to make me well. It has been almost two years and I have had no return of my trouble."

Mayr's Wonderful Remedy gives permanent results for stomach, liver and intestinal ailments. Eat as much and whatever you like. No more distress after eating, pressure of gas in the stomach and around the heart. Get one bottle of your druggist now and try it on an absolute guarantee—if not satisfactory money will be returned.—ADV.

PRESIDENT TO HEAR GERMANY BEFORE ACTING IN ARABIC CASE

Gerard Instructed to Get Berlin's Version of the Facts—May Require Two Weeks or Longer Time.

Feeling in Washington That British Censors Are Holding Up Details Which May Be Material.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—Reasonable doubt as to conditions surrounding the sinking of the Arabic has determined the Administration to proceed with deliberation in its purpose to fix responsibility for the loss of at least two American lives and the jeapordizing of a score of others. Germany will be given an opportunity—if possible—to show whether the conditions justified the submarine in sinking the liner in apparent disregard for the solemn protest of the United States Government against the destruction of merchant vessels bearing American passengers without proper warning and opportunity for succor.

President Wilson and Secretary Lansing conferred today with the text of the two messages from Ambassador Page at London, before them, giving details of the destruction of the ship.

The Ambassador and consular officials in England have been instructed to supplement their reports with all available details. Meantime the German version will be sought.

Gerard Asked for Report.

Ambassador Gerard will be instructed to ask the German Government for a statement of the facts so far as they have been reported by the submarine commander. That this may take a fortnight, is realized from the fact that the German Admiralty has heretofore declared that it could communicate with submarines on the ocean lanes only with difficulty and often it was necessary to await their return to home ports.

Notwithstanding the probability of delay it has been decided that the German Government's side of the case be heard before the action to be taken by the United States is determined upon.

Some officials thought there were inconsistencies in the statements of some of the survivors as to what actually took place. They also noted the action of the British news censors in suppressing press dispatches dealing with details of the tragedy as an indication that there might be some condition surrounding the sinking of the Arabic which might materially qualify first judgment passed upon the acts of the submarine.

Only One Affidavit Received.

Official dispatches today referred only to the casualty list and threw no light on the very features of the case on which the State Department seeks information.

Considering the State Department's message yesterday to the Vice Consul at Queenstown to obtain affidavits from all of the American passengers and if possible from the officers of the Arabic, some disappointment was expressed that so far only one such affidavit had been forthcoming in the form of a statement from Mrs. Zella Covington, which was not complete.

ARABIC NOT UNDER CONVOY, ENGLAND SAYS

Survivors Declare Vessel Made No Attempt to Escape or Ram U-Boat Which Sank Her.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—Although no official report on the sinking of the Arabic had been received, it is learned on inquiry in official circles here that the British Government is satisfied that the Arabic did not attempt to escape or to ram the submarine which sank her.

The only hint heard here that the Arabic was under convoy, came from an American and has been contradicted by the categorical denial of the British Government that the Arabic was being convoyed when she was torpedoed. Numerous passengers also have attested to the fact that the steamer's boats rowed about for two or three hours before they were picked up.

As to the other suggestion that the Arabic possibly attempted to ram the submarine, the statements made by Capt. Finch and other survivors agree that the submarine was not sighted before the torpedo was fired. The Arabic, instead of attempting to escape, had been slowed down for the

SINKING OF ARABIC MAKES NO CHANGE IN SITUATION IN THE GERMAN VIEW

Post-Dispatch Correspondent Cables That Berlin Government Will Not Modify Submarine Warfare Until Great Britain Lifts Embargo.

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.
(Copyright, 1915, by Press Pub. Co.)

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 21.—Germany sees no more reason why America should break with her because of the Arabic than she saw in the Lusitania case. According to my advices from Berlin, the German attitude is:

That Americans have had ample warning.

That, disregarding the warning, the Lusitania should have convinced Americans beyond a doubt of the dangers of crossing the ocean in British ships.

That it is well known Germany has not relaxed and has no intention to relaxing submarine warfare on British ships until Great Britain brings her own attitude within international law, which was violated on the sea.

That it is unnecessary for Americans to take such risks and incur such dangers when they can travel under their own flag in perfect safety.

That Germany will not needlessly, wilfully nor intentionally jeopardize the lives of Americans, but that the presence of an American on board an enemy ship cannot and will not be recognized and regarded as constituting a living human passport rendering such enemy ships immune.

Not in so many words, but in effect, the attitude is that, under existing conditions, a British [illegible] is little more or less than besieged British territory, and Americans going aboard do so in full cognizance of the danger and at their own risk.

It is not denied that Americans have such rights under old international law, but that Americans also have the right to trade with Germany in noncontraband, which the British refuse to recognize. My numerous cables to the Post-Dispatch on the situation in Germany, and the character, mood and temper of the men who run things, have indicated that Germany would not give up or relax her U-boat warfare, even at the risk of a break with America. Events have confirmed that.

There is a considerable relief and thankfulness in Berlin that so few lives were lost with the Arabic and, so far as is definitely known, no Americans. The news, naturally, caused considerable nervousness among some of the American colony.

By a singular coincidence, the official announcement was published that the Kaiser has conferred the order Pour le Merite upon Admiral von Tirpitz simultaneously with the news of the sinking of the Arabic. I understand the order was conferred two or three days ago, but some Germans remark sarcastically that the foreign press will probably make it appear that it was conferred for the Arabic.

Officials in Berlin Make No Comment on Sinking of Arabic.

By Associated Press.

BERLIN, via London, Aug. 21.—No statements is obtainable in official quarters regarding the sinking of the steamer Arabic. The tendency, however, seems to be to consider the question without excitement. The press thus far has avoided comment of any nature.

ARMY OFFICERS CHARGED WITH DRINKING TOASTS TO GERMANY

Complaint Filed With Senator by Resident of Portland, Ore.—Men Deny Accusation.

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 21.—Charges were filed today by George S. Shepherd, an attorney of Portland, with Senator George E. Chamberlain, chairman of the Senate Military Affairs Committee against Capt. Leonard T. Waldron, in command of the Ninety-third Coast Artillery, stationed at Fort Stevens, Ore., and Lieut. Harold Gardiner of the same company, as the result of an incident alleged to have occurred in a restaurant at Astoria last night, when the two officers were said to have joined in several toasts to the German arms.

According to the charges, several Astoria citizens were with the two officers. The toast "Deutschland uber alles" was alleged to have been drunk several times. Shepherd's charges were signed also by several other persons.

Both officers denied today that any such toast was drunk.

Senator Chamberlain said he would forward the charges at once to the War Department.

IDENTITY OF ONE MEMBER OF FRANK MOB SAID TO BE KNOWN

Information on Lynching Will Be Placed Before Governor Next Week, Report in Official Circles.

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 21.—It was intimated in official circles here tonight that the identity of a member of the mob that lynched Leo M. Frank was known to some officials, and that some information would be placed before Gov. Harris next week.

Nothing that seemed likely to lead to identification of any of the men had come to the Governor today, he announced. He said that he was not making public all steps he had taken to investigate the lynching.

Gov. Harris today conferred with Herbert Clay, solicitor for the Blue Ridge circuit, in which Cobb County is situated, and Judge J. H. Patterson, Superior Court Judge in that circuit. Judge Patterson announced that he would prepare a special charge to the grand jury, which will meet Sept. 1. Clay assured the Governor he would do all in his power to find and bring to trial men responsible for the lynching.

BRYAN ASKS PEOPLE TO PROTEST TO LEGISLATORS AGAINST WAR

In Statement in His Newspaper He Says This Is Way to Prevent Being Drawn In.

LINCOLN, Neb., Aug. 21.—In a signed statement in large type on the front page of this month's issue of his newspaper, W. J. Bryan calls upon the people to write to their Congressmen protesting against war. This is the way, he says, to prevent this nation being drawn in. He says:

"If the Constitution were being written today the people would probably be given a referendum vote on war. And women (the greatest sufferers from war) would doubtless be given a voice. But as we do not have a direct referendum, we should use every means we do have to impress upon Senators and members of Congress the fact that the people are opposed to entering the present war. They are in favor of using the peace treaty plant to preserve peace and if that fails, they are in favor of postponing final settlement until this war is over. This course will enable us to assist as mediators in bringing this war to a close and then we shall have no difficulty in adjusting our differences. Write your Senators and your Congressmen, protesting against war. They will listen to you.

"W. J. BRYAN."

CORRESPONDENT HELD 15 DAYS

Foreigners Protest Against Carranza's Detention of Francis.

VERA CRUZ, Aug. 15, via New Orleans, Aug. 21.—Foreigners in Vera Cruz have protested to American Consul Canada here against the continued imprisonment of Henry W. Francis, an American newspaper man, arrested Aug. 6, by order of Gen. Carranza.

Francis, a British subject, who is under the protection of the American Consul, because of Carranza's refusal to recognize the British Consul here, has been held in a cell since his arrest, charged with "rebellion and unconstitutional acts against the Government." An official explained that the charge was based on information that Francis had published in the United States news reports unfavorable to Carranza.

TRAINS RUNNING ON SCHEDULE ON ONLY ONE ROAD

Traffic Into St. Louis Demoralized, Delays Being From One to Several Hours.

TRAVELERS ARE MAROONED

Nine Thousand Feet of Track Washed Out at Moselle on Frisco Line to Southwest.

Train service into and out of St. Louis was still badly demoralized last night as a result of the previous day's flood. The Illinois Central was running its trains nearly on schedule. Most of the other eastern lines that were able to do so were detouring their trains over the Illinois Central.

On the majority of the lines the inbound trains were from one to several hours late, while other trains, particularly on the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, the Big Four and the Louisville and Nashville, failed to arrive at all. In several instances on these and other lines two delayed trains were combined and run in as one on whatever schedule they could make.

Lines on which the service is crippled the worst and which will not be able to return to their regular service before Tuesday morning or later are the Baltimore and Ohio, Big Four, Chicago and Eastern Illinois, Chicago and Alton, Louisville and Nashville, Missouri, Kansas and Texas; Missouri Pacific, Frisco, Iron Mountain, Cotton Belt, Rock Island, Clover Leaf, Pennsylvania and the Wabash.

Big Washout on Frisco.

Approximately 9000 feet of track was washed out on the Frisco at Moselle, Mo., on the main line to Springfield, according to a statement given out last night by Assistant Superintendent R. C. Chapin. Nearly 1000 men were rushed to Moselle, which is 42 miles southwest of St. Louis, to repair the damage.

During the day, however, the waters of the Meramec continued to rise and no work could be done, nor can the men get to work until the water recedes. The Cape Girardeau and Southeastern division of the Frisco is operating practically on schedule, Chapin said.

Suburban service on the Frisco and the Missouri Pacific to Pacific, Mo., will be resumed as far as possible today and tomorrow, it was announced. There will be no through service on the Frisco, excepting to Memphis, for probably three or four days.

Outgoing trains on the Chicago & Alton are being sent over the Illinois Central road, while the Pennsylvania is sending its trains over the tracks of the Baltimore & Ohio.

Fast Mail Departs on Time.

The Missouri Pacific has been forced to discontinue its through service entirely, with the exception of the two outgoing trains and one incoming train a day.

The fast mail train leaving St. Louis at 2:20 this morning got off on time, but it will be run over the Wabash tracks to Kansas City, where it will return to the Missouri Pacific line.

The through train for San Francisco, which leaves at 2 o'clock this afternoon, is expected to start on time. It will go over the Wabash to Kansas City like the mail train.

Midway Crowded.

Traffic on the Iron Mountain south is badly crippled, because of the high water of the Black River, which is inundating that section between Piedmont and Poplar Bluff.

Beginning this morning all passenger service on the Iron Mountain was resumed to the southwest. The trains are being detoured, crossing the Mississippi to East St. Louis through Dupo, Ill., down the Illinois shore to Thebes, where they recross and pass through Dexter, Paragould and Knoebel and into Poplar Bluff, Ark., where they strike the main line.

Thirty-nine miles of the road from Piedmont to Poplar Bluff was tied up because of flood water from the Black River. Reports received last last night said that the track from Piedmont to Williamsville, about eight miles, is covered with from two to six feet of water. It will take from two to three days to get the track in condition for running trains after the water goes down.

Local passenger service was resumed this morning from Horine to Piedmont. The trains use the Frisco tracks to Horine, then take the Iron Mountain tracks to Piedmont, 109 miles southwest.

All wire communication was cut off from Piedmont and Williamsville last night. Officials of the road expected to have the telegraph lines up today.

The midway at Union Station was filled all day, as were the waiting rooms, with travelers who are marooned here by the demoralized condition of traffic. Hundreds of St. Louisans, anxious for the safety of relatives and friends who were en route to St. Louis when caught in the storm, besieged the station master's office for information.

During the day and until late in the night hundreds crowded around the bulletin board in the midway watching the changing of schedules for the arrival of trains.

ABE RUEF OUT OF PRISON ON PAROLE; SERVED 4 1-2 YEARS

Former San Francisco "Boss" Was Under 14-Year Sentence for Bribery.

By Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 21.—Abraham Ruef, once a power in San Francisco politics, serving a 14-year sentence for offering a bribe to a San Francisco supervisor, was paroled today from San Quentin penitentiary by the State Board of Prison Directors.

Ruef's parole provides that he shall go to Mendocino County, where he has a ranch, to remain there 90 days. He requested that this condition be made, so that he might not be charged with renewing activity in San Francisco politics, where a municipal election campaign is under way. Ruef has spent four years five months and 15 days in prison. His conviction was one of the results of the famous San Francisco graft prosecution.

CAVALRY LEAVES PLATTSBURG IN RAIN TO PITCH CAMP

Mayor Mitchell in Squadron Which Will Receive Instructions in Patrol Duty.

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., Aug. 21.—The second cavalry squadron, of which Mayor John Purroy Mitchel of New York is a member, left the military instruction camp tonight in a driving rain for Gravelly Point, six miles north, to pitch camp. They will receive instructions in cavalry evolution, patrol duty and other forms of army work before returning, probably early next week.

Lieut.-Col. Matsuo Itamy, military attache of the Japanese embassy in Washington, was a visitor at the camp today. He said he was on his way to Montreal.

Among the applications received today for membership in the second instruction camp, which will open Sept. 8, were those of James Speyer, a New York banker, and E. Lowber Walsh, a philadelphia business man.

LAST OF BRIGHAM YOUNG'S WIVES DIES IN SALT LAKE

Elizabeth Burgess Was 87 Years Old —Estate of Mormon Leader Now Closed.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Aug. 21.—Eliza Burgess Young, last survivor of Brigham Young's wives, died at her home here last night. She was a native of Lancashire, England, and had lived in Utah since 1848. She was 87 years old.

Her death closes the estate of the noted Mormon leader, who died in 1877. His will provided a life annuity for each of the 19 wives who survived him.

The estate, amounting to about $1,000,000, after the satisfaction of all claims, was incorporated into a trust company, which discharged the provisions of the will.

ARTILLERY HELD READY FOR SERVICE AGAINST HAITIANS

350 Men With 12 Field Pieces to Mobolize at Annapolis, Md.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—Announcement was made today by Acting Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt, that a battalion of artillery, 350 men, with 12 three-inch field pieces, had been ordered to mobilize at Annapolis, in readiness for Haitian duty. The order followed the receipt of a message from Admiral Caperton requesting that an additional force be held in readiness. The Tennessee is now returning from Haitian waters and would be used to take the reinforcements to Haiti.

Further trouble with unruly natives inland from Cape Haitien indicated as a possibility some time ago, is believed to have prompted Admiral Caperton's request. Officials made it plain that he had not definitely asked for reinforcements, and the Tennessee will not go from Annapolis, unless further requests came from the Admiral.

The remnant of the revolutionary army left Cape Haitien after refusing to disarm and with the threat that they would repel the invasion of Haitian soil by armed resistance. Admiral Caperton wishes to have a sufficient force available for duty in the North to control the situation. The 12 field pieces which would go with the Annapolis battalion would be sufficient, it is believed, to put down any revolt further inland, where the Haitian officials are unable to influence the natives. A slight disturbance was reported by Admiral Caperton as having taken place at Port au Prince last night. The message said quiet prevailed today.

BRASS CASE CHARGED BY TELEPHONE BURNS MAN

Alton Glassblower Could Not Let Go Until Help Arrived.

William Yenny, a glassblower of Upper Alton, was injured by an electric shock yesterday morning when he touched a brass case on top of the desk in the John Henry livery stable office, after it had become electrically charged from a telephone.

He was unable to let go of the case for a few moments. His cries for aid attracted Frank Streeper, who threw an overcoat over the brass case and drew Yenny away. Yenny's hand was badly burned.

ITALY DECLARES WAR ON TURKEY; GERMAN CRUISER IS TORPEDOED

WARSHIP REPORTED SUNK BY BRITISH SUBMARINE

Two Russian Gunboats and Torpedo Boat, and German Torpedo Boat, Sunk in Gulf of Riga—Germans Capture Bielsk and Cross the Biala.

By Associated Press.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—Italy has declared war against Turkey and the Italian ambassador has left Constantinople. This announcement is made in a Reuter telegram from Constantinople by way of Berlin and Amsterdam.

A Steffani news agency dispatch from Rome also says Italy has declared war against Turkey.

The Central News Agency reports from Constantinople that Marquis di Garroni, Italian Ambassador to Turkey, today handed to the Porte a note declaring Italy considered herself in a state of war with Turkey and demanded his passports. The reasons given in the note were the support given by Turkey to the revolt in Libya and the prevention of the departure of Italian residents from Syria.

A dispatch from Constantinople received in Amsterdam says the Italian Ambassador and the embassy staff left Constantinople at noon Saturday. The United States Embassy has been entrusted with the task of protecting Italians in Turkey. One secretary and two dragomans remained at the Italian Embassy.

The Italian Government, says a Steffani dispatch from Rome, has sent to all its representatives abroad a circular dispatch, setting forth the questions at issue between Italy and Turkey. The dispatch closes with these words:

"In view of these obvious infractions of categorical promises made by the Ottoman Government and following upon our ultimatum of Aug. 3, provoked by evasions of the Ottoman Government, particularly with regard to the free departure of Italian subjects from Asia Minor, the Italian Government has sent instructions to its Ambassador at Constantinople to declare war on Turkey."

Friction Evident for Months.

Although Italy declared war on Austria on May 24 and hostilities between the two powers began immediately, there has never been any declaration of war between Italy and Germany, the ally of Austria, while until now, Italy and Turkey, the ally of the Central Powers, nominally have been at peace.

Friction between Turkey and Italy, however, has been in evidence since shortly after the latter's entry into the war. Early in June there were reports that Italian consuls were gradually leaving Turkey, and that American officials were taking over the task of looking out for Italian interests. Later, charges were made that the Ottoman Government was preventing these consuls from leaving Turkey, and that similar coercion was being exerted over Italian civilians who wished to quit Turkey.

July 20 advices came from Rome that the Italian Government had addressed a note to the United States asking it to use its influence to protect Italian subjects in the Ottoman domains. The complaint that they were being prevented from leaving the country was reiterated.

Two days later the Italian Cabinet met for the supposed purpose of discussing the situation as regarded Turkey, and almost coincidentally the Italian Government began to gather evidence intended to show that Turkey had volated the treaty of Lausanne, an undertaking according to the terms of which she pledged herself to withdraw all Turkish troops and officers from the Cyrenacia district in Tripoli and help bring about the submission of the Senussia tribesmen in this locality. Instead of doing this, it was allaged, Enivr Pasha, the Turkish Minister of War, last March sent his brother, Nuri Bey, to Cyrenacia to foment rebellion.

Italy Protested Aug. 3.

Aug. 3, the Italian Ambassador at Constantinople made another protest to Turkey relative to the attitude of the Ottoman authorities toward Italian subjects. It was stated that Italian Consuls still were being detained in Turkey. At the same time the tension between Italy and Turkey was becoming more acute daily.

It was announced Aug. 5 that Italy had asked for categorical explanations concerning Turkey's alleged refusal to withdraw her troops from the Cyrenaica district in Tripoli and it was charged that Turkey was pursuing what was described as her usual policy of procrastination. In official circles in Rome, the feeling was held that hostilities on the part of Italy might begin at any moment, as her last note to Turkey was almost in the character of an ultimatum. Shortly after this it was reported that a declaration of war by Italy against Turkey would be followed by the sending of about 150,000 men to the aid of the Franco-British forces on the Gallipoli Peninsula.

It was announced Friday that a strong squadron of fast Italian cruisers was being held in readiness to sail from Taranto, Italy, at a moment's notice. It was stated that it was expected the vessels would be sent against Turkey if the latter country declined to satisfy Italy's demands for the release of Italian subjects held in the Ottoman empire.

A meeting of the Italian Cabinet was held Friday and at that time Baron Sonnino, Italian Minister of Foreign Affairs, presented an exhaustive report on the Turkish situation. He asserted that the Turkish provocations had become intolerable. The Cabinet's decision was kept secret.

German Cruiser Reported Torpedoed; 3 Russian Ships Sunk in Gulf of Riga

PETROGRAD, Aug. 21.—A British submarine has torpedoed a German cruiser in the Baltic Sea, the War Office announced tonight in a statement, which says:

"During the fighting in the Gulf of Riga Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, the enemy's losses were not less than two torpedo boats.

"A British submarine successfully torpedoed a German cruiser in the Baltic Sea."

The Russians say nothing of any losses of their own in the Gulf of Riga battle. A German statement, issued yesterday, declared that the Russian gunboats Sivutch and Koreets and a torpedo boat were destroyed, while several others were damaged.

Berlin Says Three Russian Ships Were Sent to Bottom.

BERLIN, via London, Aug. 21.—Three Russian warships and one German warship, all small vessels, have been sunk in the battle in the Gulf of Riga. Announcement to this effect was made today.

Two other German ships were put out of commission in the engagement. One ran ashore and the other was damaged.

The Russian vessels which were sunk were the gunboats Sivutch and Koreets, and a torpedo boat. The German ships sunk or put out of commission were all torpedo boats. The damaged German boat was escorted to port.

A statement of the Admiralty concerning the battle, reads as follows:

"Our Baltic naval forces penetrated the Gulf of Riga after mine sweepers had swept the mine field and net obstructions. In the outpost engagements which developed a Russian torpedo boat of the Emir Pucharskii class was destroyed and other torpedo boats, among them the Novik, and one large vessel, was severely damaged while retreating.

"On the evening of the 19th, in Moon Sound, the Russian gunboats Sivutch and Koreets were sunk by artillerv fire and torpedo boats after a brave resistance. Forty members of the crews, including two officers, some severely wounded, were rescued by our torpedo boats.

"Three of our torpedo boats were damaged by mines. One sank, one was run aground and one was escorted to port.

"Our loss of life was small."

The Sivutch and Koretts were sister ships of 875 tons displacement. They were 218 feet long, 36 feet beam and 8 feet deep. They were armed with two 4.7-inch guns and four 3-inch guns. Their normal complement was 140 men each.

For nearly a fortnight a powerful German squadron was engaged in an attempt to force an entrance into the Gulf of Riga for the purpose of assisting the German army which occupies the western coast of the gulf. The Russians asserted that they repelled on Aug. 8 an attack delivered by nine German battleships, 12 cruisers and a large number of destroyers, but the Germans asserted this was not a general attack, but merely a reconnaissance.

Later, the Russians announced that their warships had been drawn in closer on account of the superiority of the German squadron.

EVACUATION OF RIGA EXPECTED

PETROGRAD, Aug. 21. — Russian military observers in their comment on the recent operations in the East, minimize the importance of the fall of the fortresses of Kovno and Novogeorgievsk, which for days had been anticipated and point with satisfaction to the heroic defense of these fortresses by the Russian garrisons. The military writers declare that Brest-Litovsk is the goal of all German efforts in the central theater of war, where in the near future the Russians will be forced to contend against three approaching armies for the possession of this most important base.

Regarding the evacuation of Kovno, it is said, that almost the entire garrison gave up their lives before surrendering the position.

Today's official statement of the Russian War Office indicates that the Austro-Germans are pressing towards Brest-Litovsk from the northwest and from the south with the evident intention to execute, if possible, a flank movement to the southeastward, where they have already crossed the important North and South railway and pushed their forces well toward Pisha. 12 miles east of Vlodava.

The Russian defense in this direction is aided by swamps which extend far to the east of the river Bug.

Russian military men see in the determined German efforts to push across the railway north of Brest-Litovsk, a plan to cut off the Russian armies based on that fortress from those operating at Ossowetz, and thus enable the Germans to approach Ossowetz from the south. According to today's communication, the Bialystok-Brest railway is still in Russian hands, although vicious battles are in progress in various sections.

Beginning at the Gulf of Riga, immediately to the east of Riga they extend along the river AA to Ponevlezh, thence to a point east of Vilkomir and southwest to Janov, through Ossowetz, bending westward to Strekova-Gura near the intersection of the Bobr and Narew; eastward and southward along the line of the upper Narew to Strablia, at the crossing of the Bialystok-Brest-Litovsk railway, directly south to Lipnitza, 12 miles north of Brest-Litovsk, swinging westward around that fortress touching the river Bug near Vlodava and extending toward Pisha.

The presence of a German fleet in the Gulf of Riga, where it is co-operating with the land forces, brings the evacuation of Riga close at hand.

BIELSK TAKEN BY THE GERMANS

BERLIN, via London, Aug. 21.—The Germans have captured the Russian town of Bielsk, 25 miles south of Bialystok and have driven the Russians over the Biala river, according to the official announcement given out today by the German army headquarters staff.

Bielsk is 45 miles northeast of Warsaw and the same distance southwest of Grodno, which is on the line to which the Russians retired upon evacuating Warsaw.

The statement says:

"Army group of Field Marshal von Hindenburg: In the fighting east of Kovno, 450 prisoners and six machine guns were taken. South of Kovno, the enemy evacuated his position on the Jesla river and is retreating in an easterly direction.

"Near Gudele and Sejny, Russian positions were stormed. In the fighting west of Tykocin, the Russians lost 610 prisoners, including five officers and four machine guns.

"The army of Gen. von Gallwitz took Bielsk and south of that place drove the Russians over the Biala.

"The army group of Prince Leopold broke the renewed resistance of the enemy yesterday afternoon and evening and since early this morning the enemy has been in retreat. More than 1000 prisoners have been taken.

"The army group of Field Marshal von Mackensen advanced its left wing over the Koterka sector and from the mouth of the Bug to Pulva. The enemy continued to retreat. Near Brest-Litovsk, and east of Vladova further progress was made."

Arabic Not Under Convoy When Sunk, England Declares

purpose of ascertaining whether assistance could be given to the steamer Dunsley, previously torpedoed.

British officials scout the idea that the Arabic was attempting to ram the submarine. They say that by doing so, Capt. Finch would have been almost certain to strike the Dunsley and wreck his own ship.

Statements thus far received assert without exception that no waring was given by the submarine. Numbers of survivors have reached Liverpool and London, and all those who have been seen confirm Capt. Finch's assertion that no warning was given by the submarine and that the frothy streak made by the oncoming torpedo was the first intimation of the impending disaster.

"We're done boys! they've got us this time," Capt. Finch shouted to his officers on the bridge, and the next minute, according to survivors, the torpedo struck the vessel and tore her side and bottom out.

The fumes from the explosion were suffocating, survivors said, and a great column of water rose high in the air and descended on the deck with a roar. Men were knocked down and washed overboard, passengers declared, and two women were left dead on the deck.

All the survivors paid tribute to the wonderful work of the officers and crew in saving so many persons in ten minutes.

AMERICANS GIVE AFFIDAVITS ON ARABIC ATTACK

Vessel Was Torpedoed Without Warning, U. S. Consul Is Told —Death Toll 39.

QUEENSTOWN, Aug. 21.—Thirty-nine persons lost their lives in the sinking of the steamer Arabic, the White Star Line announced tonight after completing an investigation regarding the total number of persons aboard. It is stated that 12 cabin passengers, six steerage passengers and 21 members of the crew cannot be accounted for and must be put down as lost.

In accordance with instructions from the State Department at Washington, the American Consulate is procuring affidavits from American survivors bearing particularly upon the assertion that no warning was given by the German submarine which torpedoed the Arabic. Statements of this nature already have been taken from Mr. and Mrs. P. W. A. Collins, Zellah Covington and Miss S. E. Shrimpton.

Louis Bruguiere, one of the two Americans on the Arabic who are missing, told today of his struggle to save his mother, and how she was lost. He said he and his mother were the last to leave the promenade deck. They reached this deck after the last boat had left the ship. This boat was too far away to be reached by his mother.

When they were swept into the water, Bruguiere said, he swam for 20 minutes with his mother. Then his head was struck by a piece of wreckage and he was forced momentarily to release his hold on her.

When he came again to the surface, Mrs. Bruguiere had disappeared. Half an hour later the son was dragged aboard one of the ship's small boats. In this boat he found his two bulldogs, which he had thrown overboard.

Capt. Finch, who had been commander of the Arabic for the last six years, renewed his declaration today that the liner was torpedoed without warning.

"I was on the bridge and had been all the way down St. George's Channel," he said. "The first indication I had, even of the presence of a submarine, was when I saw the torpedo coming toward the ship at a distance of about 800 feet.

"It approached us from the north at right angles to our starboard side. When it struck us there was a terrific explosion which shook the whole ship. It was so stupendous that one of the life boats which swung out from the ship's side was blown into the air in splinters. A great volume of water was flung into the air.

"The Arabic listed first to starboard, then to port. Then she seemed to steady herself for a moment and then she began to settle and had disappeared completely in 10 minutes. I did not at any time see any sign of a submarine and as far as I am aware nobody else saw one before or after we were struck.

"In all, 14 boats were lowered, I think. I have been informed that as the Arabic settled two or three of these were capsized. I don't know what the cause of that was. I did not see it occur, but I have been told that it did take place. Good assistance was rendered us, as 11 of the boats were picked up.

"I was on the bridge when the Arabic flung her nose in the air and plunged beneath the surface. I thought I was all in as I went down, but after a time I came up and found myself among the rafts and patent boats. For a time they banged the life out of me, but presently one came along that I could get a grip on.

"Just before we were struck we passed the steamship Dunsley, which was sinking. She had three holes in her from shells. I also saw two boats sailing away from her toward land. We were then 60 miles south and 102 miles west of Queenstown."

Mrs. Bruguiere's Body Reported to Have Been Found.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—The body of Mrs. Josephine L. Bruguiere, one of the two Americans lost with the Arabic, has been found, the White Star Line announced today. This was based on a conversation, it was said, with Mrs. Marion Bruguiere, the woman's daughter-in-law, who was quoted as saying she had received a cable message to that effect. It was said that the cablegram contained no details.

A cablegram received today by the White Star line stated that the bodies of two persons who were on the Arabic had washed ashore near Queenstown. One body was that of a woman, presumably a cabin passenger, and the other a steward. The bodies had not been identified when the cablegram was sent.

The British censor apparently has silenced the wires leading to the White Star line here from England. The lack of definite news from abroad was balanced by a host of rumors that tried the nerves of officials and left them in a keen state of apprehension as to the fate of at least one more steamer in or near the war zone, the Lapland, which sailed Aug. 12 from this port for Liverpool, with 318 passengers, including 13 Americans, and a capacity cargo of war munitions and other supplies.

U-BOATS SINK 2 SHIPS FROM AMERICAN PORTS

LONDON, Aug. 21.—A dispatch from Brest, France, reports the sinking of two steamships from American ports. The British steamer Carterswell, of about 4000 gross tons, which sailed on July 25 from Galveston for Havre, with a cargo of grain, was sent to the bottom yesterday by a German submarine. Her crew of 24 was taken aboard a fishing boat.

The Belgian oil steamer Daghestan, 1818 tons gross, from Philadelphia Aug. 6 for Rouen, and three sailing vessels also have been sunk.

The recrudescence of submarine activity began on Aug. 12 and in the week ending Aug. 18, the British Admiralty reports 13 vessels of a total tonnage of 22,970 were sunk, 11 of them by underwater craft and two by mines. This makes a total known loss of 70,668 tons of shipping in nine days.

Underwater craft torpedoed Friday: British steamers Restormel, 2118 tons; Baron Erskine, 5585; City of New York, 2790; Samàra, 3172; Gladiator, 3359; Bittern, 1797, and the Ben Brachie, 3908; Norwegian steamers: Sverresborg, 674 tons; Bras, 1351 tons. Spanish steamer, Peria Castillo, 1920 tons.

The vessels sunk Thursday were the British Arabic, 15,801 tons; Grodno, 1955, and Serpino, 2205, and the Norwegian Magda, 1063.

LINERS SAIL WITH 2000 PASSENGERS

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—Recent activities of German submarines had no apparent effect on sailing of transatlantic ships from this port todty. Four liners, flying American, British, French and Italian flags, with more than 2000 passengers on board, in addition to full cargoes of exports sailed.

The Cunard liner Orduna, with 275 pasengers, of which seven are Americans, left port at 10:20 a. m. for Liverpool. The American liner New York sailed at noon with 459 passengers, the French line steamship La Touraine with 220 passengers sailed at 3 p. m. for Bordeaux, and the Italian liner Stempalia with 1087 passengers let go her line at 4 p. m. The passengers on the Sampalia include more than 1000 in the third class, the majority of whom are men going to Italy to enlist for the war.

The Orduna carried 9000 tons of cargo, officials of the line said, but they added that there was no explosives or war munitions aboard. It was also said by officials of the line that the sinking of the Arabic resulted in no cancellations, but on the contrary several persons booked passage just prior to leaving port.

Subdued excitement was evident among the passengers and crew of the steamship New York when the liner sailed. The sinking of the Arabic was the chief topic of conversation. The final count of passengers showed 109 in the first cabin, 104 in the second and 246 steerage. Among the cabin passengers were 38 Americans.

Mrs. Harriet Stanto Blatch, the suffrage leader, was one of the passengers on the Holland-American liner Rotterdam.

"I would not sail upon a ship of a belligerent nation," said Mrs. Blatch, "I stand for my electoral rights, but I do not wish to cause my Government any anxiety on my behalf."

The Rotterdam carried 90 first, 110 second and 300 steerage passengers.

Situation With Germany "A Great Crisis," Says Tumulty in Speech.

SPRING LAKE, N. J., Aug. 21.—Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to President Wilson, in an address here today, spoke of the situation with Germany as "a great international crisis."

"In this solemn hour," said Tumulty, "our President stands as the defender, the conservator and the spokesman of the inalienable rights of Americans on land and sea. If the necessity arises our lives and our sacred honor will follow him."

Tumulty's address fell like a bomb among the Democrats who had gathered here at the invitation of the Monmouth County Democratic Committee for a love feast. Tumulty had not been expected to refer to the international situation.

WEEPS WHEN ORDERED TO JAIL FOR FAILURE TO PAY FINE

Wellston Man Convicted of Selling Liquor Without License and Assessed $260.

W. F. Bostwick of Wellston was fined $185 and costs by Justice Garrett in Ferguson yesterday on several charges of selling liquor without a license. The costs of court were $75. Bostwick was unable to pay the fines and wept when the Judge ordered him taken to the jail at Clayton.

The fines were assessed on Bostwick's conviction of having sold liquor at various times to persons who entered the upper story of his home, placed money on the shelf of a dumb waiter and were rewarded by witnessing the return of the waiter laden with beer or whisky.

INVENTION RAISES SUBMARINES

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 21.—A device for the salvaging of a submarine unable to reach the surface is being tested by naval officers here. In the course of the experiments the submarine G1, submerged to a depth of between 50 and 60 feet, was brought to the surface, it became known here tonight.

Lieut. Robert T. Merrill, attached to the submarine tender Tonopah, is the inventor of the device, the nature of which is to be kept secret.

ITALIANS NOWHERE ON DEFENSIVE, SAYS OFFICIAL REVIEW

Armies Have Occupied Much Land Despite Elaborate Defenses, It Is Declared.

SUCCESSES ON ISONZO

Losses Declared to Be Under 30,000—18,000 Prisoners Taken.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—The Italian Embassy made public tonight the following statement issued by the Government at Rome on Italian military operations up to Aug. 18:

"As opposed to misleading reports circulated by Austro-Hungarian sources, the Royal Italian Government wishes to make known the following facts:

"Austro-Hungarian military action on the whole Italian front is on the defensive; the few isolated offensive movements undertaken have been of a merely local character and were nothing more than vain attempts to reconquer lost positions.

"The frontier, which was considered practically impassable owing to the most up-to-date fortifications Austro-Hungary had built with profusion along the whole length of it, and in the building of which she had taken full advantage of natural defenses and almost impregnable mountains and valleys, has been crossed by the Italian armies.

"Immediately upon the declaration of war, the Italian troops occupied many important positions in the Trentino and Cadore with a view to counter-balancing the enormous advantage which the frontier drawn in 1866 placed entirely in the hands of Austro-Hungary. In some few places the Italian army has refrained from invading Austrian territory as it could have done, in order to take better advantage of local conditions, but nowhere has the enemy dared to invade Italian territory.

Fortifications Under Fire.

"As a result, all the fortifications of the Austrian first line of defense are now under heavy fire from Italian siege guns and a considerable extension of land has been wrenched from the enemy and definitely occupied by the Italian army.

"Austro-Hungary had to evacuate in Eastern Friuli positions especially suited for stubborn resistance and retreated to the even more strongly fortified line of the Isonzo, with the object of placing between our own and the enemy's armies a river well-known for its unfordable course and frequently inundated, on the mountainous banks of which she had erected a whole system of modern fortifications justly described by the Archduke Eugene in his proclamation to the Austro-Hungarian troops as "formidable." The Italian troops have, however, passed the Isonzo and captured important positions, such as Caporetto and Plava and all the lower course of the river from Gradisca to the sea. It was their well-known dash that enabled the Italian troops to accomplish the feat of crossing the river under the heavy fire from the enemy's artillery. across the river gave way under the shelling and the pressure of the swollen waters, but they were instantly rebuilt by the Italian soldiers.

Counter Attacks Repelled.

"On the Upper Isonzo the greater part of the Montenero was captured and occupied. Tolmino has been closely attacked and its fortifications are battered daily by the Italian artillery. Further south, between Tolmino and Gorizia, our troops succeeded in establishing a strong bridgehead at Plava, where, having advanced with daring that surprised their enemy, they are now able to cover our bridges from the left bank of the Isonzo and repel the daily counter attacks launched against them.

"In front of Gorizia, the strong network of fortifications the enemy still holds on the right of the river, is being approached at some points to within a few paces and the Austrian press has admitted that our rifle fire reaches the houses in the town. But the Italian advance was even more successful on the Carso plateau, which constitutes the main stronghold in the Gorizia defenses. There in a few weeks our troops have forced their way into the outer edge of the heights running from Gradisca to Montefalcone and then pierced the enemy's strong line of defense on the plateau itself from the Sella di San Martino to Monte Sei Busi and the heights and forts of Montefalcone. Therefrom they are carrying with slow but steady progress their attack on the next line of Austrian defenses.

Big Austrian Losses Claimed.

"The results which Austro-Hungary herself has been unable to deny in her official war reports have naturally not been attained without contrast. Our losses, however, do not amount even to one-sixth of the 200,000 casualties attributed to us by our enemies. We have taken 18,000 prisoners, although we had to make frontal attacks, whilst the enemy has taken only a few hundred, so few that he does not mention them in his official reports. Austrian losses have been ascertained to be extraordinarily heavy and all Austro-Hungarian officers taken prisoners by us have admitted it.

"The Italian offense continues and the enemy is unable to check it, notwithstanding the flow of reinforcements brought up against us. Violent counter attacks attempted at times in strong numbers have everywhere been repulsed. Our offensive is steadily developing, although it has to face and overcome defenses which are of the strongest ever produced."

Capture by Italians of Important Austrian Redoubt Announced.

"On the plateau north of Arsiero, our troops by a vigorous attack captured an important Austrian redoubt on the flank of the Mountain Maggiore.

"In the upper Cordevole valley the artillery duel continued yesterday. Our artillery destroyed and burned an abattis, barring the Dolimite road beyond Arabba. Enemy artillery, on the other hand, tried to reduce to ruins the hamlet of Piave di Livinallongo. The civil hospital was damaged.

"Remarkable progress was made yesterday in Concea di Plezzo, where our troops, thanks to an energetic offensive, won the front from Pluzne to Cozsoca. Enemy artillery, not succeeding in checking the rush of our troops, directed its fire against inhabited places, inflicting considerable damage and causing some fires.

Woman Kills Her Stepfather.

BRITAIN FORMALLY PUTS COTTON ON CONTRABAND LIST

"ACTION LONG JUSTIFIED"

France Will Take Similar Step Today, English Officials Announce.

By Associated Press.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—The British Foreign Office announced this afternoon that cotton had been declared absolute contraband. The statement declares the Government proposes to initiate measures to relieve depression which might temporarily disturb the cotton market because of the contraband order. It was learned on inquiry at the Foreign Office that the French Government will issue a similar notice early tomorrow.

The announcement follows: "His Majesty's Government have declared cotton absolute contraband. While the circumstances might have justified such action at an earlier period, His Majesty's Government are glad to think that local conditions of the American interests likely to be affected are more favorable for such a step than they were a year ago, and, moreover, His Majesty's Government contemplate initiation of measures to relieve as far as possible abnormal depression which might temporarily disturb market conditions."

The declaration making cotton contraband is effective from today. A royal proclamation concerning the subject was published in the supplement of the London Gazette issued tonight. After a preamble citing previous proclamations concerning contraband, it says:

"Now, therefore, we do hereby declare, by and with the advice of our privy council, that during the continuance of war, or until we do give further public notice, the following articles will be treated as absolute contraband, in addition to those in our royal proclamation aforementioned:

"Raw cotton, cotton linters, cotton waste and cotton yarn.

"And we do hereby further declare that this, our royal proclamation, shall take effect from the date of its publication in the London Gazette."

United States Certain to Protest Against British Ruling on Cotton.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—Announcement that cotton had been declared absolute contraband of war by Great Britain came as no surprise to officials here. Secretary Lansing was informally advised by the British embassy some time ago that this action had been decided upon.

It is certain the United States will protest against the British action, citing the previous consistent policy of Great Britain in holding cotton free of reseraint. The result, it is expected, will be to draw out a full explanation of the reasons behind the British change of policy. A long course of diplomatic interchanges undoubtedly will follow before an agreement can be reached, or possibly the question be submitted to arbitration.

The first direct effect of the British announcement will be to simplify the discussion over the orders in council, now in progress. Cotton ships have formed a large percentage of the total number of craft held up under the orders, each case involving much informal debate over arrangements for payment by England for cargoes seized. Each side, also, became an additional factor in the formal discussion between the two governments, the United States having steadily maintained that Great Britain was violating the accepted rules of international law in halting commerce between neutrals, more especially trade in noncontraband goods.

With cotton declared contraband, all these phases are past. There will be no payment for seized cargoes as heretofore and the informal discussion, so far as cotton is concerned, is at an end.

It is understood the British plan is to steady the cotton market through actual purchases if that becomes necessary. Probably cotton factors will be commissioned to keep the commodity above a fixed minimum price. It has been suggested, however, that with this determination known to cotton dealers, it is unlikely that there will be any great drop or that the British Government will be called upon to act. Crop conditions this year, it is said, will make it easier to maintain prices because open markets unaffected by the allies' action are more than able to absorb the entire production.

KAISER EXPRESSES JOY OVER FALL OF NOVOGEORGIEVSK

Capture of City One of Finest Feats Ever Accomplished by Any Army, Message Says.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—A message expressing deep gratification over the capture of Novogeorgievsk and paying high tribute to the courage of German troops, has been telegraphed by Emperor William to Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, the German Imperial Chancellor, according to the Norddeutsche all gemein Zeitung of Berlin, says a Reuter dispatch from Amsterdam. The Emperor's message as given by the newspaper follows:

"Thanks to God's gracious assistance; the tried bravery of the conqueror of Antwerp, Gen. von Beseler; the heroic courage of our brilliant troops and the excellent German and Austro-Hungarian siege artillery, the strongest and most modern Russian fortress—Novogeorievsk—is in our hands.

"Deeply moved, I have just expressed my thanks to my brave troops, whose spirit was splendid. It is one of the finest feats of arms ever accomplished by any army. It was a sublime day for which I humbly thank God. The booty in Kovno has increased to 600 guns."

The Chancellor replied to the Emperor with the following message:

"Full of gratitude to God, the entire people rejoice over the heroic deed of the army and knowing our cause is just, look to the future with entire confidence. The unanimous resolutions of the Reichstag shows the entire people are firmly united behind our brilliant army. Thousands sang songs of triumph, and now let us all thank God, before the palace."

TWO SHOT IN STREET FIGHT AFTER ARGUMENT IN SALOON

Police Find Men Lying on Sidewalk Refuse to Tell How They Were Wounded.

Joseph Fages, 28 years old, of 1421 North Sixth street, and James Donovan, 30, of 1409 North Sixth street, were found lying on the sidewalk in front of a saloon at 1441 North Broadway about 10:45 last night, when policemen of the North Market Street Station went to the saloon in response to a telephone call informing them of a shooting in front of the place.

Both men had been shot, Fages being wounded in the chest and Donovan in the neck. They refused to tell how they had been shot. They were taken to the city hospital, where it was said that Fages' condition was critical.

The police were told by persons who had been in the saloon just before the shooting that Donovan and Fages were engaged in an argument with Bernard Derby, 3929 McRee avenue, a clerk employed by the Cotton Belt Railroad, when Donovan invited Fages and Derby to "come outside and settle it." The men stepped outside the barroom and a few moments later two shots were fired.

SAYS RELIGION HELPED KEEP HER FROM EDUCATIONAL POST

Miss Strachan Charges Catholic Faith Was Used Against Her in N. E. A. Race.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 21.—Miss Grace C. Strachan, District Superintendent of Schools of Brooklyn, N. Y., defeated Thursday for the presidency of the National Educational Association at Oakland, Cal., issued a signed statement in which she cited illustrations of the alleged fact that her Catholic faith was an argument used against her.

"We have incontrovertible evidence that it was made the subject of most outrageous attacks and most unworthy tactics," the statement says.

"Mrs. Ella Flagg Young of Chicago wrote, in reply to a letter from Miss Katherine D. Black of New York: 'When in Springfield I met a number of school masters. Strange objections came up that in California as well as in Chicago at present, there was a decided bias against Catholics.'

"I came to California and presented my candidacy in the firm belief that I would be acorded at least fair play. But I soon had a rude awakening."

WOMAN TRIES TO END LIFE

Takes Poison When Man With Whom She Was Traveling Leaves Her.

Miss Harriet Scott, 20 years old, who has been living at the Milford Hotel on Sixth street, between Olive and Pine streets, tried to kill herself by drinking a solution of bi-chloride of mercury tablets at Union Station at 11:30 o'clock last night. She was taken to the City Hospital where her condition was pronounced critical.

She told at the hospital that a man named Peddie with whom she has been traveling around the country demonstrating a toilet article, departed for Chicago last night and refused to take her with him.

GERMANS FIRE ON BRITISH SAILORS DRIVEN TO WATER

Admiralty Says Submarine Was Destroyed in Danish Waters; Crew Shot at While Swimming.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—The story of the sinking of the British submarine E13, whose loss was made known in a brief statement yesterday was told in an announcement from the Admiralty today as follows:

"A report has been received from Lieutenant-Commander Layton, commanding the E13, whose grounding on the Danish Island of Saltholm was published yesterday.

"The Lieutenant-Commander reports that the submarine grounded in the early morning of Aug. 19. All efforts to refloat her failed.

"At 5 o'clock a Danish torpedo boat appeared on the scene and informed the E13 that she would be allowed 24 hours to get off. At the same time a German torpedo boat arrived and remained close to the submarine until two more Danish torpedo boats came up, when she withdrew.

"At 9 o'clock, while the three Danish torpedo boats were anchored close to the submarine, two German torpedo boats approached from the south. When about half a mile away one of these hoisted a commercial flag signal, but before the commanding officer of the E13 had time to read it the German destroyer fired a torpedo at her from a distance of about 300 yards. The torpedo exploded on hitting the bottom close to her.

"At the same moment the German destroyer fired with all her guns and Lieutenant Commander Layton, seeing that his submarine was on fire fore and aft, and unable to defend herself owing to her being aground, gave orders for the crew to abandon her. While the men were in the water they were fired upon by machine guns and with shrapnel.

"One of the Danish torpedo boats immediately lowered her boat and steamed between the submarine and the German destroyers, who therefore had to cease firing and withdraw."

The official announcement yesterday of the sinking of the E13 said that 15 members of the crew were lost and 15 rescued.

The Copenhagen correspondent of Reuter's Telegram Co., sends the following dispatch regarding the sinking of the British submarine E13.

"The destruction of the British submarine E13 in Danish territory by German destroyers, under circumstances which placed the shipwrecked craft under Danish protection, has aroused widespread indignation which finds expression in the Danish newspapers. It is urged that there can be no explanation or plausible excuse for the deliberate violation of Danish territory as a German torpedo boat had thoroughly investigated the locality before returning with the others to attack the defenseless crew.

The Vort Land says:

" 'There can be no question that the German commander was aware he was violating Danish neutrality. The incident is simply in accordance with German methods throughout the whole war.'

"The Koebenhaven writes:

" 'We received the news with deep pain that 14 sailors of a friendly nation lost their lives, not even in unequal combat, but without the faintest chance of defending themselves.'

"The Journal Hovedestaven publishes a rumor that one Dutch torpedo boat had a man wounded and its wireless damaged by German shells.

"The entire press commends the government's action in promptly protesting to Berlin, and assures the Government that it will receive the support of the whole nation in whatever action is taken.

"The Admiralty has ordered that the patrol ships around Copenhagen be increased. A German Zeppelin this morning reconnoitered over the waters southeast of Copenhagen and photographed the wreck of the E-13."

GERMANY PLANS FRUIT EMBARGO

England Suspected of Getting Exports to Holland.

ESSEN, Germany, Aug. 21.—Diligent efforts are being made to restrict the export, via the Rhine into Holland, of the fruits that grow so plentifully along the great river. Dutch merchants, it has been established, have been taking out of Germany great quantities of cherries and berries, which it is suspected are shipped on farther to England.

Local fruit merchants have just stumbled upon the fact that contracts already exist under which the best of the late fruit has been sold to Hollanders. The quantity is greater than all Holland would need or use.

Senator Shively Seriously Ill.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Aug. 21.—News was received here late this evening that Senator Benjamin F. Shively of Indiana, who is ill at his summer home in Brookville, Pa., is in a precarious condition and his recovery doubtful. Illness overtook him in the closing days of the last session of Congress and although he appeared virtually to have regained his health, a sudden relapse set in this week.

Man's Body Found in Room.

The body of Henry Irwin, 62 years old, of 308 Convent street, was found in his upstairs room at 9 o'clock last night by a policeman who was told that he had not been seen for three weeks. Miss Jane Irwin of 2829 Madison street, his daughter, told the police she had not seen him for nearly a month.

11 LIVES LOST IN FLOOD; PROPERTY LOSS NOT LARGE

City, With Large Repair Bill at Forest Park, and Railroads Are Chief Losers—Other Damage Is Scattered, but Will Be Keenly Felt.

RIVER DES PERES IS BACK WITHIN BANKS

Several Houses Overturned and Household Goods Ruined—Grief Among Negroes When 10 Bodies Are Recovered.

The loss of life in Friday's flood, along the River des Peres, in and near St. Louis, was much larger, and the property damage far smaller, than was supposed when the flood was at its height. Investigation yesterday showed this. Eleven persons were found to have been drowned, of whom one was an aged white woman, four adult negroes and six negro children. They were:

Mrs. Annie Wagoner, 80, drowned in her home on Hermitage avenue, Ellendale, St. Louis County.

James Copen, a negro, his wife, Emma, and their daughters, Mamie, 13, Elizabeth, 9, and Ethel, 7, near Mrs. Wagoner's home.

David Bowman, a negro, his wife Adeline, their children, Ruth, 8, and John, 8, and a grandchild, Bessie Westmoreland, 4, at 1720 January avenue, near Manchester avenue, in the city.

The property loss, while probably heavy in the aggregate, and while falling in part on persons not well able to bear it, was still comparatively small at any one point. The city, which will have a large repair bill in Forest Park, and the Wabash and Rock Island railroads, were probably the chief losers, and their losses did not include any structures of consequence.

Houses Overturned.

In the district from Sublette avenue to the Missouri Pacific tracks, inhabited by small home owners and renters, some houses were overturned, others were swept from their sites and there was general damage to household goods and to yards, fences and basements.

A Post-Dispatch reporter traversed this district, a distance of nearly two miles along River des Peres, in a rowboat. He found the River des Peres, in the homely language of some of the dwellers there, to be a veritable "River of Despair."

The subsiding waters had left wreckage strewn on each side of the river, chairs hanging in trees, soaked mattresses in gardens, and pipeless cookstoves, half-buried in the mud. No house in the river region south of Old Manchester road escaped damage.

The search for bodies, which had been impossible while the flood was sweeping through the district, was begun at daylight, and there were scenes of lamentation among the negro residents of the river region as the bodies were found. Several negroes, who had failed to find their relatives or friends at first, concluded that they had been drowned, and gave way to grief, until the safety of all except the Copen and Bowman families became known.

The fire clay and smelting plants in the Manchester avenue region were closed, while fire engines were used to pump water from their boiler rooms and yards.

Sightseers Surprised.

Sightseers yesterday in the Delmar boulevard district, which was under a torrent of water Friday, were surprised at the smallness of the damage outwardly apparent. The water had subsided until the River des Peres, though over its normal stage, did not look as if it could have caused all the overflow of 24 hours before.

The wooden planks of the north, or westbound, roadway of the Delmar bridge over River des Peres, were partly washed out, and workmen were preparing to replace them. The south roadway was in use by wagons and automobiles, and street cars ran over the bridge in both directions, as it was considered safe.

Along both sides of the street merchants were busy cleaning their first floors and pumping out the water that remained in their basements.

The Wabash Railroad has temporarily abandoned the use of its track through the Delmar district, all trains being routed by the levee tracks and North St. Louis. Repairs to the track and to Delmar station, where a new platform is needed, were under way today.

Long-Distance Phone Lines Along Meramec Is Cut Off.

While St. Louis' local telephone service, impaired by the storm and flood, had been almost completely restored yesterday afternoon, long distance service along the Meramec River beyond Valley Park and along the Gasconade and Black Rivers was cut off.

It will be impossible to repair the damage done to the service by Monday, Marshall B. Downing, traffic superintendent of the Bell company, said, but it is expected the lines will be up and in working order within a few days.

The Western Union and Postal Telegraph companies have not been seriously hampered as a result of the storm and were able to perform the normal service.

Health Department Advises Disinfecting of Places Where Water Stood.

The public is advised to disinfect cellars and ground where sewer water backed up through the mains Friday as a result of the flood in the West End, in a warning issued yesterday by Health Commissioner Starkloff.

Innumerable pools of water, that will rapidly become stagnant were left by the receding waters of River Des Peres, and must be covered with coal oil to prevent the development of disease breeding mosquitoes, Commissioner Starkloff advised also.

The public is advised to take these sanitary precautions without awaiting official action, but the Health Department will disinfect all cellars and oil all stagnant pools that are reported. Notice may be given the department by mai or by telephoning Main 5580, of Central 3840. Inspectors will examine the territory affected by the flood, but cannot hope to find every unsanitary spot in the immense district extending from the mouth of the Des Peres to its northern extremity, Dr. Starkloff said. The danger following a flood lies mainly in the sewer water that has inundated cellars.

The disinfectant recommended by the Health Department is chrysilic acid, which is inexpensive compared with many other disinfectants. It would be a waste of disinfectant to pour it into stagnant pools, however, and only oiling will effectually destroy mosquito larvae, Dr. Starkloff said.

Suburb Has Streets With British Names; Single German One.

While in the flooded district southwest of the city limits yesterday, Post-Dispatch reporters came upon a short block called "Unter den Linden," in the suburb of Greenwood.

While trying to keep dry, this little settlement also endeavored to maintain its neutrality. It is the only street in Greenwood with a German name. The names of surrounding thoroughfares are decidedly British, being Drury lane, Wellington street, Brompton square, Regent street, St. James square, Picadilly avenue, Oxford avenue, Cambridge avenue and Sussex avenue. To the north are Tennyson square, Byron place and Canterbury avenue.

CAMILLE S. de GOT

DID NOT SEE HIS COMPANION AFTER LEAVING CAPSIZED CANOE

J. C. Scott Thought M. E. Niebling Was Swimming Behind Him; Spent Night in Tree.

J. C. Scott of 5855 Von Versen avenue last night was seeking trace of his chum, M. E. Niebling, 24 years old, of 4950 Washington avenue. Friday morning the two young mn, upon a canoe float, had been camping upon the Meramec River near Cuba, Mo.

Scott said that the water came up so rapidly Thursday night that they were forced to take refuge in a tree. In the morning they found their canoe still tied to the float and within reach. They got the canoe and were starting for shore when it capsized. Both young men started to swim for shore in the swollen river. Scott believed that his friend was just behind him, but when he reached the shore he could see no trace of Niebling.

Niebling's father is a retired merchant living in Ferguson. He and his wife are away upon a vacation. The son was employed in the auditing department of a wholesale shoe house in St. Louis.

MAN ELECTROCUTED BY WIRE BLOWN DOWN DURING STORM

Collinsville Miner Picks Up Wire Carrying 4700 Volts That Workmen Failed to Find.

Damage done to the electric light wires in Collinsville by Friday's storm, yesterday caused the electrocution of Martin Rebeck, 67 years old, a coal miner. Rebeck who lives on LaSalle street in Collinsville, was on his way home from the mine at 3:15 yesterday afternoon. Crossing an open field outside the city he saw a wire in his path. He picked it up to throw it out of the way and received 4700 volts through his body. He was killed at once.

The Collinsville Electric Light Co. had turned off all power Friday night in order to make repairs. Yesterday at noon it was thought everything was all right and the power was again turned on. Workmen had failed to find the wire which had been blown into the field.

Rebeck is survived by a wife and four children.

HEIRESS WEDS THREE DAYS AFTER SHE GETS DIVORCE

Girl Who Wore Socks Figured in Case of Rich Young Woman Against Husband.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—The marriage of Mrs. Marguerite Anna Ebling, granddaughter and heiress of the millionaire founder of the Ebling Brewery, Thursday, to Camille S. de Got, came just three days after her divorce decree from John A. Anderson had been filed.

Young de Got has long figured in the marital affairs of the Andersons. In contesting his wife's action for divorce, Anderson sued his mother-in-law, Mrs. Nellie Ebling, for $50,000 damages for alleged alienation of affections. He asserted Mrs. Ebling desired her daughter to get a divorce so that de Got might marry her. Mrs. Ebling and Mrs. Anderson indignantly denied that story at the time.

Mrs. Anderson's endeavor to divorce the man to whom she had been married only eight months attracted much attention. She sued for absolute divorce in February, 1914. Lorraine Parker, an artist's model, was named as corespondent.

That action was tried before Supreme Court Justice Whitaker. Miss Parker told of many gay parties at Martin's and Bustanoby's in which she and young Anderson had participated. She willingly admitted she had been his "sweetheart."

Anderson pronounced the stories untrue and asserted the model had told him she was being paid $100 an hour for testifying in behalf of his wife. The fact that the Parker girl wore socks and made a point of exhibiting them after she had a few drinks figured largely in the testimony. The jury brought in a sealed verdict exonerating Anderson.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court then decided that as Mrs. Anderson was only 19 years old a guardian must be appointed to bring any further divorce action.

In May, 1915, Mrs. Anderson again filed suit. Lorraine Parker again was mentioned, but new testimony, part of it given by Harry Potts, a former business partner of Anderson, dealt with relations between the latter and a young girl of striking beauty. William W. Gillen of Jamaica, the referee, on April 18 recommended a divorce for Mrs. Anderson. Soon she received a decree.

LINCOLN JUBILEE OPENS TODAY

Lovejoy Printing Press to Be Shown at Chicago Exposition.

CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—Delegates from nearly ever state in the Union arrived in Chicago today to attend the Lincoln jubilee and exposition marking the half century of negro freedom which will open here tomorrow under the auspices of a commission appointed by Gov. Dunne of Illinois. The Illinois Legislature appropriated $75,000 for the exposition and 19 other states appropriated various sums. It will close Sept. 16.

Among the interesting exhibits are the printing press used by Elijah P. Lovejoy in printing his abolition newspaper at Alton, Ill., before the Civil War and which ended in the death of the owner at the hands of a mob; a life-size statue of Abraham Lincoln and the Charles F. Gunther collection of Civil War relics.

OZARK STREAMS RAGING; PLEASURE SEEKERS ISOLATED

BLACK RIVER'S RAMPAGE

Towns Flooded, Residents Take to Hills; Valley Park Feels Effect of Overflow.

The big rivers in the Ozarks were out of their banks last night, flooding farm lands, inundating towns and sweeping away railroad tracks. The Gasconade, Meramec, Black and Current rivers were all raging and reported to be higher than dwellers along their banks could ever remember. The Gasconade was up 18 feet at Arlington, Mo. The Black River, from Piedmont to Poplar Bluff, was at a flood stage worse than in a generation, and the towns of Leeper, Keener, Hendrickson, Mill Springs and other villages in that territory were inundated. The Current River, which does not belie its name, was reported from Doniphan to be higher and swifter than old residents recall, and people there were taking to the hills. The Meramec, from Steelville to Valley Park, was out of its banks.

Wire Service Cut Off.

Wire communication with points along those rivers was cut off yesterday by the previous day's storm. Along those streams are located most of the outing and fishing resorts patronized by St. Louisans, and one effect of the flood was to maroon hundreds who were due in the city by tomorrow, after their vacations. At Moselle, 30 miles west of Valley Park, the Frisco tracks for more than a mile were washed away and pleasure seekers beyond there at resorts on the Meramec and Gasconade will be unable to return to St. Louis until Tuesday, or possibly later.

By midnight last night telephone service with some of the summer resorts along the Meramec had been reestablished. At Idlewild Lodge, six miles from Cuba, which is 87 miles from St. Louis, it was learned that the river rose about 30 feet by yesterday. The Lodge sets on a hillside above the channel, where the stream had never before touched, and 42 vacation seekers from St. Louis were in the dining room Friday evening when the raging torrent burst over the high bank and flooded the room. The guests took to higher ground until autos and rigs could be summoned from Cuba to take them away.

Flood Invades Eureka.

The town of Eureka, St. Louis County, which normally stands more than a mile and a half from the river, was partly under water last night and boats, rowed by young men from the Famous-Barr clubhouse, came into the town. The young men reported that the clubhouse, which is on high ground, had not been reached by the water. It was reported, however, that the Frisco Club and Gus' Club, which are on lower ground, had been submerged and probably washed away.

From Famous Station to Deicke bridge—a distance of three-fourths of a mile—the Frisco track was washed out.

The homes of Ben Beach and John Hug, near Eureka, had to be abandoned by their owners. Hug, who is well known to fishers and campers, left his home by the second story window and was rowed away in a boat. Many horses and cattle were removed to higher ground as the water rose.

The town of Glencoe, which is lower and nearer to the river, was flooded to such an extent that both homes and stores had to be abandoned.

Farm Houses Abandoned.

At Pacific, Franklin County, reports were received of the abandonment of farmhouses to the south. W. M. Beecham, a dairyman, drove 150 cows into town, as the town was the highest point accessible to him. He said the water was two feet deep in his barns.

A work train was marooned on the Frisco bridge near Pacific, with the track washed out on both sides of the bridge.

Reports from Valley Park tell of the marooning of many men in boat clubs along the Meramec and of the wreck of many clubhouses, which have been partially destroyed by the torrent. The river there has risen 14 feet since Friday night, and is still rising. Lowlands of the surrounding district are flooded in many places.

Newburg, 70 miles further west, was reported as being partially inundated. Persons in Valley Park who talked with friends there earlier in the day reported that water rose so rapidly that many storekeepers were forced to move their stocks.

Valley Park Inundated.

A large portion of Valley Park was slightly inundated yesterday, and practically all stores were forced to close owing to high water. Over 50 members of various clubs nearby took refuge Friday night in the Valley Park Hotel, many of them having to wade from their clubs to the high ground. New Town, at the extreme east of Valley Park, which was almost entirely covered with water Friday, was practically clear yesterday, as much of the overflow passed off in Glaze Creek.

Twelve members of the Rustic Lodge, who went on an outing Thursday night awoke Friday morning, to find the river, usually 30 feet below their club, rapidly rising, and by nightfall they were marooned. Their two boats broke from their moorings and floated 100 feet away to the Missouri Pacific Railroad tracks.

Leo A. Maginn, assistant manager of the Central National Bank Building, swam to them and rowed them back so the other members could be transported safely to higher ground.

During Friday afternoon William J. Van Sickler of 5916 Von Versen avenue, and Carton Gleason, pulled in 11 canoes and the motor boat "Texas," the property of the Chanticleer Club, which were drifting down stream. Members of the Rustic Lodge, anchored a new 7-passenger touring car to four trees near their club house Friday afternoon. Yesterday morning the machine was covered by water.

All yesterday canoes, skiffs, paddles and camp equipment were seen drifting down the river. More than a dozen camps near Valley Park were under water. At the Chanticleer Club nine huge turtles took refuge on the front steps.

Harry Arnold, proprietor of a club at Valley Park, ordered all guests out Friday. Water swept into the place in the afternoon. The restaurant of Spencer McNeis was also flooded Friday morning.

Hundreds Desert Homes in Poplar Bluff When Levee Breaks.

POPLAR BLUFFS, Mo., Aug. 21.—Hundreds of persons in East Poplar Bluff are homeless tonight, and property damaged thousands of dollars as a result of a break in the Black River levee this morning, causing the water to rise 10 feet in the low section of that district.

Hundreds of women and children were rescued from their homes, which were floating around or lodged on trees or fences. The poor are being cared for in a factory building.

The water extends about five miles east of here. The farmers in the affected district report a complete loss of their corn crop and a heavy loss of livestock. Ties in timber camps have floated downstream and will mean thousands of dollars loss to Eastern tie companies and railroads.

Small towns and villages north of here have not been heard from since last night when they reported water rising fast and the inhabitants fleeing to the hills. Water is reported from five to seven feet deep over the Iron Mountain tracks between here and Piedmont.

Current River was reported rising rapidly near Doniphan this afternoon. Part of that town was later reported under water.

The water here was at a standstill late tonight and it is expected to fall slowly. It will be several days, however, before residents can return to their homes.

Many Persons Reported Marooned by Floods in Northern Arkansas.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Aug. 21.—Reports received tonight from towns on the upper reaches of the White River, in Northern Arkansas, indicate that the flood situation there has become serious. A steamboat was sent out late this afternoon from Batesville to the Oil Trough bottoms, where it is reported that many persons are marooned in their homes by the rapidly rising flood waters.

The drowning of C. S. Jordan, an aged ferryman, is reported from Heber Springs. A large portion of the lower section of Batesville is under water.

Traffic on the Missouri & North Arkansas Railroad is suspended except between Harrison and Eureka Springs. A portion of the St. Louis & San Francisco Railroad, running through North Arkansas, also is tied up by washouts.

MAYOR FOR BOND ISSUE TO MAKE DES PERES SAFE

He Advocates Spending $4,200,000 or More on Enclosing and Deepening River.

WOULD MAKE IT A SEWER

Plans Call for Covering of Stream Through Part of Course and Straightening the Rest.

Mayor Kiel and President Kinsey of the Board of Public Service expressed themselves yesterday in favor of submitting to the voters, within a few months, a proposal for a bond issue of $4,200,000 or more, to inclose and deepen the River des Peres in such a manner as to avert the danger of future floods.

Plans for this work were made five years ago by James A. Hooke, then Sewer Commissioner, and now Commissioner of Public Utilities. The plan is to convert the river into a sewer, from its entrance at the north city limits to the Lindenwood neighborhood, south of Manchester avenue. From there to the Mississippi it would be deepened and straightened, in such a manner as to remove its dangerous character.

Both the Mayor and Kinsey said they would favor including the River des Peres improvement with bond issue proposals for other purposes, the whole amounting to about $10,000,000. These could be submitted separately, under the precedent of the bond issue election at which the original bond issue for the Free Bridge was voted. Items of several hundred thousand dollars each for a new zoo, an anti-tuberculosis hospital, and farm buildings for the insane and workhouse prisoners, would probably be among those included in the series of proposals.

The Mayor said that, before deciding to put the city to the expense of a special election, about $60,000, he would try to determine whether the plan had a reasonable prospect of success. He said he would not decide on his course of action until the Board of Aldermen meets, Sept. 17.

Following the heavy property loss in Friday's flood, the Mayor said he believed the voters would consider the expenditure of $4,200,000 to prevent future floods an act of economy. The improvement would also abate the nuisance of the river's smell in Forest Park and in the residence districts through which it passes.

PROPERTY DAMAGE BY FLOOD HEAVY IN SUBURBAN DISTRICT

Many Acres of Corn and Wheat Virtually Ruined by Wind and Water.

HOUSES WASHED AWAY

Homes and Factories in East Alton and Other Places in Illinois Inundated.

Losses to property and crops in the towns and farming communities in the territory lying around St. Louis by the heavy rain and storm of Thursday night and Friday could not be estimated accurately yesterday, but the most conservative estimates ran the damage into hundreds of thousands of dollars.

All localities reporting agreed that this was the greatest rainfall in their history in the same period of time. By far the greatest damage was done to crops, with corn as the principal sufferer. The corn, which promised a large yield this year, was beginning to mature and the stalks were very tall and heavy. Because of this, much of the corn was blown down and uprooted. Some of it may yet right itself and mature, but many fields are considered a total loss.

Alton, Belleville, St. Charles, Jerseyville and Edwardsville reported great damage. In most places, however, the water had receded yesterday and the danger of further damage was past.

Drainage Canal Levee Breaks.

The village of East Alton was partially inundated Friday night when the newly completed drainage canal levee broke, allowing the water from Wood River to rush in. The flood swept through East Alton and overflowed the site of the Western Cartridge Co., causing the employes to flee and damaging the property heavily. This company, which is filling war orders for the allies, employs between 1500 and 1800 men and women. About 3 p. m. Friday the workers were notified to leave the plant, and when the levee broke at 6 p. m. only a few men were there. These climbed to the roof and were rescued in boats.

The principal damage of the Western Cartridge Co. was to its machinery. Some of the stock was washed away, but most of this was kept on the second floor of the large concrete building and was undamaged. The wooden stockade surrounding the plan and several small wooden buildings were carried away.

Manager F. W. Olin said yesterday it would be three or four days before the company can resume work on its rush orders.

Would Make Levee Higher.

Drainage Commissioners Fred Crandal, James Chessen and Ben Picker gave out a statement yesterday, in which they said the drainage canal had been constructed to take care of not more than two-thirds of the amount of water it was required to carry Friday. They said they will advise repairing the washed-out portion and building the entire levee two feet higher.

The water which flooded East Alton flowed south through Wood River and Benbow City. At Wood River it partially inundated the Standard Oil Co.'s refinery, causing a suspension of work. The damage there is not thought to be great. The business district of Benbow City suffered some loss by the water flooding the basements. Crops suffered heavily in this district. It was estimated that probably a third of the wheat crop was still in the fields and was either washed away or was ruined by the wind and rain.

In Belleville reports were received from farmers throughout St. Clair County showing that the damage to crops will be heavy. Most of the property loss was to factories in the Richland Creek Valley. The Imbs Milling Co. lost 7000 bushels of wheat. Its total loss was placed at $15,000. The loss of the Richland Milling Co. was estimated at between $8000 and $10,000, including 6000 bushels of wheat.

Many Dwellings Damaged.

In St. Clair County the Bell Telephone Co. lost $1000 worth of poles which were washed away. Between 300 and 400 dwellings in the Richland Creek valley were partially inundated and the contents damaged. Two bridges were washed away.

An odd feature of the flood was the falling of the bottom out of Val Hirth's house on North Race street, in Belleville. When the water began to rise around the house Hirth's family and the family of Harry Reifschneider, who also lived there, moved out. Returning later the men found water pouring into the basement and disappearing. They went down the cellar stairs and found the bottom had dropped out of the basement, leaving an apparently bottomless cavern. Wash tubs, laundry supplies and other goods stored in the basement were lost. It was said the house had been built over the abandoned and forgotten air shaft of a coal mine.

Farmers say that 60 per cent of the corn in the county is damaged beyond recovery. The peach crop also is almost a total loss because the wind blew the fruit from the trees. Thousands of birds were drowned. In the country dead quails and robins are seen everywhere and in the city sparrows are found dead in great numbers. Many chickens also were drowned.

Missouri Out of Banks.

No great property loss except to crops was reported in St. Charles and vicinity, although it was feared last night that considerable damage might yet be done by rising waters of the Missouri river. The stage of the Missouri river at St. Charles was 28 feet. The Mississippi was out of its banks and was overflowing a considerable area of farm land.

In St. Peters, about 12 miles from St. Charles, where considerable damage was caused by a tornado last July 12, the waters of Dardeene Creek inundated about 30 houses yesterday. The occupants got out safely. The town is protected by a concrete wall which resisted the flood, but a dirt levee south of the town gave way, allowing the water to back in. The water was still coming in last night. It is estimated that 1000 acres of farm land are covered by this backwater.

Many farmers in St. Charles County reported that their entire fields of corn were blown down and uprooted by the strong wind. Farmers were unable to say yesterday what part of this corn will be able to straighten up and mature. In some sections of the county wheat stacks were blown down and washed away. The total rainfall recorded in St. Charles for the 24 hours preceding the cessation of the rain early Saturday was 7.2 inches, which is the greatest in the history of town in a like period.

Heavy Damage Near Jerseyville.

In Jersey County, Illinois, the corn crop suffered severely from the wind and water. West of Jerseyville many homes were partly submerged, the residents going to higher ground. Backwater from the Illinois river covered about 15,000 acres of land with four feet of water. The Nutwood levee, which was built to protect this land, held, but the water came in from below. East of Jerseyville a large part of the wheat had been left in the fields in windrows. Most of this was scattered by the wind and ruined by rain. All small streams in the county were higher than ever before. In Green County, the bridge over Macoupin Creek between Jerseyville and Carrolton was washed out.

The steel and concrete bridge of the Illinois Terminal Railroad at Edwardsville collapsed at 5 p. m. yesterday, adding to the large damages already suffered by railroads near Edwardsville.

The waters of Cahokia Creek, pounding against the concrete piers of the railroad bridge, which are 42 feet high, undermined them yesterday. When the bridge went down, several men living in Edwardsville were caught on the opposite side from the city. The rails were not broken, but remained suspended, forming with the ties a web-like girder spanning the 200 feet across the stream. Several men who were caught on the opposite side of the river, after waiting until nearly dark, gave a spectacular exhibition by walking this frail bridge over the raging current. Hundreds of persons on the bank watched them.

Levee Near Granite City Threatened.

Late yesterday many citizens of Edwardsville, railroad employes and farmers, went to Poag to try to save the levee which turns the waters of Cahokia and Indian creeks away from Granite City. It was feared that this levee could not long withstand the flood. Its breaking probably would mean the serious flooding of Granite City.

Yesterday all trains of the Chicago & Alton, the Wabash, the Illinois Central, the Vandalia and the Big Four were detoured over a coal road known as the Litchfield and Madison Railroad, between East St. Louis and Edwardsville. Damage to tracks made this necessary.

Last night almost normal conditions were reported from these towns. Electric light plants, which were out of commission Friday night, were again operating, and transportation was restored. The water had gone down nearly everywhere except in the big streams.

Forest Park Open for Band Concerts No Tennis Playing

THERE will be no tennis playing in Forest Park today, and only a limited amount of practice golf. The tennis courts were still under water yesterday, and a part of the golf links needed further draining. Some of the baseball diamonds will not be in use today, but those on higher ground can be used.

All entrances of the park, it is expected, will be open to automobiles this afternoon. The work of repairing the roads near the north entrances, and of mending damaged bridges will be completed by noon, Park Commissioner Cunliff said last evening.

This afternoon's band concert will be given at the World's Fair Pavilion, on the hill north of the bird cage. The regular bandstand, on low ground, in the north central part of the park, was under two feet of water yesterday.

CRUDE OIL ADVANCED 10 CENTS A BARREL IN SOUTHWEST

Subsidiary of Standard Pays 75 Cents in Oklahoma and Kansas Markets.

Crude oil, from which gasoline is manufactured, was advanced 10 cents a barrel in the Oklahoma and Kansas markets yesterday by the Prairie Oil and Gas Co., one of the Standard Oil subsidiaries, according to press dispatches. The advance brought the price up to 75 cents a barrel. There has been an increase of 35 cents a barrel in the last 20 days.

The independent dealers in gasoline, in advancing their prices in St. Louis last week, gave as their reason the continued advances in the price of crude oil by the Standard Oil Co., which controls a large part of the output. While the independents were selling gasoline in St. Louis yesterday for 10 cents a gallon, for automobile purposes, the Standard Oil Co. was adhering to its price of 8.9 cents a gallon. The managers of the local branches said that so far as they knew the Standard would not advance the price of gasoline.

As soon as the Prairie Oil and Gas Co. offered 75 cents a barrel for crude oil in the Oklahoma and Kansas fields, the independents also bid that price. Many big operators had been waiting for 75-cent crude oil before producing oil on a big scale. There has been a heavy demand for oil for export since the outbreak of the European war, according to local dealers.

LARGE PART OF EAST ST. LOUIS IS UNDER WATER

Laborer Falls From Boat Near Forest Place and King's Highway and Is Drowned.

DIKE AT POGUE IS SAFE

300 Homes in City Marooned; 6 Feet of Water at Fortieth and Waverly.

Although a large area of East St. Louis was under water last night, there had been only one death. Martin Janick, a laborer, fell out of a boat near Forest place and King's highway at 4:30 p. m. and was drowned. The body was recovered tow hours later by Deputy Sheriffs.

Approximately 300 homes in Lansdowne, Granby Park, Washington Park and Fairmont were marooned. At the usually busy corner of Fortieth street and Waverly place the water was up to the top of the counters in a drug store, and was about 6 feet deep in the street. This district was flooded when the Drainage Canal, two miles northeast of East St. Louis, broke Friday night.

Waverly place is under water as far west as Thirtieth street. Many people living on the streets in the Granby Park district stayed on the second floors of their homes, keeping boats tied to their front porches. Occupants of one-story houses, however, had to move out. Virtually the entire police headquarters worked all of yesterday taking families from their homes in boats which were hauled from Jones' Park.

Jones Park Under Water.

A considerable part of Jones Park is under water, and the swimming pool and the lagoon overflowed and merged, flooding Caseyville road. More than half of the Jones Park car line is under water, and no attempt was made to operate cars yesterday.

Officials of the Levee Board, working to repair the Wabash Railroad embankment by Diversion Channel, at Pogue, reported last night that danger of a break in the dike was past. There was an alarming report in the afternoon that a break was imminent, and 250 men, with 5000 bags for sand, were rushed there.

The territory served by the Washington Park car line is under six feet of water, from Fortieth street to the end of the line. The water on Fortieth street extends south almost to Caseyville road.

All the houses on Nectar avenue, east of Fifteenth street, are marooned, and a block of Fifteenth street, a Gross avenue, is covered by several inches of water.

Policemen in Boats.

Houses in the neighborhood of the Drainage Canal at Sixty-fourth and State streets, still were untenable last night.

The water rose an inch in the Lansdowne section yesterday, and showed no signs of abating at 9 o'clock last night. Night Chief of Police Hickey kept a dozen policemen patroling the district in boats last night.

Police Sergeant Christian said that while he was in a boat near Sixty-fourth and State streets a large water moccasin crawled into the boat. He killed it with an oar. There were reports yesterday that snakes floated into a number of houses in Washington Park.

Whaley of Bowie, Tex., was killed, Mrs. Whaley and another son, Elmo, 11, were badly hurt and Ruth Whaley, 14, and May and Mark Anthony of Memphis, Tex., were slightly injured today when their automobile was struck by a Denver & Rio Grande passenger train, near Fountain, Colo.

Conditions last week were such as to make activity in the cause of the babies well-nigh impossible. Out-of-door effort is necessary in the raising of money, and there were few hours during the week when children could venture forth save upon the most urgent requirements. It is not strange, therefore, that the aggregate amount added to the Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund was comparatively small.

But there is expected to follow a more or less lengthy period of favorable weather. Should this prove to be the case it will be a fortunate circumstance for the needy infants, since there are hundreds of girls and boys ready and eager to manifest sympathy for the cause in a practical manner before schools open.

The storm of Thursday and Friday was especially severe in its effect upon the well-being of the babies depending upon the St. Louis Pure Milk Commission for nourishment of the life-saving and health-building character. They were not deprived of it, altogether, however. A substitute for the fresh milk usually dispensed through the commission was obtained in the best available brands of evaporated milk, this constituting the supplies distributed Friday and Saturday. Secretary Mortland was moved to this recourse by the knowledge that scores of babies were in that stage where failure to provide them with pure and wholesome nourishment, even though it be not fully up to the standard of the fresh milk, might prove disastrous to them.

No Fresh Milk to Be Had.

"Not a pint of milk was to be had in St. Louis today," Mortland said to a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday. "Trains were unable to get in from any direction from which milk supplies are obtained, and it became imperative to collect a substitute milk in order to avert possible fatal consequences to some of the little patients. For a couple of days the evaporated article will suffice, but it would not do for any prolonged dependence. We will have the fresh article here by tomorrow. Men are going out in automobiles to the farm from which we obtain the bulk of our milk, about 40 miles out, and will bring in enough to meet requirements until trains are again moving regularly. It is the first time in 11 years that such a condition has arisen."

The big event for the babies is scheduled for Tuesday afternoon and evening. That is the date of the West End Business Men's Association fifteenth annual outing and free barbecue at Delmar Garden. The more than 1000 members of that body were not content to enjoy the day in a purely selfish manner and turned attention to the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund as that most deserving of their attention. Dr. B. W. Clarke, president of the association, Secretary Gensburger and Chairman Strother of the entertainment committee at once took up the work of devising plans, calling to their assistance John S. Harris, assistant to the vice president of the American Trust Co., who possesses a genius for that sort of organization and execution.

The program arranged for the benefit of the cause of the babies embraces an entertainment in the garden theater that will consume a little more than one hour. There will be moving pictures of the latest and best order, music by an orchestra of leading professional musicians and numbers by a quirtet provided by J. Glenn Lee. All these features have been cheerfully donated as an evidence of profound interest in the welfare of the needy infants. The orchestra is contributed by the Musicians' Mutual Benefit Association as a whole, for the men rendering the service will receive compensation from the treasury of the organization. Another feature that promises rare entertainment is a drill by the First Regiment of National Guard of Missouri.

Auction to Be a Feature.

A special feature that is expected to to yield a substantial sum to the Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund is an auction of articles donated by the wholesale and retail merchants of St. Louis, conducted by Alex. Selkirk, one of the city's noted auctioneers. A committee of business men, with John S. Harris as chairman, was named by President Clarke to campaign for these donations, and 1649 letters to that end were sent out. The auction is to take place early in the evening, at the time when the garden probably will contain the largest number of people in its history and the spirit of good will and benevolence is at its highest stage.

In recognition of the valiant work of the girls and boys of St. Louis in ministering to the needs of the poor babies, the West End Business Men's Association introduced a coupon system whereby free admission to the garden and freedom of the various concessions might be open to them. The appended coupons have but to be cut from the Post-Dispatch and presented to obtain the privilege indicated on each of them. They are:

The only element in the situation that is likely to bring disappointment to the association members is unfavorable weather. That is something they cannot, of ocurse, control. Each of the members has been given a liberal supply of tickets and, with the coupons as above, the attendance promises to set a record. The occasion has been fully provided for in the way of attractions, including, besides the free barbecue, speeches by Gov. Major and Mayor Kiel, to whom a complimentary dinner is also to be given.

A Plea for Good Weather.

"Do you think we may depend upon the weather bird to give us good weather Monday evening?" little Mary Jane Badino inquired of the Post-Dispatch yesterday. This ardent little friend of the poor babies had in mind the lawn carnival first planned for Wednesday, then postponed to Friday because of inclement weather, and for the second time deferred because of the utterly impossible conditions. Little Miss Badino and her chums, Marie Kehoe and Gertrude Coughlin, are distressed by the double disappointment because they were delayed in their annual endeavor for the cause by the need of providing relief for a needy family coming to their attention. But there probably will be no further interruption of their plans, which are for a charming entertainment Monday evening at 3852 West Pine boulevard. Dancing, songs, recitations, piano numbers and other features have been arranged, these to be supplemented by sales of soda water, cakes and candy.

An affair of the ambitious type for the benefit of the babies is announced for Saturday evening at the Lindell Theater, Grand avenue and Hebert street, under the direction of Miss S. Friedlob. This is Miss Friedlob's fourth year of active interest in the Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund, and she began preparation for it three months ago. The play is of her own design and construction, entitled "Come to the Land of Bohemia," and affords excellent scope for a wealth of vaudeville sketches in costume. The scene throughout is a garden harmonizing with the theme, and there are 20 girls and boys in the cast, each especially adapted to the work assigned them. Among these is Miss Elsie Geigher, 15 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max Geigher. She is a girl of marked beauty and charm of manner, who has achieved broad fame in that section of St. Louis by reason of her unusually skilled dancing.

Show on Garfield Avenue.

Several talented girls and boys, inspired by opportunity to render aid to a great cause, gave a delightful performance at 5144 Garfield avenue, realizing $1.50. These young philanthropists are Genevieve and Challen White, Mary Murphy, Ellen and Cecelia Gleason, Marion and Winifred Hopton.

Another band of little folks gave a show at 1459 Shawmut place and "want to turn over the money they made for the babies' Pure Milk and Ice Fund," they wrote, in sending the Post-Dispatch $1.10. They are Clara, Ruth, Doris and Elmer Werminghaus, Mildred Hudson, Tommy Coleman and Meir Sacks.

Raymond Hartmann of 5864 Ridge avenue gave a bazar for the benefit of the babies, raising $1.17.

Twelve little girls and boys of Webster Groves united for a benefit entertainment for the babies, and worked so faithfully and efficiently that it proved to be a most charming event for the large number of people, young and old, who responded to the opportunity for an evening of pleasure combined with a benevolent deed. The little ones organized an especially attractive program of tableaux vivantes, which they presented in handsome and appropriate costumes, the acts being drawn from "Mother Goose Rhymes," "Sunbonnet Babies," and other works appealing to children. The amount realized was $7.60. The entertainment was given in the small clubhouse on the racquet grounds of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Blood, on Lockwood avenue. The girls and boys who drew no little distinction to themselves through intelligent work in the sketches are Misses Florence, Eleanor, Isabelle and Helen Blood, Virginia Ryan, Harriet Manter, Katherine and Annie Trask Thomson, Elizabeth Hale, Rowena Held and Masters Horton Ryan and Frank Beck.

"Cabanne Kiddies" Give Show.

"The Cabanne Kiddies," six tots, gave a charming Charley Chaplin show for the Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund by the result being a contribution of $1.90.

Alice Wright, a negro girl residing at 16 North Garrison avenue, writes the Post-Dispatch that she has been greatly impressed by the splendid aid rendered the Pure Milk and Ice Fund by the Young People's Society of All Saints' Church, the first negro organization to take an active interest in the well-being of the poor babies, and that she will at once commence to organize her friends for a benefit for the same cause. She is confident, she writes, that the example set by the All Saints' organization will be followed in many directions and that the effort she will make will be productive of an equal or greater sum for the cause.

Autos Sent to County Farms to Get Milk for Poor Children.

H. E. Mortman, secretary of the St. Louis Pure Milk Commission, sent automobiles yesterday to farms in the county to obtain a supply of fresh milk for the poor children of the city. He found it impossible to secure good milk in the city because of the difficulty dairymen have had in getting their deliveries from the farms because of the cutting off suburban trains.

While awaiting the return of the automobiles, Mortman said that the commission is supplying evaporated milk to those dependant upon it for supply. He said that this is the first time in 11 years that similar conditions have prevailed in St. Louis. In some cases the automobiles will go fully 40 miles outside the city in search of fresh milk.

HOLDS CLAIMANT IS NOT LEGAL SON OF R. R. GORDEN

TAYLORVILLE, Ill., Aug. 21.—A decision which it is believed will have an important bearing on the suit of Adolphus Scott of Decatur, Ill., in the St. Louis Probate Court, claiming the $200,000 estate of Randall R. Gorden, who died in St. Louis in September, 1913, was handed down here today by Probate Judge Prater. In a similar suit he ruled that Scott had failed to establish his contention that he was the legitimate son of Gorden and held that the Illinois part of the estate must be disposed of by the administrators in accordance with the will of the deceased.

Under the will of Gorden $40,000 was left to the First Christian Church of St. Louis of which the Rev. J. L. Brandt is pastor and the remainder to two of Gorden's five brothers. The will did not mention a son.

Gorden was known as a wealthy bachelor and after the filing of his will the three brothers not benefiting by it instituted a contest, which was compromised. Mrs. Maude Close, a widow, of 714 Clara avenue, St. Louis, then filed suit for $10,000 for acting as nurse and companion for Gorden in the last three years of his life. She alleged she was betrothed to Gorden when he died. The Probate and Circuit Courts of St. Louis awarded $5000 to her, but the Circuit Court granted a new trial.

Legal Marriage Not Proved.

In handing down his decision Judge Prater gave a comprehensive review of the evidence, which is the same as that forming the basis of the St. Louis suit and which was given before Probate Judge Holtcamp of St. Louis in a hearing beginning July 9.

Judge Prater held that the overwhelming preponderence of the evidence showed that there had never been a legal marriage as claimed by the plaintiff, between Gorden and Mary E. Scott, mother of Adolphus Scott. Scott relied upon the testimony of his mother's sister, Mrs. H. B. Dills, who lives near Decatur, and that of Mrs. Close, to prove the marriage of Mary E. Scott to Gorden. This testimony was to the effect that in December, 1879 Gorden and Miss Scott eloped to St. Louis and were married.

Mother Died After Son's Birth.

Mrs. Dills testified that Gorden and her sister lived at her home as man and wife for several months thereafter, and that a son was born to her sister the following year. They then went to her parents' home, she said, and made known their marriage. The mother died soon after her son's birth.

Mrs. Close testified that Gorden had told her he had once been married and that his wife had died after his son was born.

Judge Prater said other evidence showed that Gorden was boarding in Blue Mound at the time Mrs. Dills said he was living at her home. He also held that credence should not be given to Mrs. Close's testimony in view of the circumstances. He said evidence showed that Gorden had always lived and transacted business as a single man and that Mary E. Scott was always known as a single woman.

Gorden left a part of his estate to the First Christian Church of St. Louis because it was the church he belonged to and attended during the last three years of his life while he lived in St. Louis.

The Unified Tread Co., 4142 Olive street, has patented a new method of joining two old casings so as to make one good one therefrom. The bead is cut from the outer casing and the two are then riveted together on the edge. The rivets are staggered. This is claimed to be a superior method.

HUPMOBILE SERVICE STATIONS EVERYWHERE

Nation-wide service for the care of Hupmobiles is a plan which has been announced by the Hupp Motor Car Co. The Detroit concern has developed a system by which it is establishing service stations throughout the United States and Canada, at any one of which Hupmobile owners will be able to secure proper attention for their cars. The St. Louis station is with the Weber Implement and Automobile Co.

Every motorist knows the value of service. But heretofore it has always been local and not general in practice. A dealer in one town attempting to give service has had one plan and a dealer in an adjoining town had an entirely diffirent system. Both were trying to give their customers good service, but there was no uniform plan by which an owner was guaranteed that he would get any specific attention to his car.

The Hupp Motor Car Co. has eliminated this old policy by establishing Hupmobile service stations throughout the country. There will be one of these stations in each small town and as many in the larger towns and cities as is necessary to take care of the Hupmobile owners. Each service station is under the jurisdiction of the local Hupmobile dealer, who in turn is under the direct factory service department management of the Hupp Motor Car Co. These stations are designated by special Hupmobile service signs.

The new Hupmobile plan is explained by Sales Manager Lee Anderson as follows: "The amount of service work each purchaser of a Hupmobile is entitled to is regulated and guaranteed by a coupon book issued by the company with each car. Each coupon book contains 100 coupons, each available as full payment for one-half hour service labor on the car when presented at any Hupmobile station in the United States or Canada. This coupon book is guaranteed through a special service fund which has been created and is controlled by the Hupp Motor Car Co. and its dealer. Each dealer and the company have contributed to this fund for the benefit of the owners, a certain amount to each car manufactured."

NEW MODELS INTERESTING

It is surprising how much interest is displayed by the general public in the plans of automobile manufacturers relative to new models. This has been very notoceably emphasized the past week by the comment the Studebaker announcement for 1916 has created in numerous cities. Word received from Studebaker branch house managers and dealers over the country is to one effect, that never before has such interest and enthusiasm been shown over new models. Indications are also said to point that the coming year will prove the greatest selling season in the history of the industry.

More than ever the automobile is being used for business purposes, for pleasure and recreation. Horse delivery is regarded as a luxury to a business of even ordinary size. The day seems to be approaching rapidly when every man with what may be considered a comfortable income will be the possessor of a motor car. These conditions help toward creating a general public interest in what the manufacturers are doing. The effect of this interest is to develop the new buyers who make it possible for the quantity producer to lower his prices. A goodly portion of these readers of automobile announcements may not be immediately concerned in the purchase of a car, but their interest indicates that the educational effect may some time produce results.

Each succeeding year has brought more exacting demands from the buyers of cars in the way of greater serviceability. Recognizing the insistance for more pulling power, Studebaker has enlarged the bore of the motors in the new models, and made other changes that now produce 50 horsepower in the six-cylinder motors and 40 in the four-cylinder.

ROADSTER GOES TO COAST

Crossing the continent from Du Bois, Pa., to San Francisco, over the Lincoln highway in exactly 21 days of continuous driving is the record just made by H. L. Kriner and D. A. Yingling in a Saxon roadster.

With a total mileage of 3600 miles to the credit of the car on this trip, Kriner and Yingling used only 158 gallons of gasoline and 10 3-4 gallons of oil, at a total cost of $34.96. They reported upon reaching the coast that the car had surprised them during the trip with its ability to keep from overheating while crossing the Rockies. The tourists did most of their driving on high gear and declared that the motor seldom showed any signs of laboring.

After visiting the exposition in San Francisco, Kriner and Yingling will drive to Los Angeles and San Diego and will return home to Du Bois, Pa., over the Southern route.

CADILLAC BEATS TRAIN IN SCHEDULED RACE

Telegram, dated July 24, from Denver to the Cadillac Automobile Co. of St. Louis tells of the victory of a Cadillac "8" driven by Harold Brinker in winning a sensational road race from Denver to Cheyenne, Wyo., a distance of 116 miles, made in two hours and fifteen minutes. The fastest railroad time scheduled between these points in three hours. The race was between the Cadillac "8" and a Union Pacific special train pulled by a ten-wheel locomotive, consisting of four steel coaches and running on a faster schedule than ever before attempted. The Cadillac car beat the train by three minutes.

Announcement of the Cadillac 1916 "8" is that no radical changes in its essential features have been made, the success of the last year's production of 13,000 cars having been too marked for a radical change. The body, hood and radiator are somewhat altered in appearance. The price is $105 higher than last year and explanation is made by General Manager W. C. Leland, that it was impossible to continue the production of so fine a car at the old price without actual loss thereon.

LONG DRIVE; SEALED HOOD

Edward Scampton of the Baltimore Studebaker agency accomplished a feat remarkably successful in demonstrating what little attention the new Studebaker motors require, once properly tuned, by driving a model six from the Detroit factories to his home city with a locked hood. The lock was sealed before the start, the key being sent to Mayor Preston, who opened the hood for the first time since the start of the trip when the car reached Baltimore Sunday afternoon. Mr. Scampton left Detroit on the preceding Thursday evening. A large crowd was attracted to the Baltimore city hall when the unsealing ceremonies took place, and the interest shown in the accomplishment prompted Frank B. Donovan the Baltimore dealer, to wire the factory, asking that his order of cars be rushed forward.

An auxiliary pipe for oiling was so arranged that it would not be necessary to open the hood for lubrication purposes. A message by wire was received from Baltimore, stating that the car had performed wonderfully on the trip and at the conclusion had made every hill in the vicinity of the Oriole City with ease on high gear.

KING "8" IN RACE WITH YAQUI INDIANS

Louis R. Brand, his wife and two boys aged three and seven have arrived at Los Angeles from war troubled Sonora after many thrilling experiences and giving full credit for escaping with their lives to the dependency of their King eight automobile.

Mr. Brand has mining interests in the country where the Yaquis Indians are on a warpath. Although his presence was needed at the mines his interest in the lives of his wife and children was greater. To have remained looked like sure death. Mr. Brand was prevailed to make a dash for safety in his motor car. The country he would be forced to drive through for California was infested with hostile Indians, eager for the white man's scalp.

One hundred and 50 miles stretched from the mine to the border, over roads seldom used through deep sand and across malapai washes. Accident to the King would have been fatal for the party, for the Indians would not have allowed them to escape. Only once were they attacked. That was in crossing a long stretch of sandy desert about 50 miles from the mine. A small group of Yaquis approaching from a side road saw the car coming and then began a race to see who would reach the crossroads first. The Indians had only a little way to go, and the motorist more than a mile, but the eight cylinder under the hood of the King responded nobly to the demand and the car crossed the distance in little more than a minute.

One of the Indians tried a long range shot with his rifle, but the bullet whistled harmlessly over the heads of the party. It wasa thrilling ride, with ruts and chuck holes often disregarded, and all speed possible was made.

MOTOR CYCLISTS ON RUN

Last Sunday 50 of the best known motor cycle riders of St. Louis made a run of about 40 miles to Eureka, Mo., where they had dinner with Mrs. F. A. Finney. Nearly every make of motor cycle in St. Louis was in the run. There was one woman rider, Mrs. J. S. Ellis, who rode a Cyclone and kept apace with the best riders in the bunch.

WILL DOUBLE ST. LOUIS ASSEMBLING PLANT

It is unofficially announced that the Ford Motor Co. of Detroit will build a large addition to its St. Louis assembling plant, the work to begin as soon as architectural plans can be completed. The present plant at Sarah street and Forest Park boulevard has been found inadequate to cover the plans of the Ford company for the coming year. In fact it is strongly rumored that the Ford company intends to build during the coming year 750,000 cars. The first rumor given out was that the company would double its output of 1915 by building about 600,000 cars. The second rumor of 750,000 cars has not been confirmed officially.

William Kahn, supervision architect, and William F. Knudson, superintendent of assembling plants for the Ford Motor Co., were in St. Louis early last week and conferred with W. C. Anderson, St. Louis branch manager, in regard to the erection of the additional plant.

The new branch house is to be built just west of the present building and will be exactly the same size, thus doubling the capacity of the St. Louis plant. About 20,000 cars a year have heretofore been assembled at the St. Louis plant. J. J. Wright, who has been assistant amnager in St. Louis, has been sent to Memphis to take charge of the Ford branch there. The Memphis branch manager has gone to Washington, D. C., to manage the new plant there, which is opposite the White House and which is designed to be a monument to Henry Ford.

LAST LEG OF LINCOLN HIGHWAY MARKED

The last leg of the Lincoln Highway stretching from Denver and Cheyenne west to the Pacific Coast, is about to be guide-posted by the National Touring Bureau of the B. F. Goodrich Co., in preparation for the great army of motorists who will take that route in their cars this summer to the expositions and California. It is estimated that some 75,000 cars carrying over 300,000 people will traverse the three big transcontinental routes to the Pacific Coast during the next few months.

The Lincoln Highway passes through Salt Lake City, crosses the desert to Carson City and then strikes into Eastern California to Sacramento and San Francisco. The Goodrich Touring Bureau estimates that it will require more than 1000 of their indestructible guide posts to cover this route and that the cost to them will average full $15 for each post erected. A truck and crew will follow the route and place the blue and white enamel guide posts at spots which have already been selected.

The Goodrich guide posts will be erected on substantial metal posts which can not be easily destroyed, and the signs themselves will be of indestructible material of such construction that it cannot be destroyed by shotgun, rifle or by the cattle of the plains. With over 60,000 on over 70,000 miles of the most traveled highways in the country, the Goodrich Touring Bureau has had some trouble with vandalism and in some cases guide posts have been destroyed.

When the route from Denver west has been posted the entire link from ocean to ocean will be completed by the Goodrich Bureau.

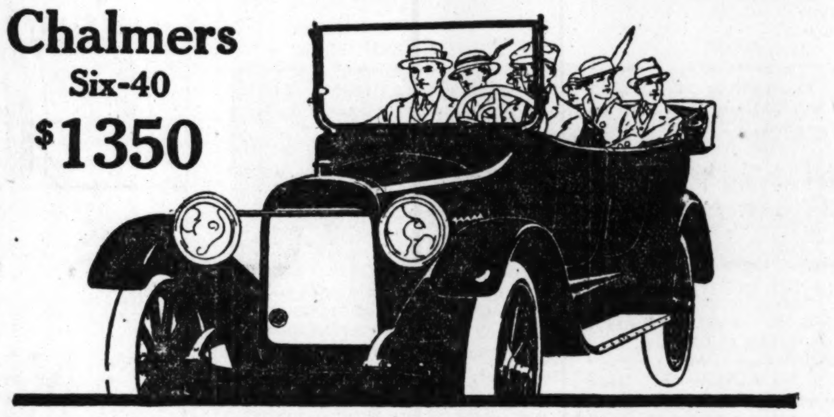
Chalmers Six-40 $1350



The Distinguishing Marks of a Distinguished Motor Car

No other car is so easily distinguished as a Chalmers Six-40 because no other car is so distinguished,

Only one other American car has fenders like it—and its price is $5000. There is no other radiator that has just the Chalmers' fine lines—so high and narrow and distinctive.

CHALMERS bodies are neither sprayed, dipped nor baked. Twenty-one operations are required to bring them up to Chalmers "Quality First" standards.

No Car Has Better Finish

Chalmers finish is superfine "coach" work and no car can have better.

The body is carefully prepared for the finish by the process known as sand-blasting. The colors are then laid on by men who have mastered the artistic possibilities of paint.

Comfortable as Any Priced Car

No car at any price can be more comfortable than the Chalmers Six-40.

The rear springs are of special vanadium steel construction and are 57 inches long—the longest springs on any car in the world at the price.

But springs alone will not give comfort in a motor car; neither will upholstery. It takes just as much thought and manufacturing skill to build comfort into a car as it does to make it mechanically perfect.

The Chalmers "Six-40" seven-passenger model is a big, luxurious car, roomy enough for seven grown-ups to lean back and ride at ease. It is as comfortable as your favorite arm chair.

The deep seats which are upholstered in leather and the deep side-walls furnish a support for the body that eliminates all strain and fatigue from motoring. Unusually wide doors enable people to step into this car easily without having to turn sideways.

The Pride of Distinction

There is a certain pride of distinctiveness in the ownership of your Chalmers Six-40.

You have the consciousness of being well groomed—your car's apparel is of the best weave and fabric. The prestige of rank and accepted style surrounds it.

20% More Power

The powerful valve-in-head motor is the same type with which DePalma's and Resta's $20,000 racers were equipped when they won the Indianapolis and Chicago races at the undreamed of averages of 90, 98 and 102 miles an hour.

The performance of this motor is simply marvelous. It is the "20 per cent more power motor"—the motor all Europe was using when the war stopped operations there.

It has the pull of a locomotive—a giant's strength in a man's body.

New Service to Owners

Every Chalmers dealer now gives to every buyer of a Chalmers car a Service Coupon Book, each coupon good for a definite amount of service redeemable at any Chalmers dealer.

The only comparisons ever made with Chalmers cars are made with higher priced cars—either foreign or American. And this is especially true of the Chalmers Six-40 at $1350—the lowest price at which Chalmers Quality has ever been sold.

The Chalmers Club

Every Chalmers owner is invited to join the Chalmers Club. Every member receives regularly without charge "The Chalmers Clubman", and a membership card commending the owner to the courtesies of Chalmers representatives everywhere.

FIVE HOURS OF FESTIVITIES WHEN DRUGGISTS DINE

St. Louis Boosted at Banquet Which Ends Campaign for New Members.

The St. Louis Drug Club—500 strong—celebrated the end of a membership campaign Friday night with a "Catch the Pill Rollers" banquet at Sunset Inn, where the festivities lasted for five hours.

Mayor Kiel, former Mayor Cyrus P. Walbridge and others made addresses.

The banquet assumed a 'made at home" cabaretic tone when various members enlivened the hours with jest and song; Mr. and Mrs. J. Beekman were encored time and again with their Bavarian and Tyrolean songs; and Lieberstein was applauded for his violin solos.

Jack Ryan Tells Stories.

Although Jack Ryan, one of the guests of the occasion, was not called upon until after midnight, he held the throng with his jests told in many dialects of the people he had met. The Paragon Quartet and two young women imported for the banquet added to the gaiety.

Frank S. Klein was awarded a gold medal for having obtained the highest number of members in the campaign, and John S. Harris of the American Trust Co., was elected an honorary member for the interest he had taken in the organization.

F. J. O'Neill, club president, told of the growth of the club since 1913, when it had only 42 members. M. L. Wilkinson, president of the Scruggs-Vandervoort-Barney Dry Goods Co., a guest, filed his application for membership one minute before being called upon for his address.

Wilkinson deplored the "cut price" methods of some merchants, and said that no business could thrive without a profit. "I know," he added, "Because the first money I lost in business was while running a drug store."

Charles F. Krone, as toastmaster, enlivened the evening with his facetious remarks when introducing each speaker. "Gentlemen, let us make this occasion a funeral," he said when he arose. "That is, a funeral of the knocker, who has no place in St. Louis of today."

Hot Curling Iron Goes —No More Broken Hair!

Every woman knows that continual use of the hot curling iron means brittle, blistered, parched, dead-looking hair with burnt, uneven ends. There's no need of anyone using that instrument of torture, now that we know what can be accomplished by the occasional application of ordinary liquid silmerine. This is not only more effective, giving the hair a fluffier and most lasting curl, but tends to promote its health, luster and beauty. Any druggist can supply silmerine in liquid form, and a few ounces will last many months, so it is quite economical to use.

The approved way is to part the hair in several strands and with a clean toothbrush apply the liquid the full length of each strand. The over-night transformation is agreeably surprising to one who has never tried this simple and harmless method.—ADV.

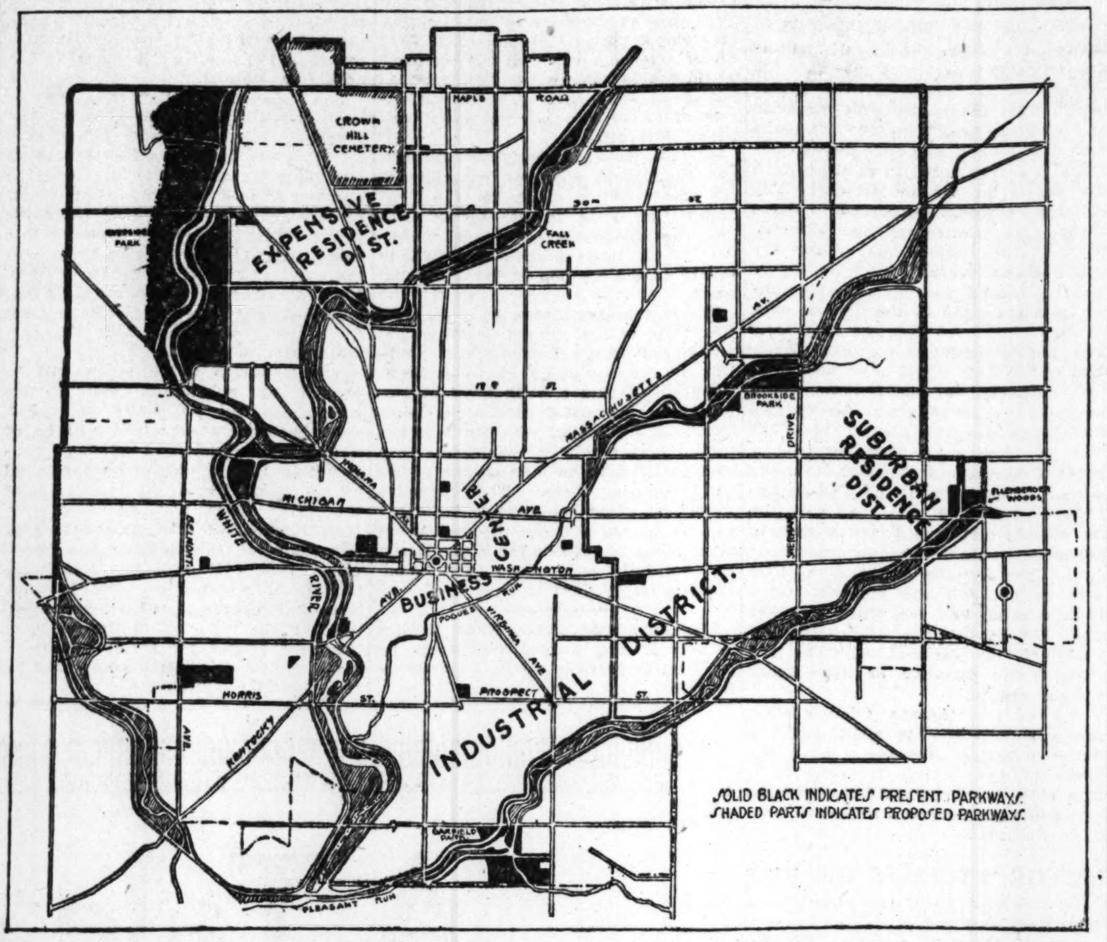
Indianapolis Quietly Working Out Definite Plan for Beautification of City With Parks and Boulevards

George E. Kessler of St. Louis Actively Directing the Work



SOLID BLACK INDICATES PRESENT PARKWAYS.
SHADED PARTS INDICATES PROPOSED PARKWAYS.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Aug. 21.—Indianapolis has been working for six years on the execution of a definite plan to surround itself with a chain of parks, boulevards and parked streams. The brass band feature of the work has been studiously neglected and not only outsiders, but many persons living here, who have neglected to read the Park Board's annual report, have not known much about what was being done.

But the stage of concealment, or of quiet work, is over. The work has progressed so far, and is becoming so conspicuous, that the city is talking about it, and visitors, if they go outside the business district, cannot help noticing it.

So the park authorities are announcing, with pardonable pride, that the work already done, or now in hand, will mean the expenditure of $1,250,000; that the completion of the entire $3,000,000 plan is now assured; and that five or six years hence Indianapolis will be inviting the people of sister cities here, to show them one of the most complete systems of city beautification in the country.

Kansas City, with its now famous park and boulevard system, gave the inspiration for this city's undertaking. And the work was planned, and is still being actively directed, by George E. Kessler of St. Louis, the landscape engineer who transformed Kansas City.

This does not mean that Indianapolis has imitated Kansas City. Two cities more different in physical characteristics could hardly be found in America. Kansas City is mostly perpendicular, and Indianapolis is mostly horizontal. Kansas City has its bluffs and its "Big Muddy." Indianapolis has its confluent group of clear streams, scarcely noticed by the passing traveler, and humble enough in their past uses, but capable of being made as pleasing as the Cam or the Avon.

Kansas City put its best foot forward by parking its hills and terracing its bluffs. Indianapolis is putting its best foot forward by parking its streams and by linking these parked streams, by means of boulevards, to the parks, conveniently located at the city's outer edge. Thus a 22-mile boulevard is being made, which, in a general way, will surround the city, although it is well inside the limits at some points, and outside at other points.

Lined With Costly Residences.

Wherever it borders a stream, this boulevard becomes a double roadway, on either side of the stream. At the north of the city (Thirty-eighth street, numbering from the business center), the highway is a single road, 100 feet wide, known as Maple road, which is being lined with costly residences.

All this sounds very much like the working out of a "city plan." It is, in the sense that it is concerted work, designed in advance as a whole, and not haphazard or piecemeal. But the plan was never submitted as a whole to the voters of Indianapolis. If this had been done, officials say, it might have fared as the St. Louis Parkway project did.

Kessler worked out, and the Park Board adopted, this "city plan," but they did not scare the people by showing them the whole thing on paper, or telling them of the $3,000,000 that it would cost.

Instead, they avoided bond issue proposals, and asked the Legislature for a law that would permit the taxing of benefited localities for parkway work. They put this law into operation gradually, raising about $200,000 a year by this means, and buying and improving land at different points, making enough of a highway in each case to attract a good class of improvements.

These funds were unexpectedly increased by bequests, which have in the last few years amounted to $400,000, and which were for the most part without "strings," placing the money at the Park Board's disposal, for the purchase or improvement of parkway land. These bequests are regarded as expressions of confidence in the Park Board, a non-political, unsalaried body, of which Dr. Henry Jameson has for seven years been president. The other members are John J. Appel, James W. Fesler and Henry Seyfried.

The White River, running from north to south through West Indianapolis, and having already on both sides, at the north, the very attractive Riverside Park, was made the main line of the parking project. For a part of the way, it flows through a factory and packing house district. This district was flooded in the spring of 1913, with great property loss, and the city Board of Works is now beginning a work of flood protection that will cost millions, and that has made room and furnished a base for the parkway work.

Three creeks, tributaries of White River, run through Indianapolis. Of these, Fall Creek on the north, and Pleasant Run on the south, are to be parked for their whole length within the city. The middle one, Pogue's Run, is being parked in its eastern part, up to the point where it becomes a submerged sewer. The building of this sewer, a big engineering job, is now under way.

Formerly Were Dumping Places.

These creeks, like most small streams within city boundaries, formerly were used as dumping places. Today, they are being lined with turf, and roadways are being built on either side of them. Kessler's plan demanded the improvement of both sides of each of these streams, and he insisted, furthermore, that the land acquired along the banks should be wide enough to permit the canalizing of the streams, if the city should ever decide to take the kinks out of them. This width also makes it possible to keep the new roadways free from sharp turns, and to make them practicable streets, which will invite the building of homes. Thus far, the new driveways have been lined with dwellings, as fast as they have been built.

Pleasant Run, winding and low-banked, has been treated in the fashion of an English countryside stream. Fall Creek, which is large enough to be mistaken for a river, has been lined with a protecting concrete wall for several blocks, at the point where a broad curve makes it dangerous in case of a flood, and has an appearance suggesting that of the River Arno at Florence.

At some places along Fall Creek, in the new and more expensive northern residence district, home builders were a few years ahead of the park builders, and put up residences which are in the way of the improvement, and which will have to be removed. One of these is a $65,000 mansion, with garage and grounds to correspond. These residences were built with their backs to the creek. The homes which will replace them, at a little greater distance, will be built facing the stream.

One-Third Size of St. Louis.

Members of the Park Board, who took the Post-Dispatch correspondent on a tour of inspection of the whole work, differ somewhat as to the time when completion of the parkway chain may be expected. None of them doubts that it will be completed, and since the building of Maple road, which awakened the city to a realization of the plan, the public seems to have no doubt about it. Mayor Bell says he would like to see the work completed at once, by means of a bond issue. But while it might be feasible to get a bond issue voted, the State constitution, with an unusually low limit on the city's bonded indebtedness, stands in the way.

Indianapolis is one-third the size of St. Louis. It expects to become as large as St. Louis is now, or larger. If it realizes this expectation, it will have, in its park boulevard system, what St. Louis would now have if, a generation ago, Grand avenue had been made a parked highway to Carondelet, and the River des Peres had been made a civic ornament instead of a municipal nuisance.

1365 TUBERCULAR PATIENTS AIDED BY VISITING NURSES

Society's Semi-Annual Report Says Prevention Work Has Greatly Increased.

The department for the relief and prevention of tuberculosis, which was organized during the last six months, by the local anti-tuberculosis organization, has accomplished more, according to the semi-annual report of the society just made public, than any other of the 10 departments during the same period. This department was formed to take care of inspection of factories and factory employes and especially to make city institutions for the care of tubercular patients more efficient.

Through the efforts of a committee of volunteers an ordinance introduced by the Director of Public Welfare was passed by the Board of Aldermen, creating a Municipal Nursing Corps. A committee is now endeavoring to have the city place at least six nurses in the field immediately to take care of tubercular patients in their homes.

Records of the society show more than 6000 consumptives living in St. Louis, while facts have been presented to carry out the contention that at least six nurses should be immediately put to work.

Visiting 1365 Patients.

The society cannot afford to further maintain a corps of nurses and declares that during the last six months more than 600 new patients have been found; that unless at least six trained nurses are put in the field the Municipal Corps would be ineffective. The society's nurses now are visiting 1365 patients.

The report further states that the legislative department during the last six monhs has prepared a number of health ordinances, introduced through various city departments and now is engaged in the preparation of an ordinance covering the entire tuberculosis situation in this community. This ordinance will include the establishment of a tuberculosis division of the Health Department so that the fight against the spread of the disease in this community can be waged successfully as it has been done in other large cities. Several other large cities have similar ordinances.

The semi-annual report further states that the organization has accomplished more in 1915 in all of its departments than in any six months' period during the 10 years of its existence.

Expenses Increase.

Expenses for operation were increased considerably, occasioned by enlarging the scope of the work. Donations also were in excess of the corresponding period of 1914.

Open air school work headed the list of expenses. This expense was greatly increased during the period by the opening of the new institution by the Board of Education, giving a total capacity of 175 pupils. The society pays for the meals of all children who cannot afford to buy them. The report shows that 70 per cent of the pupils are charity cases.

The majority of the pupils have made large gains in weight and many of them have received their certificates of health so that they can again return to the regular schools.

256 DEAD IN GULF STORM; MILLIONS IN PROPERTY LOST

53 Perished and 10 Are Missing on Galveston Island; $6,000,000 Damage in City.

By Associated Press.

GALVESTON, Tex., Aug. 21.—A total of 256 known dead among residents of Southeast Texas Coast points and crews of wrecked craft of all kinds; 65 persons missing, many of whom are believed to have perished, and damage to crops, buildings, railroads, shipping, live stock and other property aggregating millions of dollars was the toll taken by the hurricane which swept this section last Monday and Tuesday.

These figures were reached from a careful compilation made tonight of what are considered the most authentic reports of the loss of life and property received since the cessation of the storm.

Of the known dead, 194 were residents of the Gulf Coast section, and 62 were drowned when the vessels they were aboard sank. Forty-three of the missing were members of boat crews. Those who perished on Galveston Island, including eight in the city proper, numbered 53 and 10 were still reported missing from the island. Galveston's share of the property losses was placed at approximately $6,000,000.

Conditions Approaching Normal.

Reports received here from all over the affected section were that the cities and towns gradually are recovering from the disastrous storm and that conditions again are approaching normal throughout the Gulf Coast.

In Galveston tonight officials were hopeful that the serious problem of an adequate water supply for the city would be solved within a few days. Divers today reported that they had found the leak in the submerged main which brings the supply from the pumping station at Alta Loma. Mayor Fisher said the engineers reported that a new section of pipe could be substituted within 48 hours. Engineers of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe and Southern Pacific railroads will have charge of this repair work and if they find it cannot be done speedily they will proceed with their plans, announced today, to construct a new main across the bay.

5439 Feet of Causeway Gone.

Predictions that direct railroad service into Galveston from the mainland would be resumed within one month were made by officials of the Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fe Railroad. They stated that 1700 feet of the $2,000,000 causeway had been washed on the Galveston side and 3739 feet destroyed near the mainland.

Several hundred men were at work on the mainland today clearing the right of way of debris, repairing the line and making preparations to begin building a single track trestle across the bay from Virginia Point to this city.

Residents of Galveston appear optimistic that they soon will have a complete water supply and then they can enjoy the conveniences of electricity, gas, street car and railroad service.

Estimates of the losses of the motorists in cash and jewelry approximates $5000.

GOODYEAR
ALL-WEATHER TREAD GOODYEAR
ALL-WEATHER TREAD

An Extra Tread
Makes the Goodyear All-Weather a Double-Thick Anti-Skid

Costs $1,000,000

This is for men who think "Tires are tires" and who fail to get the best for that reason.

Most anti-skids, if you cut them, would show only a regular tread made rough.

The Goodyear All-Weather shows an extra tread, about as thick as the regular, vulcanized on top.

That one difference, on our output of All-Weathers, costs us $1,000,000 this year.

It's Worth Getting

Thus the Goodyear All-Weather is a double-thick tread. And the extra thickness is rubber toughened by a secret process.

This insures grips which are deep and tough. They last for thousands of miles and keep sharp. When they do wear off there's the regular tread beneath.

Is that not better than thin, soft treads with shallow, round-edged grips?

Get These Extras

There are other extras in Goodyear tires. Five of them are exclusive Goodyear features. Others lie in extra size, extra rubber or extra strength over the usual tire.

These extras, on this year's output, cost us $1,635,000. That's outside the All-Weather tread. This year's additions, in extra size and rubber alone, will cost us $500,000.

We are giving these extras to make Goodyear tires more popular than ever. They have long been the largest-selling tires in the world.

We pay for the extras by making multiplied output cut down other costs.

On the average, tires with these extras are bound to outlast tires without them. And the difference is sometimes enormous.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 21

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

R. NORRIS WILLIAMS II, put the California invaders to rout by completely outplaying Maurice E. McLoughlin for the Casino Cup in singles today. The national champion proved himself the master of the famous wielder of the racquet from the Pacific coast.

By a wonderful display of skill the dynamic Harvard player drew the sting from the game of his rival. As a tactician of courts he made him appear as a novice. He bombarded the back-hand of his opponent until it became a weak, uncertain stroke. By the cleverest use of pace and top spin to the ball, Williams compelled McLoughlin to take the defensive, held him there, and won almost as he pleased at 5—7, 6—4, 6—3, 6—3.

Williams Has 16 Service Aces.

The impressive thing about the game as played by the national champion was his splendid use of service. He had no less than 16 service aces for the four sets as against McLoughlin's total of 13. So adroitly did Williams handle the Californian's service that he was successful in breaking through eight times during the match. He drove deeply and surely in the rallies and when he brought off sizzling volleys, taking the flying ball on the run as he moved swiftly into the net, Williams caused the crowd of more than 5000 to applaud him to the echo.

Williams maneuvered to make the contest a back court duel. He conducted his campaign chiefly along the same lines that Karl H. Behr used at Seabright last week when he placed the great California comet in eclipse for the first time this season. Compelled to use ground strokes, McLoughlin made a miserable failure of ever attaining to his old-time speed. On each occasion that he attempted to force the rallies, Williams conquered him by drawing him out of position so that he had the broad highway of the court to play the ball for a prettily timed passing shot.

So ably did the national champion play that gradually the flash and fire of McLoughlin's game dwindled. He fought a losing game from what for him was a losing position in the back of his court, for he did not possess the strength nor the control necessary to check his opponent.

Many "Love" Games.

McLoughlin vainly fought to make his service the formidable weapon that had served so well in other of his matches. Often he sped the ball across the net for four aces in a row. It was only to have Williams reply by four shots in the same character. The champion's service was even faster and better placed than that of the Californian. To such flights did he lift his game in this respect that never before in tournaments here have so many love games appeared on any score.

The respective point totals of the men stood at 134 to 117, a difference practically accounted for by the earned points on placements, of which Williams had 48 to 30 for McLoughlin.

The point score follows:

Anderson Takes Auto Road Race; Smashes Record

Averages 77.25 Miles an Hour, Nearly Three Faster Than Old Mark.

ELGIN, Ill., Aug. 21.—Gilbert Anderson today won the sixth annual renewal of the 301-mile road race for the Elgin national trophy. His time was 3:53:25, an average of 77.25 miles per hour, or nearly three miles faster than the record established by Ralph De Palma, who won last year, when Anderson was second, and two miles faster than Cooper's record yesterday.

Earl Cooper was second. Cooper won the race over the same distance yesterday, with Anderson second. Both drove the same make of American car. De Palma was picked to win by the experts, and drove a magnificent race, but Ed O'Donnell nosed him out of third place by seconds. There were 12 starters. Summary:

DRIVER.	Elapsed Time	Average Time.
2—Cooper	3:57:29	76.25
3—O'Donnell	3:59:01	75.76
4—De Palma	3:59:15	75.69
5—Oldfied (flagged at 259 miles).
6—Henning (flagged at 250 miles).
7—Chandler (flagged at 226 miles).
8—Jones and Brown alternating (flagged at 217 miles).
9—Henderson (broke down at 150 miles).
12—Buzane (broke down at start).

Despite rain last night the track was in good condition and a moderate sized crowd lined the course. Anderson, Cooper and De Palma each stopped once for gasoline and oil and the replenishing was done so quickly that they seemed to the spectators scarcely to hesitate. O'Donnell held third place despite the fact that he had to change tires on the course. Had he stopped for gasoline third money would have gone to De Palma.

Anderson was born in Norway and for years was a marine engineer. He gained a reputation for nerve in 1909, when as a mechanician he lay alongside the cylinders of his car for 50 miles at Crown Point, Ind., adjusting the carburetor. In 1911 he drove 500 miles at the Indianapolis speedway without making a single mechanical adjustment. In 1911 he broke the Elgin record.

Catcher Johnson Hits an Association Umpire, Says Latter Called Him Vile Name

ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 21.—A near riot in the eighth inning almost broke up today's game between St. Paul and Columbus, which Columbus won, 5 to 2.

Johnson, who was catching for St. Paul, says that Umpire Murray called him a vile name while Coleman was at bat in this inning. Johnson took off his mask and stepped toward the umpire, who also removed his headpiece. Johnson then struck Murray in the face with his open hand. Murray was about to jump on the catcher when he was restrained by a local player.

Spectators began swarming from the grand stand to the playing field, but were driven back by the police. Every player on both teams took part in a heated argument that followed and in the end Johnson was fined and ordered off the field. Glenn, who suffered a split finger while catching yesterday, was compelled to go in despite his crippled condition.

In the ninth inning Murray noticed that Johnson had returned to the field and again ordered him off, and once more it required the interference of the police to restrain Murray from the angry fans.

After the game five policemen in uniform and several officers in plain clothes escorted the umpires to their dressing room and clubs were swung freely to keep the fans back. Several persons received cuts from clubs in the hands of the police.

President John W. Norton said tonight that Umpire Murray probably would be barred from the St. Paul grounds.

SNYDER CRUSHES GIANTS IN 13TH, WITH HIS 5TH HIT

Cardinal Catcher Has a Perfect Day at Bat and Sallee Earns a Long Victory, 5-4.

DOLAN STARTS A RALLY

Cozy's Double Is Wasted When Miller Fails to Bunt, but Cards Keep at It and Win.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—Frank Snyder, the National League's leading hitter, has been in a batting slump since the Cardinals came East, but he emerged from it today and trounced the Giants in a 13-inning battle, the final score of which was 5 to 4. Coupled with Synder's five safeties in six times at bat, was some remarkable pitching by Slim Harry Sallee, and Sal's single in the thirteenth frame drove in Snyder with the tally that proved the winning run.

The Cards drove Rube Marquard from the mound in the second inning and Ralph Stroud, who succeeded him, twirled brilliantly. Two runs counted for little in the first two innings, to all appearances, but after that one would have been as god as a dozen, for both Sallee and Stroud, supported spectacularly, delivered air-tight hurling.

The Cards got away winning in the opening inning. With one down, Butler singled to center and Bescher to left. Burns made a mess of it and Butler reached third and Bescher second. On Long's sacrifice fly to Burns, Butler scored.

Butler's Muff Hurts.

The Giants topped that run by one more in their half of the inning. Burns ripped one through Miller for a single, and was safe when Butler muffed Sallee's throw on Robertson's tap for a force-out. Doyle sacrificed and Fletcher singled, scoring both men.

St. Louis matched this pair in the second. Betzel and Snyder singled in succession and after Sallee had fanned, Huggins singled to center, Betzel scoring and McGraw passing the high sign to Stroud to take Marquard's place. Butler forced Huggins, but Bescher produced a nice single to right and Snyder scored.

That gave the Cards a one-run lead, but the Giants were right after them. Burns and Robertson, with two out, made consecutive doubles and the score was tied and thus it remained until the thirteenth inning.

In the ninth it looked for a moment as though the Cards were going to get away with it. With one down, Miller and Snyder made successive singles, but Sallee fouled to Dooin, who had succeeded Meyers, and after Hyatt, batting for Huggins, had been walked, filling the bases, Butler tried to bunt and popped a piffling foul to Dooin.

Miller Helpless With Bat.

Again, in the twelfth, Hyatt opened the session with a single, was sacrificed to second and was followed by Bescher on a pass. It was Miller's chance to win an iron cross, but he hit into a double play.

Dolan started the final rally. He smeared it against the right field wall for a double, which was wasted, as Miller's attempt to sacrifice resulted in a sharp tap to Stroud, who got Dolan at third. Betzel fanned, and then the real hero, Snyder, smashed out his fifth safety to right. Miller kept right on past second and Robertson made a wild heave to head him at third. As a result, Miller scored and Snyder got to third. Sallee then did the unexpected, singling to center and Snyder came home with what proved the winning run.

In their last gasp, the Giants fought hard. Betzel threw wild on Merkle's grounder and Brainard dropped a Texas leaguer that Bescher could not reach. Lobert singled to right and Merkle scored from second, Brainard reaching third. Brainard tried to score on Dooin's smash to Hyatt, but was nailed at the plate. Wendel batted for Stroud and Snyder got with a sensational bare-handed catch of a foul, a fitting end to a sensational game.

Snyder Wins Again.

R.N. WILLIAMS.

McLoughlin, Williams and Behr have become the three big factors in National tennis circles.

Williams has lost to McLoughlin and Behr, although victor over the "comet," lost to Williams.

The three men will fight it out early in September at the National championships.

St. Louisan, Accused of Accepting a Loan From Famous Get-Rich-Quick Horse Owner, Is "Cleared," but Accuser Is Not Ruled Off by Windsor Stewards.

Special Correspondence to the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 21.—John J. Ryan, former St. Louis turf plunger and get-rich-quick operator, and "Judge" Joseph A. Murphy, racing official and St. Louis Fair promoter, were still deadlocked tonight in the reigning Canadian turf scandal, at the conclusion of the Windsor race meeting today across the river.

"Judge" Murphy who suddenly, after Ryan charged him with being his debtor to the extent of $1000, manifested a shrinking disregard for publicity, declares that he is the victor in the clash that has scandalized horsemen here for the races for the past week. Ryan later disavowed his original statement and unperturbed, maintains that he, and not Murphy, is the one on top and that he has made a "goat" of Murphy. Meanwhile racing men are deploring the scandal, which they say bodes no good for the future of the game hereabouts.

"I'll bet any part of a thousand dollars," said Ryan today, as he pulled out a wad of bills from his pocket, "that Murphy hasn't got the nerve to rule me off the turf. It is true that I signed a paper which I gave to Murphy, disavowing that he is now in my debt; but the bet goes just as it is. Do you get me?"

"Judge" Murphy who was active in visiting downtown newspaper offices to show his high motives in the matter of the alleged Ryan loan said:

"Mr. Ryan has signed this paper, which plainly states that I do not owe him $1000 or any other amount."

Ryan Fires the Second Barrel.

But the matter didn't end here. Ryan, informed that "Judge" Murphy was flourishing the paper about promiscuously, issued a second statement.

"I will bring further evidence against Murphy at any time and place desired," he said. "I want Sammy Holman and Charley Smith called as witnesses. They will tell of Murphy's financial activities."

Holman is manager of the Doppreval track at Montreal. Smith is the well-known Chicago member of the Bookmaking syndicate of Smith and Perry which flourished when Chicago racing was in its heyday.

Members of the Canadian racing associations who employ Murphy were silent as to the charges of Ryan tonight. They also refused to state why Ryan was not ruled off in view of his charges against Murphy.

Turfmen, too, who are preparing to ship to the next meeting at Ottawa, likewise are surprised that Ryan is still allowed all privileges of the race course, though he openly accused Murphy of various offenses and at various times.

"Joe is alright," said a friend of Murphy's tonight. "He is a born diplomat and an ornament to the turf. He will get out of it all right."

Many St. Louisans here are active pro and con in the affair. Murphy's side is being espoused in the squabble by Pat M. Civill and Howard Oots, who is reputed to have the backing of Otto F. Stifel.

Ryan declares he is going to race his horses on every track where Murphy is an employe, despite what Murphy may do or say. Murphy, on the other hand, is noncommittal. The Canadian racing stewards have scheduled a meeting for next week for after several sessions at Windsor no action has been taken regarding the squabble, which strikes higher up than any of the Canadian turf scandals of recent months.

WESTMINSTER WILL HAVE BASKET TEAM THIS YEAR

FULTON, Mo., Aug. 21.—Announcement has been made here that Westminster College will be represented in college athletics this fall with a basket ball team. The Blue Jays have been out of this department of sport for several seasons, because the school has not had athletes who could have made up a good team. This year the new students will include some of the best basket ball players of the leading high schools of the State and material will not be lacking. The absence of a good gymnasium will be a drawback, but it is believed arrangements can be made with other colleges of the city to obviate this in a measure.

It is certain now that Westminster will get two of the star football players of the Columbia High School, both of whom made the All-Star Missouri high eleven last fall, and possibly a third member of this team, which won the championship of the State. J. C. Schwabe, halfback, already is here, and Durward Schooler, the all-star quarterback, this week notified his teammate that he was coming. "Indian" Pritchard, another member of the eleven, has Westminster under consideration. The addition of these men will give the Blue Jays some of the most promising new material they have had in a number of seasons.

Koob and Lowdermilk to Oppose Wood and Leonard in Twin Bill

Ernest Koob, the "Second Rube Waddell," will scale the pitching peak today for the Browns in the first game of a double-header with the Red Sox. He probably will be opposed by Smoky Joe Wood, who again is at his best.

Lowdermilk will hurl the getaway portion, opposed by either Leonard or Foster. First game at 2 o'clock. There will be music to relieve the monotony.

JONES' MEN MAKE ONLY SEVEN HITS AND LOSE TWICE

MARSANS GETS ONE HIT

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—The Terriers dropped two games to the Brookfeds this afternoon in 3—1 and 8—1, Brooklyn making a total of 22 hits off the pitching of Davenport, Groom, Watson and Crandall, while St. Louis could gather but five off Finneran in the first game and two off Bluejacket in the second.

Fielder Jones never made a better guess in his life than when he said his club lacked the "punch," nor a worse one than when he declared that if he could only have Marsans he would win the Fed flag. He has Marsans, but if he is going to finish high-low-jack in the new organization he will have to have more material assistance than the Cuban can render. Marsans is beyond all question a beautiful fielder and has an arm that would have made him an indispensable man in the trojan war if the catapults and ballistae happened to be mired a mile or two back of the trenches. At the bat he has yet to prove himself even a step removed from the ordinary.

The story of both of today's games is easily written. In the first, Davenport seemed to have matters fairly well under control. He was hit freely enough in the first six innings, but he was equal in the pinches and kept Brooklyn scoreless, with a one-run lead to work on, squeezed out for him in the opening inning.

"Ilias" Tech Does It.

In the seventh, however, he met what proved to be a disaster at the hands of a youngster with the name (or alias) of Tech, making his first appearance in a real ball game. In that inning, Fred Smith, first up, singled to left, but after Land had popped to Kores, was forced by Finneran. Then Anderson dropped a single to right which sent Finneran to third. Anderson stole second. With Tech at bat the situation did not look at all threatening, but the precocious youngster dropped a safety in right and both Finneran and Anderson scored. Groom pitched the eighth inning and with one down gave Myers a pass, then turned loose a wild pitch that sent Hap to third, whence he scored on Holt's fly to Marsans.

The Terriers' one run in the first was scored by Vaughn, who got on through a pass, took second on Miller's sacrifice and scored on Marsans' single to left, his only hit of the day.

Terriers Get Lead.

In the second game the Terriers again got off in front. Bluejacket was wild in the early stages and in the second inning passed Borton, who was sacrificed to second by Kores, passed Chapman, and when Johnson got on through Tech's error, filling the bases, Watson sent a long fly to Anderson and Borton came home.

In the fourth Watson collapsed. Anderson was passed and forced by Tech. A single by Cooper, a pass to Kauff and a single to right by Myers scored Tech and left the bases full, and Groom was called in for his second appearance of the day. Holt, Fred Smith and Simon cracked out singles sending in four more runs. A pass and a stolen base by Holt, and a single by Simon brought in another in the sixth, and Anderson's triple and Cooper's single in the seventh produced another run and ended the scoring for the day.

COSTLY MUFFS BY BROWNS' BACKSTOP DEFEAT WEILMAN

Lanky Twirler Outpitches Ruth and Deserves to Win—Shotton Makes Four Hits and Sisler Sparkles.

By W. J. O'Connor.

JUST about the time that Italy declared war on Turkey, yesterday afternoon, Samuel Agnew applied for an Aviator's lisense. He made two successful flights, once almost shattering all altitude records. But the sad part of it all is that, while Samuel was soaring in the azure blue, the Red Sox slipped enough runs over the old home plate to beat the Browns, 4—1.

It was one of those weird Brown oefeats which will cry to heaven for vengeance from this until Judgment day. In eight of the nine innings the Browns outplayed the embrye champions. Throughout the game Carl Weilman outpitched Baby Ruth of the enemy.

On a basis of mere hits, Weilman had the shade, 6 to 9. Of those six hits only two seeped through the infield. Four were the worst kind of scratches. Weilman walked only one man. He fanned five. He tossed out six men himself. Indeed, if ever a man deserved to win it was Weilman yesterday.

But Agnew wouldn't stand for it. No, siree, Samuel just positively refused to permit of anything but a Boston triumph and in the end he succeeded beyond the faintest shadow of a dobut. Here's the history of the fatal fourth, wherein the enemy scored three runs:

Hard to Surpass This Muff.

Hooper opened by coaxing the only pass off Weilman. Scott bunted and was safe when Sisler made a desperate dive, trying to grab the ball on the fly. It went as a hit. Speaker bunted just out of Weilman's reach, filling the bases. Gainer then gouged one at Austin, who fielded as cleanly as a new broom sweeps, and handed the ball to Agnew, a perfect throw. A cinch double play was on the books, but Agnew muffed the ball. It was the most inglorious muff of the season.

Jimmy Austin then yelled: "Never mind that, Carl, we'll get 'em," and Carl, the poor simp, took Jimmy at his word. So Carl went at it again. He made Lewis hit to Austin who juggled for a minute, but again slipped the ball to Agnew in time to nail Scott on a force at the plate. Agnew dropped the ball. Scott again scored.

"Never mind that, Carl," said Jimmy and away went Carl to the hill, pitching with fiendish glee. He took no chances this time. He made Gardner pop to Austin. But then came the prize boner of the day.

With Speaker on third and Barry on first, it is an unwritten rule on the Boston club always to work the squeeze play. Everybody in the park was cognizant of this but Agnew. Sam had only a minute before made a bad descent from his second trip skyward. So Speaker came thundering home and Barry, quite nonchalantly, bunted, Speaker scoring while Weilman tossed to Pratt for the out at first.

One Untainted Run.

And there you have the whole miserable story. Three runs on two hits, both scratchy bunts. Of course later the Red Sox scored an untainted run when Gainer singled and scored on Lewis' double, both hits being well drilled punches, but at that the Browns might have won had Agnew pulled a double play according to Hoyle in the pinch.

The Browns' only run was nailed to the plate at the gong when Shotton made the first of his brace of four hits. Austin moved him up and Sisler's single shoved Shotton to third. A double steal was successful, thanks to Sisler, who elbowed the ball out of Barry's hands at second, permitting Shotton to trek home. This guy Sisler, by the way, has more tricks about him for a fresh busher than any man seen in these parts since Col. Jim Hardy drove a hack.

Baby Doll Jacobson may come and Gus Williams may go, but we have Samuel Agnew with us forever. Samuel now is the official dropper at Sportsman's Park.

Paulette, Star First Baseman of Southern League Joins Browns

IT was announced last night in Nashville, Tenn., and verified by Manager Rickey here, that Eugene Paulette, the premier first-baseman of the Southern League, had been bought by the Browns. Paulette come here under an agreement between the St. Louis and Nashville clubs whereby the Browns had the pick of that team.

Paulette has had trials with Cleveland and the New York Nationals, but lacked experience. This year he has developed into a .300 hitter and is considered the best fielding first-sacker in the South. He will report at once. Four Brown recruits will be sent to Nashville next spring as part payment.

ZULU KID MEETS BOBBY BURNS FOR THE THIRD TIME

Bantamweights Will Furnish Feature Bout of Tuesday's Future City Card.

TEXAN HAS THE EDGE

He Won on a Foul and Gained a Ten-Round Draw, in Previous Contests.

By Harry S. Sharpe.
Referee for the Future City A. C. and the Post-Dispatch Boxing Authority.

Joe Demelfi, a bantamweight boxer known as the "Zulu Kid," says he intends making St. Louis his home. The Zulu returned here from the East less than two weeks ago, but since then he has already challenged Bantamweight Champion "Kid" Williams, "Dutch" Brandt, Eddie Campi, Frankie Burns, Jabez White and Johnny Solberg. Zulu has clippings to show that he walloped Solberg once during the past summer, but says he would like to do it all over again.

In the meantime, Tommy Sullivan has matched him with Bobby Burns of Dallas, Tex., for an eight-round bout at the Future City Athletic Club on next Tuesday night.

This will be the third meeting between the Zulu and Burns. The first one took place in St. Louis on the fifth of last January, and the Zulu was declared the winner on a claim of foul in the fourth round. Up to the abrupt ending of a rather sensational bout the Zulu held a slight advantage until he received the blow that is now known in the jargon of the ring as the "ischium" punch. This blow landed several inches below and to the rear of the left hip joint and caused so much of a shock to the great sciatic nerve that the little boxer's limb was totally paralyzed for the time being.

Burns and Demelfi Draw.

Demelfi then returned to his home in Brooklyn, N. Y., and, upon his recovery, was again matched with Burns. This bout took place early last spring before the Kerkau Club of Dallas, Tex., and resulted in a 10-round draw, though some accounts gave a shade to the Zulu.

Since that time Demelfi has boxed three important bouts, winning from "One-Punch" Hogan in 10 rounds at New Orleans on April 24 and boxing a 10-round draw on May 1 at the same place with "Kid" Herman. On June 24 he boxed Johnny Solberg 10 rounds in Brooklyn and some of the newspaper critics gave him the decision, while others declared the contest a draw.

Demelfi has grown a little heavier since he was seen here against Burns last January. On that occasion he weighed 110½ pounds, but on next Tuesday night he will enter the ring weighing about 116.

Burns has appeared here several times and made a good impression, but delayed his best work in the bouts until it was too late to win for him. He boxed the clever Jabez White eight rounds on April 14, 1914, and White won on points. On Oct. 27 of the same year he boxed "Kid" Sullivan eight rounds, and Sullivan was the winner. In both these bouts Burns made such a hurricane finish in the last few rounds that he had many persons believing he should have been given a draw. However, his work in the early part of the bouts had been purely defensive, and it appeared as if he were laying back to put over a knockout punch.

Foul Costs "Zulu" Verdict.

In his bout with Demelfi, however, Burns elected to start fast and the result was some sensational boxing until he was unfortunate enough to land the low punch that ended the contest. Should Burns assume an aggressive attitude from the beginning of next Tuesday night's bout it is probable the contest will furnish some thrills, because the Zulu likes that sort of battling and is busy all the time he is in the ring.

One of the Zulu's peculiarities is to now and then disdain the proffered help of his seconds between rounds, and very frequently in the latter part of a bout he walks around the ring during the one-minute rest period. He claims that he does not do this for any circus effect, but because it prevents his legs from stiffening and enables him to enter the last round or two with greater speed.

Bud Clancy and Al Farnum have been matched for the semi-final. They are heavy-middleweights. Clancy is well known to the local ring, but Farnum made his first appearance when he boxed Fred Nelson on Jan. 5 and the bout was stopped in the fourth round to prevent his being knocked out. In this connection it is interesting to note that Nelson also knocked out Clancy, doing this in three rounds. This would make it appear that Clancy and Farnum are pretty evenly matched. Still, Clancy has had considerable experience, and Farnum has not.

Jack Rainey and "Happy" Howard, who boxed a good six-round draw on Aug. 10, are rematched in one of the preliminaries, while Pete Macklin and "Young" Jerry will appear in the other. All the boys engaged in the preliminaries are bantamweights. An effort is being made to develop one who will be a good match for Harry Kabakoff, the clever youngster, who so easily won from Georgie Witt and Napple Warren.

Sure, Never Mind 'Em, Paddy.

An amusing bit of jealousy in the local boxing fraternity seems to be fomenting against Paddy Kelly because of his rapid rise to popular favor and consequent frequent employment by Promoter Tommy Sullivan.

A few minutes before Kelly was to step in the ring with Gene Delmont the first time these two boxed here one of St. Louis' prominent boxers called Delmont in his dressing room and advised him to "keep on top of Paddy for a couple of rounds, and he'll blow up."

Another boxer who has gained some prominence in local fistic circles was a hard-working second in Delmont's corner that night. This boxer's brother, who is also his manager, denounced the decision to Kelly as a "robbery."

Paddy should worry. He is earning everything he gets by hard work and decent behavior. He is the only boxer in St. Louis who ever did a real "come-back," and he did it without frill or flourish. Since working himself back to fighting form he has won his last seven matches and has accepted any opponent named for him.

It Had to Come.

When First Baseman Schmidt of Boston muffed Maranville's perfect throw in the first inning of the Phillies-Braves game on July 3 he broke a marvelous record. It was the first time since late in 1913 that Schmidt had dropped a throw that was good enough for an official scorer to charge him with an error. There is no record of any other first baseman, or any other player, going so long without a muff.

Rickey, With no Apologies for 1915, Sees 1916 Browns in First Division

Manager of St. Louis Team, Whose Job Was Wished on Him, Has Got Rid of a lot of Worthless Talent and Added Some Cracking Good Youngsters in One Season—Pitching Failures Kill the Club.

W. BRANCH RICKEY...

By W. J. O'Connor.

IF the fans of St. Louis felt that the present Browns are a crime and that the cause of that crime should be punished; and if they further agreed that Branch Rickey was the culprit, brought him to justice and proceeded to hang him; we say if all this happened and Rickey's only avenue of escape was through the establishment of an alibi, it is our firm conviction that Rickey would hang by the neck until dead.

Rickey won't alibi. We can say that much for him without fear of contradiction. He'd die first.

Last winter Branch was considered good baseball copy. Columns were written about him. He had loads of ideas that were new, novel and nifty. His team had been converted from a confirmed tail-ended into a fifth-place club and there was a big boom in Rickey stock. But since then the Browns have deteriorated into a seventh-place club and since the first signs of retrogression there has been little said of or by Rickey.

He dropped out of the news columns like the Free Bridge did when the European war moved into the first page. And apparently nobody cared.

We deem it time to take stock of Mr. Rickey. What has he done? What has he done ? What does he propose to do? What are his capabilities? How is he regarded by those who know? Is he a manager of baseball men?

The Job Sought Rickey.

We'll say this much: He isn't a manager by choice. It wasn't his wish to manage the Browns, although George Stovall thought so. Branch was hired as a scout and was to remain as such until Stovall spat in an umpire's eye. That demanded quick action by Hedges, who tied the tin to Stovall and sewed the managerial toga on Rickey's shoulders.

Of course, Branch had the option to refuse. He did, but reconsidered when urged. He had been out of the American League for six years. He had been away from big-league baseball for that time and baseball changes not a little in a season. When Rickey took charge in the Fall of 1913 he didn't know, intimately, a player in the American League. He wasn't in touch with the situation. So 1913 doesn't figure.

Last year he studied conditions. He began to grasp the situation. Despite his unfamiliarity, he finished fifth by a nose, chiefly because he received consistently good pitching from Hamilton, James, Baumgardner, Wellman and Leverenz. He had what the sharps considered one of the best pitching staffs in the league. But then something snapped.

Hamilton drove his auto off the bridge; Baumgardner was stymied by the bright lights and lost his way on the rocky road of righteous living; James toured with the all-stars and contracted rheumatism in his shoulder; Leverenz went around the world in search for experience and lost his health. The great pitching staff was gone, only its ghost remaining to haunt Rickey in 1915.

Now, pitching is popularly estimated to be 80 per cent of a ball club. Rickey had no pitching this spring. Wellman remained of the once-famed six-man staff of stars. Lowdermilk, of course, came and had his usual spring spurt; but all the others failed. Leverenz has been released; Baumgardner sent home; James traded, while Hamilton still is drawing his salary brazenly in the face of adverse conditions. Wellman still stands by the guns.

Rickey Expects to Redeem Prediction That 1916 Team Would Be a Contender

HOWEVER Rickey never has registered this alibi. He hasn't once this season issued a chirp about this break in luck; this catastrophe which took four great pitchers from him in one fell swoop. He has taken his medicine stoically and his stoic perseverence alone recommends him.

We paid Rickey a visit yesterday and offered him the privilege of writing for the Post-Dispatch his version of the Browns as they stand today. Rickey refused.

"Don't you think," he said, "that I would appear in the light of one trying to excuse myself for failing to finish higher in the race?"

"Now the truth is, I have no excuse to offer," he continued. "I have nothing to say about the present position of the Browns. Things over which I had no control conspired to keep the Browns in seventh place. I don't like to discuss them.

"But when I took charge of the team in the fall of 1913 I saw enough promise in the Browns to predict that we would finish in first division in 1916, my third year as manager. That's the only thing I now have to worry about. I aim to make good that prediction and I'm working to that end.

"However, when I said that, I saw substantial props in Hamilton, Leverenz, Baumgardner, Wellman and James. I'll tell you how I rated those pitchers: I believe that Leverenz was the best of all. To me he was the greatest southpaw in the game. I placed Hamilton second, he had a wicked fast surve; I figured James third, Baumgardner fourth and a bear, and Wellman fifth.

"Wellman and Hamilton remain, so we'll not further worry about the pitchers.

Rickey a Great Ivory Detector.

THERE were times this spring, however, when I prayed for rain or some valid excuse for postponing games. I didn't have a pitcher worthy of the name. I was forced to dodge on the slightest provocation a conflict with the tamest enemy. Those were dark days, I hope to forget.

"I find some solace, though, in the fact that I have today some very good players on my ball club. If there is one ounce of consolation in the tonnage of sad experience I have had so far, it is the fact that I think I can judge a young ball player. I stand on my record."

There is ample justification for Rickey's own confidence in himself. He is responsible for the presence on the Browns of such men as George Sisler, Ernest Koob, John Lavan, Sam Agnew, Clarence Walker and Ivan Howard.

He also brought up Bill James despite the adverse advice of persons who were well acquainted with James. Under Rickey James lived down a reputation for riotus living and the other day he was traded for Jacobson, a promising outfielder, and a wad of cash bigger than Miller Huggins. Incidentally, that was Rickey's first swap with a major league club. As he put it: "It was the first time I felt that I knew enough about the other man's animals to effect a trade."

If Jacobson is a failure, the deal still redounds to Rickey's credit. There is money in Hedges' safe and James is gone. James is 35 years old and fading. Who'll mourn his loss?

That Leverenz didn't conserve his health isn't Rickey's fault. Leverenz was a star. That Hamilton became a night-rider also is no fault of the Browns' manager.

Koob and Sisler Among the Undoubted Finds Rickey Has Dug Up This Year

HOWEVER, the coming of Koob neutralizes the loss of Leverenz. Kook is the sweetest-looking young southpaw in the American League today. His record proves that. He has the temperament to win, the eccentricities to make him a winner. He's a filbert, but Waddell was a great pitcher.

There never in history was a ballplayer who hurdled from a campus to a major league diamond and demeaned himself as has George Sisler. This boy is a star, yet withal a vexing problem to Rickey. The question is: What shall Sisler permanently do. He has made good in the outfield, at first base and on the hurling hill. He's a base runner de luxe, also a hitter.

Here's what will happen:

If Rickey snares a first baseman, Sisler will go to the outfield. If Rickey lands a .300 hitting outfielder, Sisler will be a pitcher.

At all times he'll be a pinch-hitter. He's Rickey's ace—a kohinoor among diamond lights.

Rickey has unlimited faith in Lavan. As he says: "I know why Johnny didn't come through this season. I also know that he will respond in 1916. Conditions will be different and he'll be the ballplayer I expected although one year late."

In summing up for the defense, we almost have overlooked the biggest feature of Rickey's work since joining the Browns. A manager's duty isn't all on the field. One of the biggest assets a major league club can have is its affiliation with minor league clubs, its ability to take the pick of teams in Class AA and Class A leagues. They call this a "working agreement with the minors."

Browns Own the South.

THIS season, for instance, the St. Louis club has the pick of Rochester in the International, Atlanta and Birmingham in the Southern, Wichita in the Western, Lowell in the New England and, besides that, others too numerous to mention.

Connie Mack sent Ira Thomas into the Southern League to scout for talent. Ira returned and reported as follows:

"I saw five players in the Southern League that appealed to me, but they all belong to the Browns. Indeed, I didn't find a club that either wasn't owned by the Browns or mortgaged to them." Hence there's no scouting in the Southern League. The league, as a whole, is a Brown farm.

Now this is an ideal condition. It's nobody's fault that several stars weren't developed in them. Surely it is not Mr. Hedges' fault that Rochester, Birmingham and Atlanta didn't develop each a Cobb or Wellman. That's baseball luck.

But the Browns are on a winning-working basis. They attained that basis after Rickey's coming. Therefore we might close the case of "Rickey vs. the People" with this argument for the defendant:

He brought up Walker, Sisler, Koob, Lavan, Agnew and Howard.

He finished fifth last year with five pitchers; seventh this season with one.

He won among the minor leagues many friends for the Browns, who three years ago were friendless.

He made one major league trade: Bill James, 35 years old, to Detroit for Baby Doll Jacobson and $12,500 in cash.

He's ready to make more trades.

To which the attorney for the plaintiffs says: "But he's still in seventh place," and rests the case.

SIX CREWS WILL COMPETE IN RACE FOR LEMP TROPHY

Western R. C., Holder of Emblem, Will Have Trouble in Defending It.

The Lemp Trophy race, one of the feature events rowed on the river, as far as the local clubs are concerned, is scheduled to be held this afternoon. The race is for eight-oared shells, one mile and a quarter downstream and is scheduled to start at 4:15 o'clock.

Last year, when the trophy was put up for the first time, the Western Rowing Club oarsmen experienced little difficulty in winning the race. With practically the same crew they owned in 1914, they expect to again win today's race. If they are returned the winners, they will then own two legs on the trophy and will have to win it only once more to become the permanent possessors.

It is expected that six clubs in the local harbor, Western, St. Louis, Century, Central, Mound City and North End, will enter crews in the race.

Western oarsmen will have to do their best, though, to land first place in tomorrow's event, as St. Louis, Mound City and Central all have great eights this year. The St. Louis oarsmen have cleaned up in almost every event they have entered on the river this year and expect to land first place tomorrow. Mound City, winner of the senior eight at the Central States regatta, also will have to be figured.

Umbright Named Starter.

Teddy Umbright, president of the Central Rowing Club, will act as starter in today's race, with Elmer Stief of St. Louis acting as umpire. The crews entered:

Western—Vogler, Voss, Kalinska, Capt. Bargsch, Renz, Jancha, Behrens, Uhlein and Miller.

St. Louis—Ruppel, Boelling, Kirsch, Holleweg, Payer, Bartles, Heyne, Kenworthy, Rietsche.

DEMAREE VERY LUCKY

Moran's Men Lend Giants' Discard Championship Backing, in Second Game.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 21.—A crowd which filled the park to its capacity saw Philadelphia defeat Chicago in both games today, the scores being 7 to 5 and 3 to 2.

Humphries and Standridge, who pitched for Chicago in the first game, and Alexander were hit hard and the poor support given the visitors' twirlers gave the home team the victory.

In the closing contest Demaree was repeatedly in trouble, but he was saved by his support.

Adams did not permit a batsman to reach first base until the fifth inning, after which Philadelphia won by mixing hits with errors. Score:

REDS GAIN EVEN BREAK WITH TROLLEY DODGERS

BROOKLYN, Aug. 21.—Cincinnati and Brooklyn divided today's double-header, the Reds winning the first, 4 to 1, and the Superbas the second, 1 to 0. Coombs was wild during the seven innings he pitched in the first game, but he was effective with men on bases, 14 being left in that period. Three times the Reds had the bases full and were blanked.

Toney twirled a clever game and received faultless support. Dell and Schneider had a great battle in the second game, the former going the route for a shutout, while Leach batted for Schneider in the eighth and Dale finished out.

McCarty scored the only run on a single, Dell's sacrifice, Myers' scratch hit and a squeeze play worked by Olson.

Arnold Hauser's Friends Will Remember Him When He Makes Appearance Here

Friends of Arnold Hauser, the former shortstop for the Cardinals, who at present is covering the difficult position for the Chicago Federals, expect to remember him when he makes his first appearance here as a member of the Whales on Sept. 6. It is hoped that enough money can be gotten together to get the former Cardinal star a traveling bag and a floral horseshoe.

WRAY'S COLUMN

The Three-Snakes Problem.

THE tennis situation is difficult to assimilate. It now presents a phase of that celebrated problem of the famous three snakes which were engaged in swallowing each other, but none of which could surround more than the rattles of the opposition.

Thus far McLoughlin, Williams and Behr have gone no further in the process of "eating the enemy alive" than to nibble at the bait.

McLoughlin has beaten Williams, Behr defeated McLoughlin and Williams defeated Behr. Williams assumed the offensive, in the second round of the clash, by defeating McLoughlin at Newport yesterday. The situation will rest in statu quo until Aug. 30, when all three will get a wiggle on in the national tournament.

Has the "Comet" Faded.

ON the season's showing it seems either that Williams has improved over his last season's form or McLoughlin has gone back. The bulk of the evidence appears to show that the California Comet has lost the intensity of his brilliancy or, at least, has thus far not been able to display it.

The hard fight he underwent at Frisco to defeat a second rater like William Johnstone, and his defeat by a veteran has-been, Behr, who was at his mercy last year, seem to add to the evidence that the Comet is not at his best this season.

Next Tourney Will Tell.

THAT he could be below top form and trim Williams at Longwood would tend to prove it is not Champion Williams' improvement, but the deterioration of McLoughlin which caused the downfall of the world's ranking player.

There's still one week of time in which to regain that "edge" of condition and form which are essential to top performance in anything. Unless McLoughlin is really ill, therefore, he will have no excuse for defeat in the U. S. title tourney. If he loses, tennis men will have to admit that the present titleholder has really advanced in the quality of his play.

The Case of Mr. McFarland.

LEAVE it to Old Man Dope to get in the way of the traffic and invite being run down. Notwithstanding his previous experiences in the hospital the old gink slipped out of the bomb-proof last night and got right out where the conversation was thickest—that is to say, in a jam of fight conversationalists.

After getting an earful of what Packey McFarland would do to Mike Gibbons, when they meet next Sept. 11, the Old Guy stepped up to the plate and knocked out the following homer:

"You fellows need a range-finder. You're all shooting wide. Of course McFarland's clever. But at that there isn't a man living who's cocksure Packey is any cleverer than Gibbons, is there—outside their press agents?

"From all I can read, EVERYTHING ELSE BEING EQUAL, these two lads could battle until the Browns win a pennant and neither have a shade.

Aha! Here We Have It.

BUT, everything else is NOT equal. McFarland, during the years when he was at his best, fought at about 137 pounds or less. He even maintained he could do 133 pounds, but he never made good, after saying it.

On the other hand Gibbons has been fighting middleweights, even light-heavyweights and beating them. His best boxing weight is about 152 pounds in the ring and he will weigh almost that much Sept. 11.

"With both men at their best fighting figures, therefore, it will be a case of a large lightweight against an undoubted middleweight—a handicap which, I say, CONNOT BE OVERCOME, basing the statement on the book.

"If both these men are in shape to fight their best and extend themselves, Packey McMarland will have to show some grand running qualities to come closer to a knockout than at any time in his career since Ray Bronson floored him at New Orleans."

Packey's Weight a Handicap.

BUT," interrupted a member of the Amalgamated Listeners' Society, "Packey is no longer a near-lightweight. He weighs 150 pounds and will go into the ring weighing very close to that, they tell us."

The Old Scout took on the appearance of one just run over by a garbage wagon.

"My dear sir," he replied, "consider this, that McFarland confesses to 27 years of age, and that he is probably older. This is his TWELFTH year in the ring, so that he appears to have begun fighting at the age of 15, something improbable.

"Even at 27, however, the flesh that an athlete takes on, after 12 years of training, is merely SO MUCH DEAD WEIGHT. McFarland reached his proper development in bope, sinew and fat at least five years ago.

"The same bones, the same muscles and the same constitution must now take care of 15 pounds more of avoirdupois. Instead of helping him it is a 15-pound clog on his activity.

Remove the Cheese, Please!

PERSONALLY, considering all this as well as that Gibbons has a better punch and has been fighting regularly while McFarland has been idle for two years, I think there will be a heavy demand at ringside for patent clothes pins, to protect the nasal organs during the contest.

"Say," said one of the listeners, "I notice they keep you in the hospital pretty regularly, for all your wisdom."

"Sure," retaliated the Old Top, "but I'm still a live one, and that's more than can be said for the boxer you're going to bet on."

Which was very crude stuff for a veteran to let slip.

C. Mack vs. the Typos.

FOR the first time since its organization, the Typographical Baseball Union will settle its annual United States baseball championship series outside of a big league lot.

Each year the teams have held their games on major league diamonds, Robison Field being used for the purpose when the tournament was held here, some years ago.

This year the event will take place at Philadelphia and Connie Mack, whose team will be visiting at that time, has absolutely declined to rent his grounds for the purpose.

In his refusal Connie is at least consistent. It was his failure to let the Boston Braves use his park for a world's series workout that caused the celebrated row between him and Stallings last year.

Mack declares he doesn't want ANYBODY on his diamond, as it is sure to be misused.

About all that we can say is that it's Mack's park. But you ought to hear a bunch of printers on the subject. On second thought, we take that back.

BRAVES WIN TWO AND MOVE INTO THIRD PLACE

BOSTON, Aug. 21.—Boston returned to third place in the National League standing today, winning two pitching duels from Pittsburg, 3 to 1 and 2 to 0. In the second game, Arthur Nehf, a recruit pitcher, obtained by Boston from Terre Haute, had the better of Mamaux, the Pirate star. Nehf not only held the visitors to five hits without a run, but brought in Boston's only tallies with a single in the sixth. Costello was put off the field in this game after an argument with Evers.

Bases on balls proved the undoing of Kantlehner, Pittsburg's pitcher in the first contest. He allowed Boston only two hits, but one of these and five passes in the second inning resulted in Boston's three runs. Rudolph kept his opponents' hits scattered except for consecutive doubles by Collins, and Johnston, which produced one run in the sixth. Score:

CHAMP GOLFER GIVES CADDIE LOT OF CREDIT

CINCINNATI, Aug. 21.—Templeton Briggs shared his honors of winning the city golf championship from Billy Groesbeck on the thirty-eighth hole in the recent tournament.

"My caddy helped me win the title," said Briggs, "and I rewarded him with $25. Ordinarily I follow my own judgment in selecting the clubs I should use in making a shot, but for some reason that day I followed the advice of my caddy. When a man has a bag full of clubs he is more likely to call for the wrong one. My caddy seemed to know just what club to use for each shot, and on several occasions he advised against using a certain one I asked for and handed me one he thought I could make the better approach. An experienced caddy is a big help to a man in a tournament. Those who have not played in the semi-finals or finals of a big tournament cannot appreciate the mental strain on the player. There are a number of good players who never get beyond the semi-finals simply because the nerve gives out."

DISCUSS ROWING SYSTEMS AT YALE AND HARVARD

Foreseeing the inadvertible controversy relative to the merits of strokes as taught by Messrs. Nickalls and Wray, the Harvard Alumni Bulletin has forestalled the same with a short resume of the records of Harvard crews under Coach Wray. The situation is summoned up as follows:

"What the Harvard rowing authorities must now consider is the question whether the style of rowing practiced in Cambridge has faults which put it at a disadvantage in comparison with the stroke that Nickalls has developed at Yale.

"Discussion on this point will doubtless be long and confusing. The record of the Harvard University crew on its races with Yale since Wray began to coach in Cambridge has some bearing on the problem. Wray has had charge of 11 Harvard crews. Seven of these have won decisive victories on the Thames, and this year's eight was the first of the 11 to be beaten by more than 20 feet."

Foster Is Versatile.

Eddie Foster was a shortstop when he started out, and Griff made a fine third baseman out of him. Now he has been transplanted to second and, if he improves as much as he did with his other shift he'll have Collins looking like a hitching post.

HIGH'S HIT DOES IT

St. Louis Boy Cracks Out a Double That Finishes Eddie Cicotte.

CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—The Chicago White Sox broke even with New York in a double header here today, winning the first contest after 11 innings, 1 to 0, in a great pitcher's duel between Scott and Caldwell, and losing the second, 2 to 3, because of the great pitching of Fisher. In the initial game, Murphy walked as a starter, in the eleventh, advanced on J. Collins' single and scored on E. Collins' safe bunt for a squeeze play. Fisher was a puzzle to the locals in the aftermath, which went to the visitors in the seventh inning. Boone singled and scored on High's double, putting the visitors in the lead, after each club had scored a pair of runs each by bunching hits. Joe Jackson, who was purchased from the Cleveland Americans by the White Sox, played center field for the locals today.

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 21.—Mitchell did not allow Philadelphia a hit until the eighth inning today, when the slippery condition of the field allowed the Athletics to scratch four hits. Mitchell struck out 11 men. Sheehan was hit hard with men on bases and Cleveland won, 5 to 3. Score:

INSIDE BASEBALL WINS FOR PITTSFEDS, 4-2

NEWARK, N. J., Aug. 21.—Inside baseball and Knetzer's airtight pitching gave Pittsburg a 4-to-2 victory. MR. MAISEL WILL NEVER STEAL 100 BASES THIS YEAR

In Order to Make Good His Threat He Will Have to Pilfer 57 in Next 53 Games.

SNYDER BATTING LEADER

Cardinal Catcher With .327 Mark Replaces Larry Doyle in National League.

Fritz Maisel, the third-sacker for the Yankees said at one time that if ever he batted .300 he would steal 100 bases. Well, to date Maisel has swatted for a .305 mark, but his number of pilfers does not resemble anything like 100. In 101 clashes, the Yankee speeder has swiped just 43 bases, which puts him just 28 behind Ty Cobb.

Now if Maisel intends to make good his threat all he will have to do is steal an average of 1.08 bases in every one of the 53 clashes he still has to participate in. This is almost impossible as his average steals per game for the first 101 contests figure up to only .43.

Cobb, also, will have to speed up just a wee bit, if he expects to reach the century mark. The Tigers still have 42 games to play and Tyrus must pilfer 29 bases in these to reach 100, an average of .67 per game. His average to date is .63.

The Tiger demon leads them all in batting with .395. T. R. tacked nine points to his figure during the past week. Frank Snyder, the Cardinal receiver, is high in the National, while Lee Magee, who recently resigned as manager of Brooklyn, tops the Federal League.

With the addition of Joe Jackson to the White Sox roster, Clarence Rowland now owns three regulars who are hitting .300. Eddie Collins is swatting .330, Jackson .323 and Fournier .316. Then Eddie Cicotte, a pitcher, is hammering the ball for a .318 mark.

That Tiger outfield, composed of Cobb, Crawford and Veach, looks like a team when it comes to slugging. Between them this trio has pounded out 83 doubles, 36 triples and 7 home runs. Veach leads them all in doubles, with a total of 32.

Frank Snyder took the batting lead in the National away from Larry Doyle of the Giants during the past week. Snyder now owns a mark of .327, while Doyle is .324. Just nine athletes in the Tener circuit are swatting .300.

Besides Snyder, the Cardinals have two other hitters in the select circle. They are Gonzales, .309, and Tommy Long, .300. Long leads the league in pounding out triples, with a total of 16.

The Cardinals and Reds, tied for last place in the National League yesterday, are tied for the team hitting honors with .256. The Pirates are last, with .239, but their total of 189 stolen bases tops them all.

The Terriers at present own two regulars who are hitting .300. They are Ward Miller, who is at the .304 mark and Johnny Tobin, the St. Louis boy, who just edges in with an even .300. The two players are tied for the base-running lead, with 26 pilfers, but Tobin is the best run-getter, having crossed the plate 71 times.

Six tossers, who drew salaries from clubs in the National and American League last season are hitting better than .300 in the Federal this season. They are Magee, .336; Fischer, .324; Koney, .318; Yerkes, .316, Deal, .314, and Dalton, .305. Magee's mark tops the circuit.

It took Benny Kauff some time to get started, but he's running away with the base-stealing title in the Gilmore circuit right now, with 36 pilfers. Cooper is second, with 27, while Lee Magee, who topped them for a good while, owns 25.

Shortstop Corhan Is Bought by Cards; Also Pitcher Charlie Hall

NEW YORK, Aug. 21

MILLER HUGGINS, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, wired to President Britton in St. Louis tonight that he had signed Shortstop Corhan of the Pacific Coast League and Pitcher Charlie Hall of the St. Paul Club. Corhan once played with the Chicago White Sox, while Hall was a member of the Red Sox for a number of years.

Hall has pitched wonderful ball for the St. Paul team this season, and it is due to his great work in the box that the Saints are leading the American Association. Hall has won 16 straight games for the Saints.

English Critic Takes a Fall Out of U. S. Athletes

Says There Will Be No Further Effort to Americanize "British" Sports.

In the midst of war English writers still find time to pen epistles on sports in general and the American amateur athlete in particular. In a recent article forecasting a healthier standard of amateur sport after the great conflict, one of the leading English dailies expresses the hope that after the war there will be no further efforts to "Americanize" British sports or help for the Olympic games with its American "Shamateur."

"Will professionalism in athletics survive the war, so far as Great Britain is concerned?" is asked. "We sincerely hope it will not. Seeing that we shall have to study thrift, collectively and individually, it would be absurd for us to go on paying men to play games for us.

"It is surprising how many of our professional athletes have failed to pass the doctor when patriotically endeavoring to enlist. On the whole, it is to be hoped that the war will make an end of athletic professionalism in this country. There will be no money to spare for its maintenance; and what can be spared for athletic purposes should go to providing playing fields for the masses of our urban population.

"There should be no more sending of the hat around for the Olympic games, for revivals, or other grandiose schemes of international sport, which serve only, so far as I can see, to help the American superspecialist, a 'shamateur' more often than not.

"Let us, then, remain a nation of athletes, but sternly refusing to pay or even praise the superathlete for cultivating useless agility and an abnormal physique."

Heine Schulz Is Best Hurler for H. Lord's Outfit

Southpaw With Seventh Place Club Has Made Great Record.

That "they can't beat the Dutch" is proving true in one case in the Federal League pennant battle and that is Heinie Schulz, the southpaw who has been turning out victory after victory for the Buffalo Feds during the past six weeks. From an erratic left-hander, Schulz has developed into one of the most formidable twirlers in the Federal League and today Manager Lord of the Buffeds regards Heinie as one of the main reasons for the good work of the team.

It was on the recent road trip that Heinie traveled at top speed. He started by trimming the Pittsburg club, and when the Buffeds hiked to Chicago for a Sunday game, Heinie tagged along and pitched the club to another victory. When the team hit Kansas City, Heinie 'lowed he'd like to take a crack at the league leaders and Lord told him to go ahead. The rest was easy—Heinie just breezed in a winner again. At Chicago Schulz started the three-game series for the Buffeds and it was the same old story—Heinie won again.

Believing a good start is half the battle, Lord tried Schulz against St. Louis in the first game. Heinie pitched the best game of the trip and for eight innings he and Davenport battled, neither side scoring. In the eighth the Terriers scored a run when Ward Miller stole home while Chapman was at bat. As Chapman stepped across the plate and interfered with the play, Manager Lord protested the game, and President Gilmore of the league is now investigating the play.

Since the team has returned to Buffalo Schulz has twirled great ball.

8 GAMES TO BE BOOKED BY MISSOURI WESLEYAN

CAMERON, Mo., Aug. 21.—Eugene L. Hills, assistant athletic manager at Missouri Wesleyan College, has made a tentative draft of his 1915 football schedule. It is possible that some changes will have to be made before the opening of the season when Hill gets back on the job and gets in touch with the managements of the other schools. The tentative draft includes the best teams on the circuit and will give the Missouri champions a great opportunity to show their worth this fall.

Hill's football card is as follows: Oct. 8, Baker University of Kansas at Cameron; Oct. 15, Missouri Valley College at Marshall; Oct. 22, Drury College of Springfield; Oct. 29, Westminster College of Fulton at Cameron; Nov. 5, Central College at Fayette; Nov. 12, Tarkio College at Cameron; Nov. 19 Kirksville Normals at Cameron; Nov. 25 William Jewell at Liberty.

Nothing but Work Made Duluth Oarsmen Famous; Coach Ten Eyck Helped College Methods and Spirit, Applied to Club Training, Enabled Westerners to Make All Rivals in the United States Seem Outclassed, All Within Four Years.

DULUTH, Minn., has about 90,000 inhabitants and one big rowing club. Until four years ago it never had an entry in a national regatta. Last Saturday Duluth oarsmen won 10 out of 11 starts at the National and finished second in the other.

St. Louis, population 750,000 with seven big clubs, has attended national regattas for 25 years, but seldom has returned a winner. The following story may explain the success of one and the failure of the other city.

DULUTH, Minn., Aug. 21.

"CONDITION counts," is the comment made by Jim Wray, Harvard rowing coach, on the remarkable performance of the Duluth, Minn., boat club crews in the annual regatta of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen at Springfield, Mass., Aug. 13 and 14.

In the long history of amateur club rowing in the United States, no organization has ever made such a clean sweep in a regatta. Ten firsts and one second out of eleven starts were convincing proof of the Minnesota crews' superiority.

Out of 51 medals offered, they took home 48. Their entry in the intermediate single sculls was scratched; their entry in the championship singles failed to qualify, and those were the only events in the regatta in which they failed to row.

Wray, summer coach of the Minnesota Boat Club at St. Paul, Minn., had ample opportunity to judge of the ability of the Duluth crews. He took his junior eight to Duluth in July and won the junior eight event in the International Rowing Association regatta. On the second day, the Duluth eight which they had beaten, turned and won. At Springfield, the same Duluth eight clinched the argument by winning again from Wray's men.

Wray's comment is all-inclusive. "Condition counts," is the keystone of the Duluth victories. Be a crew ever so well balanced and ever so speedy, if it cannot maintain the pace in a gruelling race of a mile and a quarter, it cannot win. The mile mark is the faltering place in most rowing races. That is the point at which condition tells, and rowing experts have all marked the fact that Duluth crews row the last quarter with apparently no greater exhaustion than the first quarter.

Four years ago, Duluth made its first appearance in national rowing circles. At Saratoga in 1911, a Duluth intermediate eight was entered, but did not gain a place. The first Duluth victory was recorded at Peoria in 1912 when a Duluth intermediate eight won.

The Duluth record of victories in subsequent regattas is:

1913—Boston, Mass—First—Intermediate four, intermediate eight, senior four, senior eight. Second also in senior eight.

JAMES TEN EYCK.

1915—Springfield — First—Junior eight, intermediate doubles, intermediate four, intermediate eight, senior doubles, senior quadruple sculls, senior four, senior international four, senior eight, quarter-mile dash single sculls; second, association single sculls.

Four records, three of them of six years standing, were lowered by the Duluth crews at Springfield this year. The best previous record in the intermediate eight event was made in 1909 by the New York A. C., and was 6:05. On the first day at Springfield the Duluth junior eight rowed in 5:55. The same crew lowered the mark to 5:34 the next day, and the best eight-oared time in the history of the Association was made by the Duluth senior crew an hour later in covering the mile and a quarter in 5:30 3-5. The record in the intermediate fours, 6:44, set by the New York A. C. in 1909, was lowered to 6:27 2-5 by the Duluth crew and the senior double record, 6:27, also made by the New York club in 1909, was lowered to 6:14. The Duluth quadruple scull crew cut nearly a minute from the record in that event made by the Riverside Club of Boston at Philadelphia in 1914, cutting it from 6:44 to 5:45 4-5.

"Condition" Is Main Reason for Success of Jim Ten Eyck's Oarsmen

THE present development of Duluth Boat Club rowing dates from 1911 when James E. Ten Eyck, son of "Old Jim" Ten Eyck, the Syracuse coach, was engaged to coach the Duluth crews. "Young Jim" had an impressive rowing record of his own. As a sweep oar and a sculler at Syracuse he had upheld the family reputation on the water, and his record at Duluth has enhanced the reputation of that same family.

"Condition counts," is Jim Ten Eyck's motto. His boys are recruited from Duluth high schools, from office desks and from other positions in the world of business. When the ice in the bay is thickest, his charges are gathered and put to work in rowing rigs in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium. While the last traces of snow are still on the ground, they may be seen running through the streets of Duluth in gymnasium outfits. As soon as the ice has gone from the bay the shells are launched and work on the water started. The boys leave their homes and transfer to the rowing quarters at the boat club. There they eat and sleep and row under the watchful eye of the coach. Many weeks before the regatta they may be found in their beds every night at 9 o'clock and at 6 o'clock in the morning they may be seen sending their shells over the water, training before their day's work or studies. From early evening until dark again they are on the water, rowing miles and miles under any conditions that may exist on Lake Superior.

No Drones on Crews.

There are no drones in the Duluth Boat Club crews. Every man must work to win and hold his seat in the shell. On the fastest launch on the bay, Young Jim follows his charges as they train and the shirker is soon unseated and a more willing young fellow given his place.

It has been a great year for Duluth in rowing. The Springfield regatta was preceded by the Northwestern International regatta at Duluth with crews entered from the Minnesota Boat Club, St. Paul; Lincoln Park Boat Club, Chicago; Grand Rapids Rowing Club, Grand Rapids, Mich., and Illinois Valley Boat and Canoe Club, Peoria. In that regatta the Duluth crews also won every event except one, the only crew to fall by the wayside beind the junior eight that handsomely retrieved its fortunes by defeating the St. Paul eight twice later.

The trip to Springfield was made in special cars, 34 oarsmen being in the party. The navy of nine shells was the largest and handsomest to appear at the regatta. And to top it off, the coaching launch, "Bobbie B," was included in the navy.

The Duluth Boat Club has a membership of about 1200 people. It has beautiful quarters on the bay of Duluth on the shore of Minnesota point, the narrow strip of land that landlocks the harbor. It is remote from the city in atmosphere and only a few minutes away in actual fact. But the support of the Duluth crews is not confined to the members of the boat club. Every one of the 90,000 inhabitants is proud of the crews; proud of the national prominence given the city in that one branch of sport, and axious that Duluth may hold the place thus gained. And they are proud particularly of one crew—the senior four—veteran of 14 races and never headed. The four has rowed its last race, but with his ability at developing oarsmen and the splendid material he has at hand, another four may be expected to be developed by Ten Eyck next year.

The Duluth Junior Four, which won a race at White Bear 20 years ago and was feted by the city in consequence, was stroked by Julius H. Barnes. Today Mr. Barnes is a millionaire grain exporter, one of the rich and prominent men of Duluth. For years he has carried a large share of the financial burden and a larger share of the enthusiasm of developing rowing in Duluth. He has bought shells of the best type; he has paid the expenses of taking crews to regattas; he has been the saint of the Duluth Boat Club. With a large share of the burden of keeping the channels to foreign markets opened for the American wheat crop calling him from his New York office, on Aug. 13 and 14, he sat in the "Bobbie B" on the Connecticut River and watched the consummation of years of hope and effort. The time and money he had spent in the years gone by were all repaid, as the blue-jerseyed boys from the Zenith City, "his boys," swept over the line time after time with the pick of the rowing talent of the East trailing them.

"MODEL UMPIRE" STOPPED BY LEADER OF PIRATES

Fred Clarke, as any fan or player knows, was a real outfielder when he was in the game. He was good in everything, but particularly in an argument with the umpire. He never was a "runner up," as they say in golf, when he was exchanging personalities with the ump, and you have to be mighty quick with the tongue even to hold your own with some of the men who call 'em as they see 'em.

One day Fred said something to an umpire who still is one of the best known men on President Tener's staff. The ump came back with:

"Well, you are some ballplayer, you are, old boy."

"And you are some umpire, you are, old boy," Fred shot back. "Why, to tell the truth, you are a model umpire, and that isn't a joke, either."

"Think so?" answered the ump, in all seriousness.

"Yes, indeed," said Clarke. "I not only think so, but I know I'm right. When you get to your hotel tonight, look up model in Webster's Dictionary and see if I'm not right."

Next day the ump went up to Clarke as soon as he came on the field and said:

"Soy, you've got me wrong. You don't know what model is, do you?"

"Sure I do," Fred said, quick as fire. "It's a small imitation of the real thing."

And with this shot Clarke hurriedly walked away, and it took that ump five minutes to come back to earth.

STRIKES OUT FOUR MEN, BUT ALL OF THEM SCORE

The possibilities of baseball are evinced in various ways. Freak plays are recorded in amateur and professional games that would be considered ridiculous if propounded at a fanning bee. In a recent game in the American League a player scored a run without a base hit, pass, or fielding error. His third strike was a wild pitch on which he reached second. A passed ball put him on third, and another wild pitch sent him home.

A new Federal League recruit tells a story of how four batters, whom he struck out in a row while pitching for his college team, scored, which is unique in baseball annals. His catcher, as he tells the tale, was a little fellow who could not hold his fast ones, and as he had nothing but speed, the result was disastrous.

The first four batters to face the amateur, Rusie, reached first safely when the catcher let the third strike go through. The first batter scored when the fourth landed on first, and a hit and error following scored the next three.

Dell Hurler by Accident.

W. J. (Weezer) Dell, young pitcher of the Brooklyn National League club, whose excellent twirling has been a big factor in the recent climb of the Superbas to the forerank of the circuit, says that he became a pitcher by accident. Nine years ago, when Dell was playing amateur ball in Butte, Mont., his regular place was on first base. One day the team was short of pitchers and he was sent to the mound as an emergency twirler. Dell did so well that he was promoted to the hurling staff of the team. Wilbert Robinson, manager of the Superbas, is on the outlook for a few more made-over first basemen, who can pitch as well as "Weezer."

HERZOG DEVELOPS CARDINAL DISCARD INTO N. L. WONDER

HAS NEW CURVE BALL

He's Slow-Balling His Way to Fame, Unlike Most Stars Who Rely on Speed.

Eugene Dale, the St. Louis boy, who had a short trial with the Cardinals when Roger Bresnahan was manager of the club, has developed into one of the best flingers in the National League as a member of the Cincinnati club this season. Dale came to the Reds this spring from the Montreal club of the International League.

The righthander not only has proven the winning pitcher for Charley Herzog, but he also has introduced a new curve, in the form of a slow ball that actually curves. The slow ball employed by other twirlers is straight.

With Montreal in 1914 Dale did not make a great record. He won only 10 games, while his defeats numbered 17, for a percentage of .370. Here are a few things Dale has done with the Reds:

Has won 14 games and lost eight for a .636 mark.

Has pitched 224 2-3 innings, an dhas been scored upon 68 times, an average of 2.61 tallies per game.

In six games he has been the winner by one run, while he has lost two by a 360 foot margin.

Beats Cards 3 Times.

The best pitching Dale has uncorked this year came on June 30 and July 4. On the former day he shut out the Cubs, 1—0, with only three hits, while on the latter he faced the Cardinals and was returned the winner, 1—0, allowing six hits. He has pitched four battles this year in which the opposition was blanked. The Giants and Braves suffered in the two not mentioned above.

Miller Huggins' Cardinals have yet to beat the right-hander. He owns three victories over the local crew this season, all of them being decided by one tally. The first of these came April 29, when Herzog's men batted out five runs in the ninth frame and grabbed the battle, 10—9. The next came May 31, 2—1, with Doak as his opponent and the last one on July 4, 1—0, with Robinson pitching against him.

The Giants and Phillies have had the greatest success against him this year, both clubs owing two victories over him. All the other clubs, with the exception of the Cardinals, have defeated him once.

Owns Victory Over Alex.

One of the notable happenings in Dale's career came on May 20, when he opposed the Phillies, with great Alexander twirling and handed his rival his first defeat of the season, 6—2. In this contest Dale allowed only four safeties. His record for the season follows:

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—Race officials would help the sport immensely if they used a moving picture camera at the finish of all races. That would prevent the possibility of error in judgment as to the winner and the money horses in each race.

The racing game, both the trotting and running departments, are replete with instances where the spectators have disagreed with the judges in decisions as to head or nose finishes. In view of the fact that the public bets its money on the races and that it is entitled to every bit of protection possible, it seems that the racing associations should use a motion picture camera so that in case of dispute the camera films be called upon to tell the true story.

A motion picture camera could get the horses as they come into the stretch and carry them along right across the finish line. It could be focused squarely at the finish line so that when the film is produced it would show which horse was ahead.

During a recent race at Detroit there were two finishes so close that the judges decided to wait until the pictures were developed which a photographer took. However, those pictures were snapshot affairs and they didn't help much because it is almost impossible for a snapping camera to get the horse on the fraction of the second that the winner crosses the finish line. The snap camera usually gets the horses a fraction before or a fraction after the finish is crossed; and so a snapshot picture isn't of much value in enabling the judges to arrive at a delayed decision. But a movie camera would turn the trick.

Dreyfuss Defies Tener; Tells Him He Doesn't Know N. L. Constitution

Pittsburg President Totally Ignores Order From League's Executive to Keep Benton on Bench, Pending Investigation of Giants' Claim.

PITTSBURG, Aug. 21, 1915.

THE tangle over the possession of Pitcher Rube Benton, southpaw pitcher for whom Pittsburg and New York are disputing, may get into the courts before it is definitely settled.

Barney Dreyfuss, president of the local club, is fighting mad over the treatment he has ben accorded, not only by Garry Herrmann, the rotund Cincinati double-dealer, but by President John K. Tener, of the National League, whom he accuses of taking upon himself authority which the league constitution does not delegate to him.

"I am going to fight this thing through to a bitter finish," said Dreyfuss, with heat, "and if I can't get justice in the league, I'll take the league into court, sue it for damages and, also enter suit against Herrmann and the Cincinnati club.

"Chickens always come home to roost. Let me recall a little National League history, which applies in this case. A number of years ago Harry Pulliam decided the Davis and Elberfeld cases against New York club. John T Brush was then president of the Giants. Because of these cases, he hated Pulliam like poison. He determined to tie Harry's hands as president of the league. He fathered an amendment to the constitution of the league, which absolutely made a figurehead, a dummy of our president, so far as disputes other than arising with players on the ball field are concerned.

"He deprived the president of all sayso, all powers in disputes between clubowners, and specifically set forth the executive's powers. Tener, the other day, had John Heydler wire me that I could not use Benton, and that I must turn him over to New York. The telegram further stated that the umpires had been instructed to forfeit any games in which we tried to use Benton.

"Now, here's where the Brush law comes in. Tener hasn't the power to do what he has done. I know the constitution of the National League. I can recite it backwards. Tener ought to be able to do the same, if he is competent to fill the position he holds. The board of directors alone has the power to do what Tener has done.

"Moreover, I happen to know that his reference to instructing the umpires to forfeit any game in which Benton works for us is merely a bluff. No such order was issued by Tener. I talked with John Heydler over the telephone this morning, and he told me that it was just a bluff. I told Heydler he had no right to send the telegram he had dispatched to me, and he admitted it, but said that Tener had called him up from somewhere near Boston last night and ordered him to do it.

"I paid $4000 for Benton. I sent Herrmann my check for that amount. I received word from him that he intended to keep the check until the case was finally decided, but that he would not use the money. Isn't that a fine, high moral stand to take? He knows in his heart that we are entitled to the man.

"As a matter of fact, he admitted it to me, though he turned Benton's contract over to the New York club. He told me I had made a mistake in giving the news to the papers. Do you know why? He thought that the New York club would never have thought of taking Benton had it not known that we were getting him."

Aside from Benton, Pittsburg now has only six twirlers, Joe Conzelman having been sold to the Indianapolis club.

Boxing Promoters Meet to Organize a Governing Body

14 Cities Are Represented at First Meeting Held in Forest Cty.

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 21.—Fourteen boxing promoters and managers, representing almost that number of cities and representing as many promoters who for various reasons were unable to come here, assembled at the Hollenden Hotel today in the national convention for the uplift of the ring game—the first convention of its kind ever held in this country.

Beyond listening to suggestions, planning methods of procedure and taking inventory to see just how popular the plan is, little was accomplished. An organization will be definitely formed tomorrow, by-laws adopted and a set of rules governing the boxing game adopted.

The purpose of the convention is to have a national agreement binding on boxers, managers and promoters.

Among the most prominent suggestions made was one for a revision of the present scale of weights, the raising of the bantamweight limit from 116 to 117 pounds and of the featherweight from 122 to 125 pounds, the lightweight from 133 to 135 pounds, the welterweight from 145 to 147 pounds and the middleweight from 158 to 160 pounds.

To Revise Weights.

Lord Lonsdale, leading figure in the game in England, in a letter to Tom Andrews, leading spirit in the convention, asserted that the English authorities would reduce their featherweight limit from 126 to 125 pounds, making the weights in all classes in the United States and England the same.

Snowy Baker, the "Lord Lonsdale of Australia," in a letter to Andrews also stated his unqualified support of the plan to govern the boxing game in the United States and announced that he and his associates would gladly work in harmony with the United States organization.

Other prominent suggestions which probably will be embodied in the rules will provide:

That champions must defend their titles at stated intervals.

That promoters or boxers or managers of boxers who violate contracts shall be blacklisted.

That referees shall in some manner have their qualifications acted upon by the national body and shall in some measure be responsible to the national organization.

That penalties be imposed for failures of boxers to deliver according to specifications.

These are just a few of them. They cover the broadest points which are in need of correction in the sport as it is now conducted.

Tommy Sullivan on Hand.

Those present at the meeting included: Tom Andrews, Harry Stout, W. Mitchell and W. H. Liginger, of Milwaukee; Dr. J. W. Regan and Mark Shaughnessy, of Minneapolis; Tommy Sullivan, of St. Louis; Mike Collins, of Hudson, Wis.; Gene Melody, of Omaha; Charles Murray, of Buffalo; Sam Harris, of Baltimore; Joe Chip, of New Castle; Matt Hinkel, George Schneider, Jimmy Dunn and newspaper men from Cleveland.

Telegrams were received from Sam Howard, of Far Rockaway, N. Y.; Johnny Reisler, of New York; Orton B. Fowler, of St. Louis; Tommy Burns and Dominick Torotorich, of New Orleans, stating that for various reasons they could not attend the meeting, but that they wished to be enlisted as members of the organization and would support any action taken by those present.

Myo Murray, Boston; Horace Lerch, Buffalo; Jack McGuigan and Harry Edwards, Philadelphia; Jimmy Johnston, New York, and promoters in Denver, Cincinnati and other cities in letters stated that they, too, wished to become allied with the movement and would be governed by the actions of the organization.

Mark Shaughnessy, Minneapolis; W. H. Liginger, Milwaukee; Tom Andrews, Milwaukee; Matt Hinkel and George A. Schneider, Cleveland, were appointed as a committee to formulate a set of rules to govern the meeting.

RICH GOLFER CALLS OFF HIS $100,000 MATCH

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 21.—Declaring that his agreement to play a game of golf for $100,000 with Dr. Edward Martin, professor of surgery at the University of Pennsylvania, had caused him to receive bushels of mail from "poor and needy" cranks from all over the world, Clarence H. Geist, millionaire president of the Seaview Golf Club says that he will not be further annoyed by playing the proposed match in October.

The wager caused a sensation. If Martin lost he was to buy 10 shares of stock at $100 each in the Seaview Club. If Geist lost the play he should give Martin $100,000 to endow a chair of surgical research in the University of Pennsylvania.

GIANTS BUY PITCHER

VANCOUVER, B. C., Aug. 21.—Ray Kramer, a young pitcher who walked with six other Vancouver (Northwestern League) ball players last June in a sympathy strike which resulted in suspension of the entire squad, has been sold to the New York Nationals, it was announced today.

Bryntima Takes Handicap.

Plank Is Leader Among Pitchers of Local Clubs

Veteran Southpaw Has Won 15 and Lost Eight Games During Present Season.

Eddie Plank, the veteran southpaw, who last winter was unconditionally released by Manager Connie Mack of the Athletics, is at present the leading pitcher for the St. Louis clubs. Plank this year has won 15 battles and lost eight for a percentage of .652. Doc Crandall, his teammate, is giving him a close race with 14-8, .636.

Plank not only is the leader in games won and lost, but he also is out in front when the runs per game are figured. In the 183 inings he has worked this season he has been scored upon 47 times, an average of 2.34 runs per game.

Lee Meadows, with 10 victories and 6 defeats, tops the Cardinals, while Carl Weilman, 15-15, heads the Browns.

Miss Tittsworth Returns Trophy to Municipal A. A.; Is Reinstated by A. A. U.

At a meeting of the officials of the Western A. A. U. yesterday afternoon, Miss Ethel Tittsworth was reinstated and given a card to the Amateur Athletic Association. Miss Tittsworth was suspended recently for taking part in the Municipal Athletic Association championships in the Fairground Pool. She returned her trophy to the M. A. A.

The lifting of the ban means that Miss Tittsworth will be allowed to start in the annual two-mile river swim of the Western Rowing Club which will be held next Sunday.

Billy Westhus announced that entries for the long distance paddle were coming in strong and that he expects 30 entries for next Sunday's event. The entries close next Thursday.

Brandom Named Captain.

LIBERTY, Mo., Aug. 21.—C. D. Brandom of Gallatin, Mo., will be the captain of the William Jewell College team of this city during the 1915 campaign. "Brandy," as he is familiarly known, has played as a regular on the Jewellite eleven for two seasons. Brandom had the honor last year of making a 90-yard run against Warrensburg for the only score of the game. It gave William Jewell the championship. Brandom is small in stature, but he overcomes this disadvantage by his unusual ability to sidestep and to use a stiff arm when carrying the ball.

PURSE MUST BE BIG ENOUGH FOR WILLARD TO BOX

Champion Says He Is Willing to Meet Moran if "It is Worth While."

ATTELL HEARD FROM

By Robert Edgren.

(Copyright, 1915, by Press Pub. Co.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—Jess Willard has said something in an interview. "I'm willing to meet Frank Moran or any one else who wants to take the title from me, but the purse has to be big enough to make it worth while for me to enter the ring."

"Big enough" may mean almost anything. In Jack McAuliffe's day it might have meant $20, for Jack sometimes fought for less than that. In Fitzsimmons' day it might have been a hard, thin dime, for Fitzsimmons got less than that for knocking out Jim Corbett at Carson. He didn't even get a nickel. In Jeff's day it might have meant a few thousand, and in the days of Tommy Burns and Jack Johnson, it might have been $30,000. But now, in the time of short bouts, with no decision, Jess Willard may want a few thousand more.

If Willard is making real money and making it rapidly enough to satisfy him, there isn't a chance in the world of his ever fighting again.

Packey McFarland, who will be here soon to finish training for the Gibbons fight, says that he never broke either of his hands, and that only twice has he had even a sore hand after a fight. His hands were sore and swollen after he boxed Tommy Murphy in California, and after his bout with Matt Wells here. In both bouts Packey was busy dealing it out until interfered with by the gong.

Attell Heard From.

Abe Attell writes in to let us know that he doesn't play the faro bank any more. "On the contrary," Abie says, "I have been very successful in my theatrical career, and am better fixed financially today than I ever was in all my ring career."

Abie also wishes to state that he thinks Kilbane is afraid of him.

Jack Skelly says that Jess Willard "certainly lacks great speed and agility in the ring." But then, Jack was in Yonkers when Jess was in Havana fighting Jack Johnson for the championship of the world. Jess showed fairly fast footwork—very fast footwork for a man of his size. I took a large number of snapshots of that fight, and in every one Willard is up on his toes like a sprinter, while Johnson is flat-footed.

Well, he might not, too.

Just unofficially, and not for the settlement of wild wagers, I might say that I feel quite sure he might not.

Wolgast to Be Busy.

Ad Wolgast announces that he will be busy boxing all through the winter.

Apparently Ad still has a supply of unbroken bones.

Matty Baldwin took a severe trouncing from Young Saylor in Boston a couple of nights ago, being hammered so hard that few thought he'd be able to stick through the 12 rounds.

Only a few years ago Matty was a wonderful fighting boxer with a perfect defense. His boast was that he'd never been knocked down in a fight. He was close to the feather-weight limit, yet never hesitated when asked to take on a lightweight. Matty wasn't beaten often in those days, and when he did lose it was only by the narrowest of narrow margins.

Somehow or other, the old-timers always seem to slip by. They're gone before we notice it.

Catarrh a Blood Disease S.S.S. Drives It From Your System

Because Catarrh affects the nose and throat, causing sores in the nostrils, stoppage of air-passages and gathering in the throat, it has been common practice to treat Catarrh by lotions, washes and sprays applied to these parts. This mode of treatment is entirely wrong. It cannot give permanent relief, and it is liable to irritate and aggravate the trouble. Catarrh cannot be trifled with. If allowed to run on it will disease the bronchial tubes, settle on the lungs, the stomach—indeed it is a very serious disease. Don't treat it locally. The fact that it causes headaches is proof that it is caused by impure and diseased blood. The one treatment that has proved effective in the treatment of Catarrh is S. S. S. It is the greatest blood purifier and blood tonic known. It relieves the cause of Catarrh by the process of renourishing the blood, renewing its strength and vigor, giving new life to the red blood corpuscles, and stimulating the flow so that it has the vitality to throw off the poison and germs from the system. It is literally a blood bath. You quickly feel results. Headaches disappear, the gathering in the throat stops, the nostrils heal—before you hardly realize it you are well. S. S. S. is a natural blood tonic and has proven effective in the treatment of all blood affections. Eczema, tetter, rash, Scrofula. Get S. S. S. at your druggist's. If you need special advice write the S. MOTOR CAR OWNER HARSHLY HANDLED IN LEGISLATION

Double Taxed in Some States, in Nine He Pays Three Assessments for Driving Automobile.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—While the automobile trade has been steadily progressing in the direction of cutting down the cost of cars and their maintenance, the thoughts of the lawmakers on motor cars have not been so happily directed.

The Touring Bureau of the American Automobile Association has just completed a codification of the automobile laws as they are at the present writing. This codification will soon be ready for distribution and a copy may be had by sending to the national headquarters of the association either at Washington or New York.

A casual study will demonstrate that automobiles are essentially subjects for class legislation in most of the states. Not only are they taxed as users of the highways, but, with some exceptions, they are also taxed as personal property. There are also states which have a third means of making the motor car owner pay. In these the owner is compelled to take out a permit to use his own property for personal pleasure.

The notable exceptions wherein the paying of one tax definitely bars all other forms are in the states of New York, Idaho, Iowa and Oklahoma. These commonwealths specifically provide that registration is in lieu of all other taxes. To this list should be added Pennsylvania and Vermont, wherein there are no added taxes, though not so specifically provided for in the legislative acts.

Those states where the owner is required to pay a third tax are Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, New Jersey and the District of Columbia. In Vermont, while escaping the property tax the owner pays for a driving license.

Considerable more sanity has been written into the laws regulating the speed both in municipalities and on the open road. This section shows that almost unanimously it is now realized that "reasonable and prudent" are, after all, the same viewpoints of operation.

Reasoning expression of how automobiles ought to be driven rather leads to the hope that the speed regulations will sooner or later bring about an equally unanimous set of miles-per-hour rules for definite conditions, until such time as a law like Louisiana's obtains everywhere. As now listed, these are just enough varied in the mileage rate, though rather alike in their objectives, to create confusion on the part of the interstate tourists.

Louisiana recognizes that miles-per-hour restrictions do not guarantee a sane use of the highway by all its users, and particularly those possessing vehicles of great speed. It places a direct responsibility on all concerned and should result in rates of speed harmonizing with existing traffic conditions.

FINAL ROUTING MADE OF CLUBS' TWO-DAY RUN

The first two-day reliability tour of the Automobile Club of St. Louis will be run Friday and Saturday, Oct. 15 and 16. This is the eighth annual tour of the club. The route for the two-day tour is to Jefferson City and return. On the first day the route will be through Union, Washington, New Haven, Hermann, Chamois, Lynn and Westphalia. The start will be from Forest Park boulevard and King's highway and the distance 166 miles. The return trip from Jefferson City will be over the Old Trails route to Fulton, Warrenton, Wentzville and St. Charles back to the starting point, a distance of 133.5 miles. The route guides, maps of the course, rules and entry blanks are now in the hands of the printer and will be distributed the first week in September. The Southern route on the first day is through wonderfully beautiful scenery, probably equaling any in the United States.

The tour will admit three classes of entrants. Class A is touring cars driven by owner or member of his immediate family; class B, roadsters to be driven by the owner or member of his family; class C, cars of club members only, driven by regularly employed chauffeurs. In class A and B no entrant is eligible who has at any time received compensation for driving an automobile.

RESPONSES WERE HEAVY

"More inquiries by far and more sales by many," is the way W. C. Shields, of the Colonial Motor Car Co., describes the response to the recent Kissel Kar announcement.

"And I regard this situation not only with personal gratification, but as carrying a broader significance, one that augers well for the supremacy of honestly-priced cars. Buyers are skeptical and evidently determined to be very careful, due to the general reduction of prices having raised sharply in their minds the question of quality.

"Therefore entirely new chassis designs offered at low prices are very critically considered, while models practically unchanged from last year and which have a good record are strongly in favor.

"The KisselKar 42-six, really a wonderful car, has not been subjected to a single chassis change. Neither has the 36-four. As for the 32-four, it is a miniature of the larger models and, although selling for much less than any KisselKar ever sold before, the specifications plainly show that the usual high Kissel Kar standards characterize every unit."

LONG TRIP BY 2 WOMEN

Miss Helen Zenor, supervisor of music in the public schools of Paris, Tex., formerly of Meramec Highlands, arrived in St. Louis yesterday in an automobile from Paris, accompanied by her mother. The two women made the trip in seven days. After visiting in St. Louis and Meramec Highlands they will start Tuesday on the return trip. The only trouble they had on the way was getting stuck in the mud a few times and arrested once. Miss Zenor was able to get out of the mud unassisted except once, when she had to have the assistance of a team.

They were arrested at oJnesboro, Mo., because the town marshal did not like the looks of their Texas license. He thought it was a counterfeit Missouri license and would not believe the women when they told him they had driven all the way from Paris, Tex. It happened the Prosecuting Attorney had formerly lived in Paris. Miss Zenor convinced him she and her mother were telling the truth and they were released.

NEW NATIONAL ARRIVES

With the arrival of the first allotment of the new National "Highway Six" models in St. Louis, there has been an unusual demand on the part of prospective buyers for demonstrations, and the Geo. C. Brinkman Co., which handles the National line in St. Louis territory, demonstrators are kept busy late hours in the evening explaining the merits of the new types.

"The National 'Highway Six' is the latest achievement of a factory organization that has successfully produced high-grade cars for 15 years," says George C. Brinkman, head of the Geo. C. Brinkman Car Co. "The stylish appearance of the new model reflects quality building. The sides of the body are neatly and cleverly molded round, eliminating all moldings on top and around doors. A special axle design permits of an unusual turning radius of 33 feet.

"The car is light and has an extra volume of power in proportion to its weight. While mechanical details are meritorious, yet it will be found that comfort is the keynote of the new type. The National aisle-way front seats are veritable arm chairs and can be adjusted to suit all occupants of the car. The six is long, low and roomy. It is noteworthy that a National can now be purchased for $1690."

NEW OVERLAND PLANT

Large additions more than equaling the size of the average American automobile plant are being started at the Overland factory in Toledo.

According to officials of the company, the additions to the factory alone will be equivalent to almost 25 acres of floor space. In addition to the factory extensions, there will be a new office building 63x373 feet.

One of the new factory structures will contain 20 acres of floor space and will be nearly three times the size of the original Pope plant, when taken over by John N. Willys, president of the Willys-Overland company. This building will be five stories high, 400 feet wide and 400 feet deep. It will be used for final testing, body assembling and finishing and will contain 800,000 square feet of floor space.

SERVICE MEN AT FACTORY

Eighty mechanical experts, representing the technical departments of Packard dealers and branches throughout the country, spent four days of this week in annual convention at the Detroit plant. Discussion of the new Twin Six featured a series of talks by J. G. Vincent, vice president of engineering, and other factory executives.

The Packard Co. takes an advanced position in the matter of encouraging dealers to make provision for giving adequate attention to cars in the hands of owners. This policy has been an important factor in the successful merchandising of the company's output.

CADILLAC "8" FOR EIGHT

The 1916 eight-cylinder Cadillac car was demonstrated for the benefit of a representative of the Post-Dispatch Thursday and the results were very satisfactory. The car was driven to the new drive up Art Hill and started from a standstill at the bottom of the hill. One-third of the way up the hill it had reached 22 miles without any apparent pull or strain on the motor. It was taken up a numebr of other steep hills and on the Natural Bridge road it was speeded in 20 seconds from four miles an hour to 55 miles an hour. It crawled up several of the hills in high at a speed of two miles an hour. John Ellis, of the sales force, drove the car.

The Cadillac Automobile Co. of St. Louis delivered to the George Kriegshauser Undertaking and Livery Co. a Cadillac limousine of unusual finish and construction. The tonneau accommodates six pasengers, all facing front, the seats folding into the driver's seat. This is in addition to the two passengers in the front seat. The car cost $3600 and will be used in livery and funeral service. Several other cars of this type will be added shortly.

LONG DRIVE IN LOW GEAR

Going the entire distance of 860 miles over the roughest possible roads on low gear, J. W. McCormmach of Pendleton, Ore., in a Franklin car, completed one of the hardest tests ever given an automobile engine when he reached San Francisco Wednesday afternoon, August 4, at 5:50, having traveled all the way from Walla Walla, Wash., which he left Sunday morning, August 1, at 6:10.

The air-cooled motor of the Franklin was kept running during the entire trip. Even on the ferry boats, special permission was obtained from the authorities allowing the motor to idle so that the non-stop record would have no interruption. At no time during this steady grind of 83 hours and 40 minutes was there any trouble experienced with the motor or any other part of the car.

Before the start at Walla Walla, the high and intermediate gears were removed from the transmission. After the certified inspection by C. M. Dodd of the Chanslor & Lyon Co. of Seattle, the transmission was sealed with a regulation railroad freight car seal, the number of which was made note of and forwarded to the John F. McLain Co. at San Francisco, together with two gears which were removed, for checking at the end of the run.

WILL SELL PARTIN-PALMER

A contract has been closed by the Auto Exchange, 2946 Olive street, St. Louis, with the Commonwealth Motors Co., for the distribution in the St. Louis territory of the Partin-Palmer car. The car is turned out in two models, both fours. One rates at 28 horsepower in roadster style only and sells for $495. The other rates at 38 horsepower and sells for $975.

ARMY MAN DRIVES LITTLE ROCK TO ST. LOUIS

Capt. A. B. Sloan of the United States army, who is on special national guard detail at Little Rock, Ark., arrived in St. Louis Friday morning in an Apperson car, which he had driven through from Little Rock. Except between Cape Girardeau and St. Louis, Capt. Sloan reports the roads to be in excellent condition. The condition between Cape Girardeau and St. Louis was due to the heavy rains which have recently fallen.

His car was coated with mud and even the carburetor intake and gasoline line were chocked with it.

His route from Little Rock to St. Louis was from Little Rock to Hazel, to Cotton Plant, to Forest City, via Wheatley. White River was crossed at Des Arc, there being two ferries there, one across a bayou and the other crossing the White River.

From Forest City the route was through Jonesboro over very good roads to Campbell, Mo., to Advance. From Advance to Cape Girardeau the roads were hilly. The route from Cape Girardeau was through Jackson, St. Genevieve, Farmington, Bonne Terre and De Soto.

Capt. Sloan's former home was in Kennett, Mo. He served as Captain in the Sixth Missouri Volunteer Infantry in the Spanish War, the only regiment which went to Cuba. He has served since then in the regular army in the Philippine Islands and Alaska.

KRENNING PULLS BIG CAR OUT OF DITCH

H. B. Krenning, president of the Dorris Motor Car Co., drives to his country home at Arcadia every Friday night and returns Sunday night. Last Sunday night when he reached Seckmann Hill, 20 miles from St. Louis, which in bicycle days was known as "Hell and Damnation Hill," with five pasengers in his car, he found a seven-passenger Pierce-Arrow car backed off into the deep rain trough in the middle of the hill. It had almost run out of gasoline and the driver attempted to turn around on the hill so as to back up and the car slipped off the side.

Six cars had stopped to render assistance and all had tried to pull the big 4200-pound car out of the rut without success. Krenning hitched his Dorris Six on with a hog chain, had six men stand on the running board of his car to give weight, making 11 passengers in the car, and his driver pulled up the hill as easily as if there was nothing behind.

One of the bystanders said to Mr. Krenning, "If you pull that car out of that hole I will buy a Dorris car day after tomorrow." "If I don't pull it out," said Krenning, "I will give you a Dorris car day after tomorrow." The Tuesday morning to fulfill his part of the agreement.

CENTRAL HIGHWAY BAD

Henry Bode of the Master Auto Delivery Service Co., 1423 Locust street, returned Friday from a trip through Northeast Missouri over the Boone's Lick Trail road. About 80 miles of the road between Mexico and St. Louis was through mud 12 inches deep and several bridges were down, necessitating long detours. At Warrenton four machines were met and they were shoveling mud from their fenders to lighten their load. It took them 4½ hours to drive 26 miles from Mineola to Warrenton. It took Bode 12 hours to make the trip from Mexico to St. Louis, 120 miles. The farmers had in many places dug up the sides of the road and threw it into the center without dragging it.

MOTOR ROUTES MAP OF THE UNITED STATES

A. L. Westgard, vice president and director transcontinental highways of the National Highways Association, whose work in behalf of the motor touring and good roads development has taken him into every nook and corner of the United States and made him known all over the country as "the man of many miles," has prepared a map of the United States, showing the main traveled motor routes, with special emphasis given to the transcontinental and other long distance highways. The map is 19x18 inches, engraved on wax, and is for free distribution to motorists in any part of the country. It may be procured from automobile clubs, or of the National Highway Association, Washington, D. C., or by addressing A. L. Westgard at national headquarters, 18 Old Slip, New York, if 4 cents in stamps to cover cost of mailing is inclosed with the request.

With the Westgard map goes a map of the 50,000 miles of national highways advocated by the National Highways Association, together with an explanation of the fourfold system of highways also advocated by the association, namely, national highways, state highways, county and town or township roads.

ELECTRIC CAR AGENTS CHANGE FIRM NAME

The Leach-Brouster & Co. succeeds the Rauch & Lang St. Louis Co. of St. Louis, the local representative for the Baker and Rauch & Lang electric cars. This is merely a change of name as the old company was operated by R. W. Leach and H. G. Brouster.

The Rauch & Lang St. Louis Co., 3118 Locust street, has handled the Rauch & Lang car for 36 months. When the consolidation of the Baker and Rauch & Lang factories occurred it was decided to change the name of the local company so that there would be nothing misleading in the title. There has been no change in the personnel of the organization nor in the policy of rendering high-class service for Rauch & Lang, Baker or any other make of electric cars.

ACCESSORY HOUSE IN NEW LOCUST ST. HOME

The Missouri Auto Specialty Co. will be in its new home at 1905 Locust street by Sept. 15. This building is now being remodeled and a large plate-glass front will be put in with a vestibule entrance floored with tile. Both floors of the building will be occupied, giving the company double the space which it occupies now across the street from the new location. The building adjoins that of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. L. E. Allmon is president and manager of the company.

CARTWRIGHT HAS PLANT FOR BUILDING BODIES

The Commercial Auto Body Co., of which Hugh F. Cartwright is president, has closed a five years' lease for the four-story and basement building at the southeast corner of Sixteenth and Pine streets. This modern building has about 30,000 square feet of floor space.

The building is to be used for the manufacture of automobile bodies. The latest wood-working and metal machinery will be installed and the factory operated on the most economical basis, with every labor-saving device. About 20 machines will be installed, all motor driven. The factory will be in full operation about Sept. 1 and all classes of automobile bodies will be built, but especial attention will be given to commercial bodies for installment on any style chassis.

A line of stock bodies for Ford chasses will be kept ahead of orders at all times, insuring quick shipment. The Commercial Auto Body Co. has built up its business so that its shipments reach all parts of the United States. The general office of the company will be maintained at 3003 Locust street.

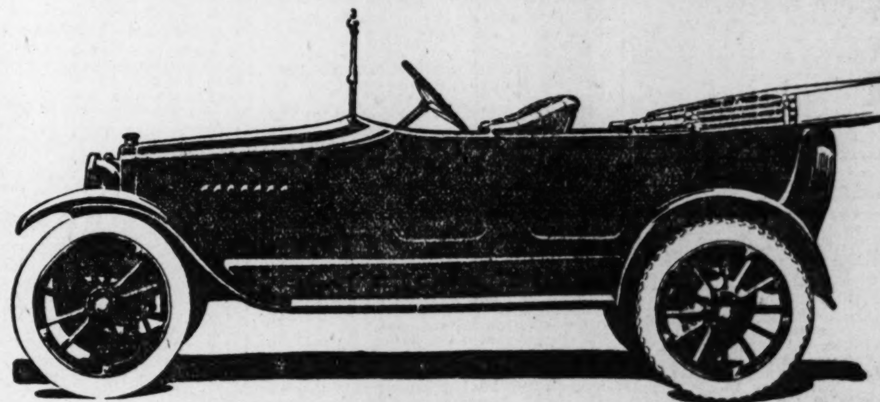
SAXON "SIX"
A big touring car for five people



Four New Ideas

Today there are four new ideas in motor car design:
Light weight
High speed motor
Yacht-line body
Increased riding comfort for all passengers

Light weight comes from right design and right materials. Nickel steel in axles, steering gear and other vital parts is lighter and stronger than ordinary carbon steel. Vanadium steel not only makes better springs but reduces their weight.

Saxon high speed motor design gets more power with less gas out of a small motor than men used to get out of big heavy motors. Besides, this is a six-cylinder motor—with the even pull and marvelous flexibility that only a "Six" can give. Except for starting the car, gear shifting is practically unknown to Saxon "Six" owners.

The yacht-line body of Saxon "Six" exemplifies the latest motor car fashion. Its very lines suggest swift, easy motion.

Riding comfort for all five passengers is found in the exceptional roominess of tonneau and driving compartment. Long resilient cantilever springs make rough roads easy.

If you seek speed—Saxon "Six" has it. This car ran 490 miles from Los Angeles to San Francisco in 13½ hours—15 minutes faster than the "Lark," the Southern Pacific's fastest train.

If you seek power—Saxon "Six" has demonstrated it on every famous testing hill in the country. At Uniontown, Pa., it climbed the twisting three-mile mountain road in 4 minutes and 4 seconds, defeating all cars in its price class.

If you seek economy—Saxon "Six" has it. 105 "Sixes" driven home from the factory by dealers covered 26,360 miles and averaged 21 miles to the gallon.

Today in your touring car of course you want a "Six." Don't try to be content with less, when you can enjoy "Six" luxury in a well-proved Saxon for $785.

Post-Dispatch's Review of Real Estate News

OPTION ON LOCUST AND 12TH LOT FOR HOTEL IS TAKEN

W. J. Holbrook Wires Instruction After Obtaining Assurance That Eastern Capital for Projected 16-Story Structure Will Be Forthcoming on Basis of Bonds.

ST. LOUIS MONEY TO ACQUIRE FEE

Busch Memorial Hotel Project Expected to Be Revised and Completed, Followed by Improvement on Ambitious Scale of Southeast Corner of Twelfth and Chestnut.

As agents for Rush R. Wallace, Cornet & Zeibig are preparing the papers whereby W. J. Holbrook, president of the Holbrook-Blackwelder Real Estate Trust Co., will acquire an option to purchase the northeast corner of Twelfth and Locust streets for $250,000.

Holbrook, as was announced in the Post-Dispatch two months ago, along with the names of its prospective lessees, represents a syndicate that proposes to build on the site a 16-story hotel to cost $500,000. Plus cost of the site, the project will entail an investment of $750,000.

Clark H. Lehman, vice president of the Clark Bros. Distilling Co. of Peoria, Ill., and Edward Hull, operators of the Hotel Jefferson of that city, of the New Muscatine Hotel at Muscatine, Io., and of hotels in Decatur and Champaign, Ill., closed contracts with Holbrook two months ago for a 20-year lease of the proposed Twelfth street hotel. The exexution of the lease is contingent upon the building's being completed within a stipulated period.

Fortified with the contract with the Peoria magnates, Holbrook went to New York a week ago to try to float bonds for the hotel project. Yesteday his office received from him a telegram authorizing it to close an option with Cornet & Zeibig for the purchase of the fee to the Locust street corner at the foregoing price, which had already been tacitly accepted by the agents before his departure.

Eastern Money for Building Only.

From what could be gathered in real estate circles, the purchase price of the fee is to be raised by Holbrook among his associates in the enterprise, including the Peoria hotel magnates, while New York bankers are to advance the money for the hotel building, retaining as security a first deed of trust on the property as a whole.

The site is held under a 99-year lease by the Essex Realty Co., of which W. K. Bixby is president, and which [illegible] thereon a one-story building having a frontage of 83 feet on Twelfth street by a depth of 100 feet on Locust street.

While Bixby is not its prime mover, it is understood that he will surrender his leasehold for stock in the building and besides will subscribe towards the purchase of the site.

The corner is one of the most eligible in downtown St. Louis for a hotel of the first class, being in the heart of a center that is developing on an imposing scale. Hotel Jefferson is directly opposite, while the northeast corner of Twelfth and Olive streets has been acquired by the Pulitser Publishing Co. for an adequate home for the Post-Dispatch.

Busch Memorial Hotel Probable.

Although the plans are in abeyance as a result of the status of the Central Parkway scheme, which is believed to have failed, at least for a long period, the proposed Busch Memorial Hotel will be erected on the site purchased for it, embracing the southwest and the northwest corner of Chestnut and Market streets.

Final settlement of the estate of the late Adolphus Busch will be made in October, when, according to James W. Darst, through whom the site was purchased, August A. Busch and his mother will again consider the memorial idea.

Leo Moser, who owns the southeast corner of Twelfth and Chestnut streets, also has ambitious ideas for the improvement of that site, the execution of which, it is believed, will quickly follow decision by the Busch family to proceed with the hotel enterprise.

Only two months ago negotiations were concluded by the Orpheum Theater Co. for the erection at the southeast corner of Ninth and St. Charles streets of a theater building to cost, exclusive of the site, $400,000, while the Mercantile Trust Co. has announced plans for the building at the southeast corner of Eighth and St. Charles streets of an addition to its Eighth and Locust structure, to cost $500,000.

Louis A. Cella and Frank R. Tate will be interested with the Orpheum Theater Co. in the St. Charles street theater.

The Southern Realty Co., of which Cella is president and Joseph Martin secretary, owns the Ninth and St. Charles streets site, which has been taken over by the Orpheum Theater Co. under a 99-year lease.

The Mercantile Trust Co.'s addition will be a counterpart of its present imposing building, the enlargement being imperative because of the growth of this financial institution.

Lewis Tract Sale Approved.

Matt G. Reynolds, receiver for the E. G. Lewis interests, announced yesterday the approval of the sale of the 138 acres on Delmar boulevard just east of Hanley road, knocked down to Theodore Hemmelman Jr., president of the Hemmelman-Spackler Real Estate Co., two weeks ago for $179,000. Hemmelman is head of the syndicate that will subdivide and improve the tract as a high-class residential park at a cost of several hundred thousand dollars.

The syndicate is composed of David May, Jackson Johnson, F. A. Grant, S. Van Raalte, J. Brooks Johnson, J. Brooks Johnson, agent; Abe Cohn, Joseph Van Raalte, G. Pantaleoni, Tom Randolph, Julius Pitzman, Theodore Rassieur, Theodore E. Berger, B. Suefert, C. J. Johnson, Jule M. Mers. Robert T. Mers, A. G. Enderle and the Hememlman-Spackler Real Estate Co.

The tract, which is within the confines of University City, is convenient to the Delmar avenue street car line and the Park Theater, at Delmar and Hamilton avenues. The plans, however, contemplate extension of Delmar avenue line through the tract by a northern detour.

The report that the levee did not break until after the water had begun flowing over the top for a quarter of a mile, when 10,000 yards of earth gave away near the Western Cartridge Works, causing the flood. The commissioners will advise the building of the levee two feet higher and estimate that the cost of repairs will be $2000.

How Girl Ruler's Grand Duchy Was Overridden by Germany When War Began, Despite Protest

First Detailed Account of the Invasion of Luxemburg

GRAND DUCHESS MARIE ADELAIDE OF LUXEMBURG.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

PARIS, Aug. 10.—A lively interest has been awakened in France recently over the fate of the neighboring little Grand Duchy of Luxemburg, through whose territory the Germans fell upon the French stronghold of Longwy. Part of the interest is due to the fact that it is through the acquiescence and with the assistance of France that Switzerland is today providing food for the population of the Grand Duchy, pending the gathering of the harvest; and part to the fact that, for the first time some of the details of the violation by Germany of the neutrality of the tiny state are coming to light.

Le Temps of Paris has reproduced from the Nieuwe Rotterdamsche Courant the text of a proclamation, printed in Coblenz, Germany, and brought with the invading Prussian troops to be posted up in the Grand Duchy as a justification of the military occupation by Germany of a state whose neutrality Germany had guaranteed.

The French, and even the Dutch papers, however, have been unable to recount more than a small part of the story of what took place in Luxemburg in the first days of last August. The German censorship on everything emanating from the Grand Duchy has proved to be the strictest. Much that has come out of Luxemburg during the last year has consequently borne the stamp of doubtful authorship.

From official and semi-official sources the Associated Press has been able to secure an authentic account of the Prussian occupation of the little Grand Duchy, as well as of certain well substantiated details of much that followed.

German Reply Takes Form of Action.

On Aug. 1, 1914, when the war cloud was lowering over Europe, Minister of State Paul Eyschen, President of the Government of the Grand Duchy of Luxemburg, who, since the establishment of the independence of the country has been virtually its first minister and real ruler, asked both Germany and France, officially, if, in the event of hostilities between the two countries, the neutrality of the Grand Duchy of Luxemburg would be respected. Before any reply could be received from France the reply of Germany took the form of action. The same day—Saturday, Aug. 1—Alphonse Munchen, Mayor of the city of Luxemburg, issued a proclamation to the population of the capital announcing that the neutrality of the Grand Duchy had been violated by Germany, through the occupation of the railway station of Trois Vierges by Prussian troops, and calling upon the people of Luxemburg to remain calm.

The incident of the apprehension of the 20-year-old Grand Duchess, Marie Adelheid, by the Germans, and her removal from Colmar-Berg to the Grand Ducal palace at Luxemburg, where she was kept under guard, already has been published.

Events moved with extraordinary rapidity throughout the Grand Duchy on Sunday, Aug. 2. At 5 o'clock that morning German troops had already entered Luxemburg and were moving rapidly across to attack France, whose mobilization had only been ordered at midnight. First, there were scouts on motor cycles and bicycles. Hard upon these came three motors loaded with officers and soldiers and then followed last five more motors which traversed the little Grand Duchy at a mad speed, from Treves towards Longwy. Before 10 o'clock in the morning three military trains had passed through the Grand Duchy into France and 30,000 German troops were already on the march across neutral soil.

But Premier Eyschen had given his whole life to making and keeping the freedom of Luxemburg and he did not surrender easily. Roused out of bed at daybreak by the news of the first incursion of German troops, he telephoned the German Minister to the Grand Duchy his protest and then put it into writing.

Writes to Minister.

"I have just advised Your Excellency," he wrote Minister von Buch, "by telephone of the appearance on Grand Ducal territory of German officers and soldiers. I learn that a train transporting troops is even now on its way to Luxemburg and ahat a great number of autos have passed through Wasserbillig to Luxemburg. The Grand Ducal Government energetically protests against this flagrant violation of the neutrality of the country, while awaiting subsequent developments. I beg you to transmit this protest without delay to the Government of the Empire."

But he did not wait for the German Minister to transmit the protest. He sent a telegram of his own to Imperial Foreign Minister von Jagow, and the Grand Duchess herself sent one to her cousin, the German Emperor. At the same time he sent Maj. van Dyck of the Luxemburg army of 150 soldiers, with a protest to be delivered to the commander of the invading troops. But Maj. van Dyck had no luck. He spent all day missing the advancing Prussians, and it was Lieut. Wilhelmy, charged with a similar mission, who succeeded in registering a formal protest with the commandant of the German troops who had taken possession of the railway station of the city of Luxemburg, and Lieut. Franck, under like orders, who presented in person Minister Eyschen's protest to Maj. von Baerensprung, commanding the German corps of occupation.

It was toward evening that Minister Eyschen received an answer to his telegram to Herr von Jagow—indeed he received two, one from the German Foreign Minister and the other from the Chancellor of the German Empire. The little Grand Duchess had her reply from her imperial cousin on Aug. 8. All were in the same tenor. Von Jagow's message said: "The Imperial Government guarantees Luxemburg full compensation for any damage done by us. * * * We have reliable information, according to which French forces are in march on Luxemburg." To this, Minister Eyschen replied by telegraph: "There is not one single French soldier on Luxemburg territory nor any sign whatsoever of any threatening of Luxemburg's neutrality from the French side. On the contrary, on Aug. 1 the rails of the railroad on French territory near Mont St. Martin-Longwy were torn up."

In spite of this assurance and in spite of the fact that hours since German scouts had already penetrated through Luxemburg into France and knew that no French attack upon Luxemburg had been or was being planned, the troops occupying the city of Luxemburg proposed to post a proclamation, dated Aug. 2, 1914, which had been printed in Coblenz and brought with them on their coming to the Grand Duchy, giving as the reason for the military occupation of that neutral State that France had already violated the neutrality of the Grand Duchy. Minister Eyschen obtained a copy of this document and read it to the Chamber of Deputies of the Grand Duchy. Its text follows:

"Owing to the failure of France to respect the neutrality of Luxemburg, her warlike acts—established beyond any doubt—directed against German troops from the very territory of Luxemburg, have forced his majesty, under the bitter compulsion of iron necessity, to order that German troops, the Eighth Army Corps of the First Line, also to march into Luxemburg." This document was signed simply: "Commanding General of the VIII Army Corps."

Notice Was Modified.

Minister Eyschen protested against this proclamation with the utmost vigor to the commanding officer of the Prussian troops in occupation, and it was then abandoned for one which read: "His majesty, moved by unavoidable necessity and induced to the action by the disregard of neutrality on the part of France, has ordered the marching of troops into Luxemburg." This second document was signed "Tulff von Tscheppe und Weidenbach, Commanding General of the Prussian VII Army Corps."

Against this, also, Minister Eyschen protested and telegraphed his protest to Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg. The reply he received was that no hostilities were directed against the Grand Duchy and that the local laws of the Grand Duchy would continue to prevail. Constrained to accept this situation, Minister Eyschen asked assurances to the same effect from the German commander and from the German Minister. Both gave them.

The following day, however, after this agreement had been reached—that Luxemburg should be free to administer her own affairs—the German dictation began.

The first step was to demand of Luxemburg's Minister of State, already struggling with the problem of feeding his people, the immediate expulsion of the French Minister to Luxemburg from the soil of the Grand Duchy. When the demand was made, Eyschen, pointing out that France was not at war with the Grand Duchy, asked the German Minister to put his request in writing. Herr von Buch did so.

"I have the honor," he wrote Eyschen, "in conformance with the instructions of his excellency, Gen. von Fuchs, to beg you to invite the French Minister, Mr. Mollard, to quit Luxemburg as soon as possible and to go to France; otherwise the German military authorities will be faced with the painful necessity of placing Mr. Mollard under the surveillance of a military guard and in extremity, of proceeding to his arrest." The French Minister made his own way, with neither escort nor safe conduct, through the German lines. His last official act was to beg the Premier of the Grand Duchy to care for the French citizens who might be remaining.

The German Chancellor had explained that Germany desired only to administer her state railway through the Grand Duchy. But the Prime Minister of Luxemburg was forced to protest that the seizure and occupation of the postoffice, the public telephone, the telegraph and the Government building were not essential to the administration of the railway. The night of Aug. 3, German sentinels stationed in the Place de la Constitution of the city of Luxemburg thought they saw a French aeroplane over the city, and began firing at random.

On Aug. 3 the Twenty-ninth Infantry, the 161st regiment, armed with machine guns, and the Forty-fourth artillery, fell to hacking down trees, digging entrenchments and driving the inhabitants from their homes in the district around Merl. Minister Eyschen set forth these infractions of previous assurances to the Parliament of Luxemburg at its special meeting on Aug. 4. The Grand Duchess was unable to attend her Parliament, not being permitted to leave her palace. But the German military authorities suggested to her that an isolated residence in the country like Colmar-Berg was no place for her younger sisters and advised her to send for them.

"Why should they not be safe at Colmar-Berg?" the Grand Duchess asked. "They have nothing to fear from my people. It is not fitting that my family give the signal for flight to my distracted people." And they remained.

On Aug. 4 a Luxemburger, J. Theisen, was arrested by the German military authorities for approaching the German lines. Minister Eyschen was at great pains to save his compatriot from being shot out of hand as a spy. This arrest was followed by others.

"Surely," said Minister Eyschen in protest, 'these arrests are not in keeping with the assurances I have been given by his imperial majesty that the civil laws of the Grand Duchy will be respected."

Citizens Arrested.

Gen. Tulff von Tscheppe und Weidenbach on Aug. 9 demanded and was accorded audience with the Grand Duchess. He repeated the assurance already given that the liberties of the Luxemburgers would be carefully conserved. Immediately after the interview he undertook to censor the news published in the journals of the Grand Duchy. Arrests of civilians charged with "approaching German military works" continued, and those arrested were shipped into Germany.

The entire public telephone service of the Grand Duchy was suspended by the German military authorities on Aug. 11 with the exception of the service in the city of Luxemburg proper. Two days later, Gen. von Schenk wrote Minister Eyschen demanding the exercise of rigid censorship of all newspapers in Grand Ducal territory. On the fourteenth, the "Independence Luxembourgeoise," the leading daily of Luxemburg, voluntarily suspended publication after printing a bitter announcement that it was impossible to give the news under the restrictions made by the invading military authorities.

Meanwhile the people of the Grand Duchy feared that they were to be left to starve. "I told the superior officer to whom I first spoke,' said Minister Eyschen to the Chamber of Deputies, in giving his official account of what had passed, at the extraordinary meeting on Aug. 4, "that Luxemburg did not possess sufficient victuals to feed so many troops; that we were accustomed to buy products in bulk from Antwerp, a port which we are, so to speak, the 'Hinterland'; that this port had been closed to us and that I had addressed Belgium requesting that other ports be opened to us, and that this was refused. You know that the countries which surround us have closed their frontiers against any exportation to the Grand Duchy. I have applied to right and left for an exception in favor of Luxemburg, but I have not succeeded."

Bread Allowance Cut to 4 Ounces.

Cut off, wholly surrounded by German troops and subject to their military jurisdiction, the history of Luxemburg since that day is declared to have been an accumulation of encroachments and sacrifices which the Luxemburgers regard as tyrannies. Today there are more than 4000 Luxemburgers serving as volunteers in the French army. In the spring the food supply failed. The Government took what little was left and put the population on bread cards, each person being entitled to seven ounces of bread daily. Slowly that amount was reduced until in April the people were living on four ounces of bread a day. With the arrival of help from Switzerland this was raised again to a shade over six ounces of bread a day, where it now stands.

Today the sentiment in the Grand Duchy would appear to be that expressed by the Grand Duchess to her Parliament, on Nov. 10, when she said: "The neutrality of the Grand Duchy has been violated. I and my Government hastened to protest against this act. The facts were promptly brought to the attention of the Powers signatory of the Treaty of London of 1867. (Prussia, Austria, France, Great Britain, Russia, Italy and The Netherlands and Belgium.) The Chamber of Deputies has given its approbation of our conduct. Our rights, therefore, remain intact, albeit they have been unrecognized."

WARRENTON, Mo., Aug. 19.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Some months ago, in a Sunday edition, you published in conspicuous form a most astonishing article relative to Luxemburg by one Retta Melmburg. In this article the people of Luxemburg were portrayed as being subjected to brutal treatment on the part of the Germans. According to this woman a reign of terror prevails in the little country, and the Grand Duchess is a closely guarded prisoner. The article was not based on hear-say, but purported to set forth the personal experiences of the author, who claimed as former teacher of the Grand Duchess to have interviewed the latter.

The article bore evidence of fraud at first hand because of the general melodramatic tone in which it was composed and the serious geographic misstatements which could not have been made by one acquainted with the country. Previous to this I had heard expressed from a citizen of Luxemburg, arrived in this country since the war began, an appreciation of German warfare, which would have been impossible if the article had been true.

According to the Germania of Aug. 17, this article reached the "Obermosel Zeitung," the leading newspaper of the Grand Duchy. This Luxemburg journal has issued the following statement: "Any word which we might have to say about this shameless invention would detract from its astonishing aftereffect. But those are to be pitied who have served up to them lies like these by the newspapers."

As you circulated this article, I trust that, in the interests of truth, you will publish this statement from a competent source.

POLICE FORCE IS ARRESTED, THREATENED FIGHT AEVRTED

Brooklyn, Ill., Policemen, Acquitted of Murder, Meet Resistance When They Patrol Old Beats.

A threatened fight between rival police forces of the negro town of Brooklyn, Ill., was stopped yesterday afternoon, when a Deputy Sheriff arrested the two members of one of the forces and took them to Belleville on charges arising from the killing of Louis Perryman.

Perryman and Robert Jackson were killed in a political fight in Brooklyn May 7 last, and the Mayor, James Thomas, the two policemen, James Shaw and Oscar Bleeson, and six others, mostly town officials, were arrested. A few days ago the Mayor and the other six were convicted of the murder of Shaw and were sentenced to the Chester penitentiary, the Mayor for 14 years. The two policemen were acquitted.

Shaw and Bleeson returned to Brooklyn, and yesterday afternoon they put on their police stars, armed themselves and started out to patrol their former beats. The policemen who have acted in their absence refused to recognize them, and adherents of both sides gathered around. A riot seemed likely, when the Deputy Sheriff arrived with warrants for Shaw and Bleeson. He disarmed them, removed their stars, and the crowd dispersed as he started away with them.

GERMAN PAPERS EXPECT POLAND TO BE ANNEXED

Press Attaches Particular Importance to Remarks of Von Bethmann-Hollweg.

"WAR'S PURPOSE SHOWN"

Poles Would Be Freed From Russian Yoke and Made Independent or Nearly So.

By Associated Press.

BERLIN, via London, Aug. 21.—German newspapers with few exceptions, comment exhaustively on the speech in the Reichstag of the Imperial Chancellor, Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, attaching particular importance to his remarks concerning Poland. The general opinion set forth in the press is that the Government contemplates annexation of Russian Poland, which meets with almost universal approval.

Editorial comment, although dealing frankly with this subject, is restricted to some extent by the prohibition of the discussion of annexation—a prohibition promulgated by the Chancellor himself and, in the opinion of some newspapers, overstepped by him.

The Taegeliche Rundschau says that "Poland will be freed finally from the Russian yoke and guaranteed a more fortunate future." The Poles, this newspaper says, will be independent "or nearly so."

The Taegliche Rundschau ventures to become critical, however, and questions whether an independent Poland, under German sovereignty, would not be a menace to Germany, and whether the Chancellor, in bringing up the discussion of annexation, has not retarded the conclusion of peace by bringing home to Russia realization that its richest industrial province may be lost.

To Be Freed of Russia.

The Kreuz Zeitung asserts the Chancellor's speech was not sufficiently definite, though holding out hopes which may have the most important consequences.

The Nachrichten of Dresden draws the conclusion from the Chancellor's speech that the Government does not intend to permit Poland again to be under Russian control.

The Tageblatt of Leipsic says: "The world now knows how we became involved in this war and we have learned for the first time whither we are headed. The Chancellor for the first time has lifted the veil concealing the purpose of the war and has indicated distinctly and manfully what is to be the reward of the efforts of ourselves and our allies—freedom of the seas to the west and the weakening of Russia to the east. The Chancellor's words, 'Courland freed,' will be greeted joyfully by hundreds of thousands."

The Nachrichten of Leipsic expresses the belief that the military achievements of Germany thus far are not sufficient to warrant the Chancellor's utterances, but approves the revelations of the Government's intention.

Shows German Attitude.

The Germania of Berlin says the Chancellor's remarks show that the attitude of Germany toward Poland is friendly, but indicates an alteration of Prussian policies.

The Tageblatt of Berlin says: "A certain goal is clearly to be seen in the Chancellor's words. A new Europe, a new order of things, must result, which will make impossible any encircling of Germany, any breaking of her circuit in the future. The basis, therefore, is, in the Chancellor's opinion, the extension and strengthening of the German empire. In this purpose all Germans will agree with him. The means to its attainment can be discussed only when the proper time arrives. The more effective our armies in Poland are the sooner that time will arrive."

Though slight differences of opinion appear in the press as to the wisdom of the Chancellor's frankness in discussing Poland, such criticisms are virtually buried in an avalanche of praise of his straightforwardness and honesty.

BETHMANN-HOLLWEG SAID TO HAVE TERMED PLAN FOR ANNEXATION "MADNESS"

Seizure of Belgium and Other Territory Opposed by Powerful German Interests Who Also Send Memorial to Chancellor.

(Copyright, 1915, by Press Pub. Co.)

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 21.—"An epitome of madness."

That is what Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg is reported to have exclaimed when the memorial reached him from the six most powerful, influential and centralized of the great economic organizations in Germany, demanding a general policy of annexation for conquered provinces as a basis of peace.

These demands upon the Chancellor and the Government include no premature peace, no easy-going peace, no peace that doesn't involve the full political exploitation of the final military successes. The prize of victory must be commensurate with the sacrifices, the blood of hundreds of thousands.

Their terms are, briefly:

That Belgium be annexed in all but name; its military, customs, coinage, finance, postoffice, railways, waterways be Germanized; all big economic enterprises to be placed under German direction; cntrol of the Belgian seapors; annexation of the French coast as far as the Somme, as an outlet to the Atlantic and a strategic necessity against attack from England; annexation of the Briey ore region and the coal regions of the departments Du Nord and Pas de Calais; Mt. Verdun, Belfort and the western slope of the Vosges must be added to Germany for strategic reasons; that the safety of East Prussia from Russia demands the annexation of the adjacent Russian territory; that coal is one effective means of political influence.

"An epitome of madness," the Chancellor is said to have characterized the sweeping demands of this Denkschrift or merorial, to which the Ded Brueck-Dernburg-Wolf memorial is a protest and counter-memorial to the Government.

Light on Trend of Thought.

I especially state that I do not give the Chancellor's alleged exclamation as fact, although I have it on what has hitherto been good authority, but I give it for what it may be worth in throwing light upon the trend of thought in certain circles in Germany opposed by others.

Certainly, Von Bethmann-Hollweg has no reason to be ashamed of the exclamation if he made it. The memorial represents the views, and is signed on behalf of the Bund der Landwirte, or league of landed proprietors; the Deutscher Bauernverein, or German farmers' league; the Westfaelischer Bauernverein, or Wesphalian Farmers' Association; the Central Verband Deutscher Industrieller, or Central Association of German Industrialists; Bund der Industriellen, or League of Industrialists, and the Reichsdeutscher Mittelstandverband, or Association of the Middle Classes of the German Empire.

These organizations not only represent the politically powerful reactionary agrarians or junkers, but also the highly centralized influences of the mighty industrial concerns, including at least a portion, if not all, of the Krupp interests.

They include elements which long have been antagonistic to Von Bethmann-Hollweg and repeatedly have launched attacks against him to bring about his fall on the ground that he was "too weak to make a strong peace." The Kaiser, however, has resisted all influences and remained loyal to him.

Against these drastic proposals the "Bund Neuesvaterland" has lodged with the Chancellor a protest couched in emphatic terms. It is the strongest petition yet filed in the very warm discussion under way.

Summary of Protest.

Summarized, this latest protest runs: The idea that permanent peace in Europe can be assured only through one or the other side being so destroyed economically and militarily weakened as to make war impossible for years is madness; that history proves it is a false theory; that the idea cannot be carried out; that if it could be, such a relentless and merciless victor would only arouse the entire world and ultimately be crushed by it; that for Germany to fight for such a goal is the grossest madness; that to propagate this mad idea is dangerous and will retard and make more difficult the coming of peace; that the annexation of Belgium would be an outrage upon a free and abused country innocent of its fate; that it would be regarded merely as the satisfaction of a lust of power paid for by the sacrifice of priceless blood, and invite certain future disaster for Germany by isolating it completely from the rest of the world.

The Bund Neues Vaterland is an organization along the lines of the London Union for Democratic Control, engaged in an educative campaign in Germany for peace, international understanding on reasonable lines and the idea that both sides in this war are honorable adversaries. Kurt von Tepper Laski, a former army officer, well known in world sports, is chairman, and associated with him are many intellectuals. In his race horse training his motto has been, "Without spur or whip," and he declares the same motto should apply to the political culture of a free people.

Many Notables Interested.

Many ex-diplomats, professors and men of science, including Count von Arco, the Marconi of Germany, are taking an active interest in the organization, the contention of which is that if Germany would announce the evacuation of Belgium the most influential circles in England would quickly interest themselves to bring the war to an end.

It is understood generally that Von Tepper Laski and others associated with him, who have many influential friends in England, have several times exchanged unofficial views with the latter on the possibility of peace. The answer has always been summed up in one word—Belgium.

The memorial asks the Chancellor to repudiated the annexation plans, and takes up in detail each demand made by the economic organizations. I am reliably informed the memorial has made a strong impression in high Government circles.

Protesting against the thought developed in the memorial of the economic organizations as "a terrible danger to a timely and honorable peace and to the safety of the empire after peace," demanding that the Chancellor put an end to such an agitation and make it plain the Government is not identified with it, the memorial characterizes the idea that a permanent peace may be secured only by destroying the economic and military power of Germany's enemies as "helyler wahnsinn" (cheap insanity).

"The impracticability of weakening or bleeding England and Russia to death is so plain that only madmen fight such an utterly unattainable goal," it declares and adds that it was somewhat blunt of the chancellor to say in the Reichstag, "We are going to fight until none of our enemies, nor any coalition of them, will ever dare again to risk combat."

Taking up the annexation demands: "Fifty thousand square kilometers, with 11,000,000 inhabitants; in the east; Courland and Poland west of the Vistula and Warthe—that is to say, 80,000 square kilometers more, with 5,000,00 inhabitants; all these people to be ruled by Germany without having a voice in their government.

"Sixteen million aliens, traditional enemies of the Teutons, are to be made compulsory subjects. The enormity of such an outrage is merely the logical conclusion which annexation would bring, and is the severest condemnation of the policy of annexation.

"No reasonable man would be able to believe such an outrage would be permanent. It would bring a fearful revenge upon the German people.

"Another demand made is that of the expropriation of all private property. It is difficult not to write satire of this startling proposal to make Germans the lords in annexed territory and the natives serfs.

"The vital defect of these annexation plans is that it is calculated to mold our adversaries together, whereas there now exists very important differences between them which it would be wise to utilize."

The memorial then refers to the Dardanelles question, Constantinople, the rivalry between England and Russia in Persia and Afghanistan and the delicate far Eastern question.

"Surely England would not have supported Russia unless it had believed itself, France and Belgium to be menaced," it says. "Now, instead of making the present coalition impossible in the future, we are to force England, France and Russia to remain allied against us in the future by annexing Belgium and the French coast opposite England, inflicting a wound which ages would not heal, and in the east by excising Russia, for which we shall never be forgiven, without particularly lessening Russia's military power."

Bismarck Opposed Annexation.

The memorial then calls attention to the fact that Germany's greatest statesman, Bismarck, was always bitterly opposed to annexation and only yielded to the imperative military reasons for annexing Alsace and Lorraine without taking advantage of the military situation at the time by also seizing Verdun and Belfort.

The memorial, which covers 21 printed pages, shows the handiwork of trained diplomats and statesmen. It refutes one by one every demand and argument raised by the capitalistic interests represented in the memorial of the economic organizations.

The memorial declares that the sentiment of America has been growing worse and worse, despite the efforts of the German-Americans and Irish; that America is wholly under the English agitation of the Anglo-American press; that the people of the annexed lands and Germany's enemies will see that the world is constantly filled with complaints, charges and indignation. It closes with suggestions for a positive peace program, in which the open door and the freedom of the seas are the keynote.

"In an open fight for these two goals and aims of this war we would win much sympathy, and sympathies have a real meaning and importance. That we could use them during the war, and even more so afterward, in peace, even the representatives of the economic organizations will not dispute."

BAZAR PLANS PROGRESSING

Many Societies Active in German Austrian Relief Ecentertainment.

Preparations for the St. Louis War Relief Bazar to be conducted in the Coliseum the last week of October for the benefit of the widows and orphans of the German-Austrian armies, went forward steadily last week. Virtually all the societies with German and Austrian membership active in St. Louis and vicinity have signified their intention to take part in the affair. Singing, gymnastic and benevolant organizations will be represented on the various committees.

The Ladies' Committee is under the chairmanship of Mrs. Emil N. Tolkacz. Innumerable articles of domestic skill, sewing, embroidery, and the like have been finished for the booths. The Finance and Accounting Committee of which August H. Hoffmann is chairman reports that the fund to cover the vases and bric-a-brac.

initial expenses of fitting up the Coliseum, including a heavy outlay for a splendid decorative effect, is growing steadily. The Donations Committee, A. H. Homeyer, chairman, has received many costly articles, donated by St. Louis firms, including oil paintings.

Under the supervision of President Frederick Widman, the general scheme of decoration of the Coliseum and the booths is rapidly proceeding. Chairman Emil Frei of the Booths and Decorations Committee is proceeding upon a plan for the hundreds of booths, concert rooms, theaters, assembly apartments and the like to be erected on the main floor of the Coliseum.

The Ladies' Auxiliary is constituted as follows: Mrs. Adolphus Busch, honorary chairman; Mrs. Emil N. Tolkacz, chairman; Mrs. George W. Bock, and Mrs. Henry Schwarz, vice chairman; Mrs. Carl Barck, treasurer; Miss Elyse Crecelius, secretary; Mrs. Leo Osthaus, assistant secretary.

CELEBRATE GOLDEN WEDDING

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Franz Mayer Attend Mass in Honor of Event.

Mr. and Mrs. Franz Mayer of 800 South High street, Belleville, celebrated last Thursday their golden wedding anniversary. Several hundred persons attended a mass in the St. Peters' Cathedral, in honor of the event. The couple, however, was unable to attend, owing to illness of both.

Mrs. Mayer will be 71 years old on Christmas day. Her husband will be 78 on New Year's day. Although their families were close friends in Germany, Mr. and Mrs. Mayer did not meet until they came to Belleville, about 60 years ago. Their surnames were the same. Their daughter, Miss Mary Mayer, married Ferdinand Mayer, who was not related to her.

NEWS AND FEATURES OF THE

POULTRY WORLD

HEAVY WASTE IN DISCARDING HENS AFTER ONE YEAR

Experiments Tend to Upset Theory That Best Egg Production Occurs During That Period.

There is a great deal that is not definitely known about the poultry business. This applies to some of the simplest features of this industry. Experiments have been made along many lines and some essential principles established, but there are some questions which ought to be of interest to all poultry raisers about which there is doubt and misinformation.

For instance, I have heard it said many times that the first year of a hen's life is the most valuable as an egg producer. It is the practice of many poultry raisers who make a specialty of eggs to keep no females beyond the first year, or, if any are kept, it is because they are supposed to be valuable as breeders, it being generally believed that a bird is at its best for breeding purposes when 2 years old. It probably is true that a hen is more valuable as a breeder when she is 2 or more years of age. As to the egg-production theory, it should be remembered that the pullet does not lay at all until she is from 4 to 8 or 9 months old, depending upon the breed and strain, conditions under which she is kept, etc. While she is, no doubt, from the time she begins to lay until she is about a year old, at the very best egg-producing period, yet it is not true that a pullet will lay more eggs during the first year of her life than any subsequent year.

Not much experimentation has been done in this direction. The Utah Experiment Station has done some, but it is not yet conclusive, although it tends to upset the idea that it is best to cast aside a layer when she is approximately 1 year old. While I have not kept exact tab, it is my belief that the second year of a hen's life is most valuable, not merely as a breeder, but also as a layer. In other words, I incline to the belief that if a hen has established her value as a breeder, if she is hardy, if she is the type you want, if she has given proof of good laying equity, it will pay to keep her ordinarily until she is 3 years old at least.

There is a great deal of waste about the poultry business, and I am inclined to think one enormous source of it is the fact that millions of hens which should be kept for egg production are sacrificed just at a time when they are approaching their greatest usefulness. Many a hen is sold for 50 cents or less during the summer that would be worth $1 or $2 to the owner if she were kept for another year.

Big Poultry Show for St. Louis Fair.

The Poultry Exhibit of the St. Louis Agricultural Fair at Maxwelton Park, Oct. 4 to 9, inclusive, will be one of the largest poultry displays ever held in St. Louis.

It will be under the management of Henry Steinmesch, and every breed recognized by the American standard will be eligible for competition. There will be 280 classes. Great interest is being shown among poultry breeders in the noted English Red Sussex. Judge Graves of Jefferson City, was the first in Missouri to import the Red Sussex. These prize birds were shown last November at the State Poultry Show.

The competition at the St. Louis Fair is open to the world and it is expected that there will be between 3000 and 4000 entries. The display will include ducks, geese and turkeys. The early showing at the St. Louis Agricultural Fair gives the breeders the opportunity of getting the opinion of judges for the Panama Exposition Poultry Show, which will open in November. The coops will be furnished by the Fair Association, and uniform arrangements will mark the show.

Dry-Picking Not a Difficult Task

Some markets demand dry-picked fowls exclusively or else pay a premium for them as against those scalded before picking. Dry picking is not as difficult as it may seem. Plucking should begin as soon as the bird has been killed and the carcass is quiet. It is a good plan to have a basin of water handy in which the picker may moisten his hands when needed.

The large feathers should be pulled first, then remove those from the portions of the body where the skin will tear most easily—the breast, base of wings and the neck and legs. The feathers of he back will come off easily. If picked at a season when pin feathers are absent, the work is much more easily done. Stubs of feathers that remain may be readily removed by using a knife. Grasp the end between the thumb and knife blade and they will come out easily.

Feathers that have been dry-picked are useful for a variety of purposes. When picking the fowls the soft and large quill feathers should be kept separate, spread on a dry floor away from dust and left to cure. Feathers from white birds will bring the highest prices, but those of other colors are just as good. If not sold they may be used at home to make pillows or feather beds. In the large poultry-killing establishments the feathers usually bring enough to pay for the killing and picking of the birds.

Poultry Problems Solved.

Crowless Rooster.

I have a Rhode Island Red rooster 18 months old that seems to have lost his power to crow. He breathes with his mouth open most of the time and the last two weeks blood has passed from him daily. He has a fairly good appetite. Please advise me what the trouble is and remedy for same.—C. L. C., Memphis, Tenn.

The facts geven in your inquiry are too meager to make a definite reply possible. Our guess would be that there is some obstruction in his throat, that has lodged there in an attempt to swallow it. The fact that he has a good appetite seems to indicate that something of this sort is the trouble and that it is not a disease or he would not have much of a desire to eat. Would examine his throat closely and if any foreign object is found, try to remove it. Making a bird swallow some olive oil or melted lard will sometimes help to loosen an obstruction of this kind.

Balanced Ration.

Will you please give me the analysis of the following: Cracked corn, corn meal, cottonseed meal, oats, oat meal, wheat bran, middlings, wheat, wheat screenings, meat scraps, meat meal, green bone, skimmilk and potatoes.

In determining a balanced ration for growing poultry, do you take into consideration the protein, carbohydrates and fats, only, or are the other elements considered also? Is a ration 1:4:5 to 1:4:7 about the proper balance?—J. A. M., Oklahoma City.

The following table, showing composition of the above foods in protein, carbohydrates and fat are taken from Henry's "Feeds and Feeding": The figures indicate the number of pounds of each constituent in 100 pounds of the whole material:

	Crude Protein.	Carbo-hydrates.	Fat.
Cracked corn or meal	6.7	64.8	3.5
Cotton-seed meal	37.6	21.4	9.6
Oats	10.7	50.3	3.8
Oat meal	11.9	65.1	6.7
Wheat bran	11.9	42.0	2.5
Middlings	13.0	45.7	4.5
Wheat	8.8	67.5	1.5
Wheat screenings	9.6	48.2	1.9
Meat scraps	66.2	...	13.4
Meat and bone meal	36.7	5.5	10.6
Skim milk	2.9	5.3	.3
Potatoes	1.1	15.7	.1

Ordinarily, with these common feeds, only the three constituents given are considered in making a poultry ration and so far as has been determined the ratio you mention is believed to be about properly balanced. As a matter of fact very little attention is given to analysis of foods by poultry raisers as a whole, very much less than is the case with the meat animals of the farm. Even many of the most successful poultrymen concern themselves very little about scientifically balanced rations. Perhaps this is due to the fact that less authoritative experimental work has been done in poultry feeding than in the case of other stock and there is less definite and dependable data available.

Growing Ration.

Kindly name a good growing ration for little chickens. I have a hen that has pale comb and wattles. Can you tell me what ails her and what to feed her?—C. H. L., St. Louis, Mo.

There are many different rations for feeding chicks and no one of them can be called the best. The grain feeds, of course, include wheat, corn, oats and millet, and all grain rations are made up from a combination of two or more of these in about equal proportions. They also are fed in various forms. Wheat, for instance, may be fed whole or cracked or as meal. Commercial chick feed is made up almost entirely of these grains in one form or another. Aside from the grain there should be meat food in some form as meat scraps, if the chicks do not have free range where they may find plenty of bugs and worms. Table scraps provide both grain and meat foods. Then there should be green feed in some form. If they are not out where they may pick off green vegetation for themselves, green food such as sprouted oats, lettuce, lawn clippings, etc., should be provided. Where milk is available, in any form, let them have plenty of it and there will be no need of providing meat food. As a general rule the grain such as corn, wheat and oats should be fed in the ground form the first week, then feed wheat and corn cracked for two or three weeks, after which wheat may be fed whole, but corn should still be cracked for several weeks longer.

Pale combs or wattles are symptoms of so many different diseases that we feel it is useless to make a guess as to what the trouble is with this particular hen. It would, however, be a safe precaution to isolate her from the rest of the flock while in this condition.

Caponizing Drakes.

Can you give me a brief outline of how to caponize young drakes? I am very successful with chickens, but never tried ducks.—H. O. H., Murphysboro, Ill.

We have never heard of drakes being caponized, although it undoubtedly is possible to do so. The secret of maximum profits in raising ducks for market is to get them into marketable condition and onto the market in the shortest time possible. In our opinion there is too little to be gained in caponizing drakes to make this profitable or practicable. Prices and weights of young ducks at 10 to 12 weeks are too good to make it profitable to keep and feed them as capons for several months longer.

Pigeons.

Please tell me how a male pigeon may be told from a female? How long should pigeons be kept penned up after you buy them before letting them fly around? Please tell me how to keep them, feed and mate them, also how to trap them. How can I tell what kind they are? Please describe a White King pigeon and how can I train them?—G. B., St. Louis, Mo.

Lack of space will prevent answering all the foregoing questions as it would require two or three columns to tell you how to distinguish all the different breeds and varieties from each other. It is very difficult to tell a male from a female when young. The cock has fuller cheeks, stouter beak and neck, and a bolder look than the hen. As soon as their sex begins to assert itself the cocks become conspicuous by their strutting habit. They will lower their wings and march about, keeping up a constant loud cooing, characteristic of all males. It would be difficult to advise you how long to pen up new birds before allowing them to fly out. When a boy the writer used to keep pigeons and when new ones were added to the flock they were penned up two or three weeks, then the tip feathers of one wing of each bird were clipped before turning them out. This kept them from flying very far and by the time the feathers were grown out they had become accustomed to their new surroundings and were content to stay. Much depends on whether or not other pigeons are kept in the neighborhood.

Young birds will be much more certain to stay, when moved, than old ones. If in the city it will be more satisfactory to keep pigeons penned. Any building that offers a good shelter, with a "fly" attached made of poultry wire, will answer the purpose for housing. Many pigeon raisers use the loft of a barn or other outbuilding for a pigeon coop but this is objectionable on account of the accumulation of filth. Practically all grains fed to other poultry make good feed for pigeons. These include corn, wheat, kaffir corn, Canada peas, millet, hemp seed and rice. The corn should be cracked before feeding. A constant supply of fresh water is very important.

Unless you wish to breed for certain color, markings or other points, just let the birds attend to their own mating. If you wish to breed toward a certain end pen all the desirable males and females in separate compartments of a single coop, with a slatted partition between. By watching the actions of the birds one can soon tell which ones have mated and these may be turned out to nest and hatch.

As to trapping pigeons, our experience is limited to operating a small trapdoor suspended by means of a cord passed over a spool and then down to the ground. When we wished to catch our own or strange pigeons the door over the opening to the loft would be dropped as soon as the birds had gone inside. We are not familiar with the White King pigeon by that name, nor with the methods of training them.

Loss From Careless Poultry Marketing

A look at the average crated live poultry that comes from the country to city commission houses cannot fail to impress one with the fact that the shippers lost a considerable percentage of profit by not having the birds in a more marketable condition. Many crates seem to be made up entirely of scrawny, lightweight birds, and for which the farmer will be paid accordingly. Very probably the birds were taken off the roosts at night without regard to their productiveness as layers or the advantage of fattening.

The observant poultryman will notice individual birds that are not up to his standard. When ready to dispose of them these are culled from the flock and confined by themselves. A ration of plenty of cornmeal and middlings, made mushy with skim milk, will put on weight at a rapid rate and in two or three weeks such birds will be in condition to attract the discriminating buyer. In and near every large cty there are persons who make a business of buying culls at from 20 to 35 cents apiece, and, after feeding them two weeks to a month, kill, dress and will sell them readily at $1 apiece. Many a farmer could easily follow this plan.

Another loss occurs in not killing and dressing the birds for market. Killing and dressing may be worked down by experience until the time and trouble to prepare a dozen birds is only a trifle. The approved method is to hang the birds up by the feet, within easy reach. A knife with a narrow, short and sharp blade is best to use. The bird is grasped by the head and a small cut is made in the roof of the mouth just at the right side of the point where the bones of the skull end. The birds should always be allowed to bleed well. Dry picking is to be preferred, as it leaves the carcass in better condition and more saleable than when scalded.

Good Whitewash for Poultry House

1. Sixty-two pounds (1 bushel) quicklime, slake with 12 gallons of hot water.
2. Twelve pounds rock salt, dissolve in six gallons of boiling water.
3. Six pounds Portland cement.

Pour 2 into 1 and then add 3.

Alum added to a lime whitewash prevents it rubbing off. An ounce to the gallon is sufficient. Flour paste answers the same purpose, but needs zinc sulphate as a preservative. Molasses renders the lime more soluble and causes it to penetrate the wood or plaster surface; a pint of molasses to five gallons of whitewash is sufficient.

Silicate of soda solution (about 35 degrees baume) in the proportion of 1 to 10 whitewash produces a fireproof cement.

A pound of cheap bar soap dissolved in a gallon of boiling water and added to about five gallons of thick whitewash will give it a gloss like oil paint.

Ugliness Not a Laying Guarantee

There has been a great deal of discussion about English Leghorns. They have made a good record in laying contests, but I don't believe that because she is ugly makes her a good layer, and if you buy some of these English Leghorn eggs, raise chicks and keep them under the same condition you keep your American Leghorns, in a generation or two they won't lay any better.

These Leghorns have laid well because some of the English breeders have been breeding for egg production primarily. I saw one of these imported cockerels in a poultry show. There was a big sign over the coop telling about his laying ancestry, etc. A woman standing nearby was greatly impressed and asked what he was worth. I said I thought 30c was about the right price. She was shocked, because expected me to name some figure like $50 or more.

I don't doubt that birds like this and some mongrel birds lay well. Crossbred hens sometimes make good records. But if you have a mongrel hen that is a good layer, you have a freak.

SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH'S REVIEW OF MARKET CONDITIONS

UNCERTAIN FOREIGN OUTLOOK PRECIPITATES WIDE DECLINE ON THE NEW YORK EXCHANGE

Bethlehem Steel and Other Stocks Lose 3 to 20 Points on the Week.

EXCHANGE MARKET WEAK

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted financial weekly review today, says:

"At a time of world war, anything is liable to happen to unsettle a stock market. A great battle, a naval victory or an "air raid" is likely to cause heavy selling with violent declines at remote centers.

"At the news that another great vessel had been sunk by a German submarine, with the possible destruction of American lives the markets of Thursday shivered and then broke violently, on fears that the already strained relations between the American and the German Governments would be severed. The tension was natural in view of the horrors of the disaster and the explicit warning set forth in the American note of July 21. But the real test did not come until Friday, when the details of the disaster were known and the speculative public had been given opportunity to put in their selling orders. The heavy liquidation witnessed did not cause as much disturbance as has often attended developments of less significance.

The whole affair will be investigated, and no action will be taken by this Government without consideration of all the circumstances relating to the destruction of the ship. It is too early yet to forecast the probable effect of this latest outrage on the high seas.

"The investigation will take a day or so, and in the meantime the markets are likely to display more or less nervousness. Until the excitement has subsided there will be little chance of floating in this market a large loan for the allies, on the basis of the terms discussed this week.

London Plans a Loan.

"The fact that London is to send over a deputation of bankers to discuss the plans, shows that the necessity of correcting the extraordinary situation in the foreign exchange market is fully recognized at the British capital. The situation presents many difficulties, and it may be that the flotation of a great loan in this country will be avoided. Such a loan could probably be placed here, however, if advantageous terms were offered, together with the pledge of high grade American securities as collateral.

"In his analysis of the reports of national banks, John Skelton Williams, Comptroller of the Currency, declares that the national banks, in conjunction with the Federal reserve banks, have an 'unemployed loaning capacity' sufficient to enable them if need be to carry at market prices the cotton crop, half if not all of the wheat and tobacco crops, and to finance in addition a thousand million dollars of exports of foodstuffs or manufactured products. The Comptroller adds that it is better for the banks to employ their surplus funds in making loans on staple commodities than to use them for the inflation of stock markets. As a basis for such loans, it is stated that the banks, on June 23 last, had much the largest actual reserves ever held at any one time in the history of the country.

The Bank's Position.

"This may be true, but there is no reason why the banks should tie up their surplus in carrying 'for our own people at market value,' cotton and other staple crops. There could be as much danger in supporting speculation in cotton, wheat or some other staple as in securities, provided the banks attempted to do it in defiance of business principles. The situation in the cotton belt a year ago, with the unique remedies which were proposed to hold cotton for better prices, in order that 'distressed cotton' might be kept off the market, showed how general was the demand for the lending institutions to assume the whole burden.

"Now the situation has changed, and the South is in a strong position financially. There will be no difficulty in financing the crop movement this year. The Federal Reserve Board, through the regulations governing 'trade acceptances,' and the rediscounting of double-name paper, has made it easy for member banks in the agricultural districts to obtain what assistance they need, in cases where the staple underlying the loan has been properly stored in approved warehouses. The situation, therefore, as regards caring for the demands of the harvesting season, is thoroughly provided for.

"Losses in stocks on the week ran from 3 to 20 points, the latter on Bethlehem Steel. Yesterday's market was weak."

LONDON HAS A PLAN TO HELP EXCHANGE RATES

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and the New York World.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—After the Arabic incident, the chief subject commanding attention is the fall in sterling bills at New York to a new and important discount. Means for remedying the situation are at hand, but the word procrastination best characterizes our conduct. It has done so since the war began, and has done so conspicuously in the past fortnight, in the matter of applying correctives to the upset sterling market in New York.

Money Market Is Cramped.

A nexplanation for the delay may be that the money market is so cramped by restrictions as to have lost its initiative, for, truly, the only real development of the past fortnight has been the bringing to a complete and united understanding of our treasury and banks, and probably also our allies, concerning a general financial policy.

This has been important, of course, but the chief fear now is that the remedy of shipping gold to New York may be applied too freely. Best quarters strongly advocate relief measures other than the gold remedy. Measures advocated, which I am unable to divulge, will be presented by influential deputation of practical bankers, who are about to leave to discuss the situation with your financial leaders.

These bankers, it is felt, should be given large powers on their mission, and it is believed that, in spite of hostile influences, a common understanding will be easily reached.

Sir Edward Holden has been chosen by the banks here as a desirable emissary to you. The idea of a deputation is advocated for a number of reasons, one of which is the belief that Wall Street is insufficiently supplied with information regarding financial conditions here, the usual free interchange of views having been prevented from the commencement of the war.

It is frankly recognized at this juncture, that ambitions to make America an increased monetary power are in New York's thoughts, and within limits it is felt in London that these ambitions must certainly be accomplished. Nevertheless, it is felt that men of the United States, with the biggest views, will realize that your greatest wealth and power lie in your productive capacity and in your power to supply Europe's requirements.

COTTON MARKET DOWN ON BRITISH CONTRABAND RULE

Week's Range of Values Is Off 13 to 15 Points—Trading Is Active.

The action of Great Britain in placing cotton on the list of contraband holds the attention of the entire cotton trade, and some apprehension is felt as to what will be the effect on the export movement. Whatever temporary effect may be felt and reflected in prices, ultimately the difficulty will right itself, and the "ultimately" in this case is not intended to mean the indefinite future.

Many cotton men believe that England is concerned not only in guarding her safety by the stoppage of cotton which might be used for explosives by her enemies, but also in laying the foundation for a huge monopoly of the cotton trade; by stopping the cotton and peddling it out to European manufacturers; by manipulating prices to the extent that other foreign countries would pay more for their cotton than would their British competitors for the textile trade of the world.

Fear Not Unfounded.

It is apparent that this fear is not unfounded. If one will read the letter by Sir Charles W. MaCara, which accompanies the copies of "Leading the World," a history of Lancashire's cotton industry. Whatever the intentions of the British Government may be, however, let it not be forgotten that Great Britain's allies will be under no such obligation as to allow Great Britain to monopolize the cotton trade.

As is well known to most cotton men, France has long had an import tax on cotton that touched any foreign port between the United States and one of her own ports, this is one method of overcoming such an intention, and an effective one. Then, too, both Germany and Austria will be back in the textile manufacturing business, with no great love for England. Turkey is a large user of cotton cloth, the climate and mode of dress forcing the use of cotton in preference to other cloth, and that country will likely trade with her old allies or with the United States. So much for conditions after the war is ended.

So far as the contraband decision is concerned with the movement of the present crop, should England and her allies refuse to satisfactorily and promptly reimburse American shippers for any cotton that is seized, then American shippers will be compelled to stop shipping. That seems to be more serious than it really is.

This same Lancashire industry and the people who are engaged in it nearly starved to death during the Civil War, and riots were frequent. England now is much concerned because she has had difficulty in keeping her workmen at their tasks, and is not likely to do anything that would foment internal trouble, and if she does anything to embarrass American shippers she must come for the cotton to our shores.

Cotton Must Be Paid For.

Under the present system of trading English cotton buyers have the same facilities as have American buyers—borrowing money from our banks and enjoying the same accommodations of all kinds, but when the cotton is shipped it must be paid for with English gold. Just now this country is in a very strong position financially, well able to care for all the cotton that we have or are likely to have when the next crop is marketed, and has in Washington an administration deeply concerned in the welfare of all our industries, and has in our present banking system the tool with which to work out reasonable methods of carrying cotton. Let not our producers of cotton be driven to sacrifice their labor by selling their cotton at ridiculously low prices in fear of no markets abroad.

England's credit is no higher than our own, and her need, and her allies' need for cotton is as great or greater than our need for her custom. England is not without her problem of supply, for all the talk of our need of greater consumption. The producer has corrected by a reduction in acreage the estimated overproduction during the present season of war stress. Circumstances have sent to this country the greatest supply of gold it has ever known. Providence has sent the most bountiful supply of foodstuffs.

Weather Map Is Favorable.

The weather during the past week has been more favorable for cotton. Rains have fallen in localities where needed. In Alabama and Mississippi, where the National Weather and Crop Bulletin says rain was needed, good rains have fallen. The Bulletin said:

"Good rains over much of the central and eastern portions of the belt arrested the deterioration due to adverse weather of several previous weeks, and the crop responded to the more favorable condition. Rain is still needed, however, in the greater part of Mississippi and in some portions of Alabama. To the westward of the Mississippi River good growing conditions prevailed in Louisiana, Oklahoma and Arkansas, but drouth continued over most of Texas until the close of the week, when it is probable that considerable rain occurred over the eastern and coast district, but on account of interrupted communication, the amounts and extent of rainfall are unknown."

Since this report, extremely heavy rains have fallen in portions of Arkansas, Mississippi and Tennessee, and the rivers are likely to rise unseasonably.

In the spot markets there has been a very comfortable feeling in regard to prices up to the last few days, when there has arisen on uneasy tone, due to the sinking of the Arabic. Since that time two other ships have been sunk, and the likelihood of complications with Germany and her allies are greater than before. Except for these matters the market in all likelihood would be holding steady. Sales are not large, but cotton is not a burden and stocks are in good hands. The cotton that has not come into sight this season is generally in Alabama and the Atlantic states, the other states holding very little cotton on the farms. The statistical position of cotton is strong when considered in connection with the financial condition, a necessary connection if an intelligent idea of conditions governing price is obtained.

The visible supply of American cotton is only 1,400,000 bales more than at the same time last year; the invisible supply is about 1,600,000 bales more than at the same time last year; a surplus above the normal of only 3,000,000 bales (East Indian and others) are less than at the same time last year.

The loan value of the stock of cotton in the United States today is but little greater than at the same time in a normal season, owing to the lower price this season, and the money in bankers' hands makes the carrying of this surplus an easy matter, so very little cotton is pressed for sale. Debts are not heavy against the growing crop, which has been made very economically. Prices are practically unchanged during the week in the principal markets. In the future markets prices lost 13 to 15 points in the week.

QUOTATIONS ON STEERS WEAKEN RATHER SHARPLY

RECEIPTS AT NATIONAL STOCKYARDS.

	Last week.	Prev. week.	Year. ago.
Cattle	24,060	20,963	30,921
Hogs	37,180	25,588	36,943
Sheep	11,608	16,153	16,740
H. & M.	4,089	4,079	659

Receipts of cattle last week were of fairly generous volume, although lighter than the same time last year. A large proportion of each day's run was beef steers, in fact, during the early portion of the week, fully three-fourths of the receipts were steers. A large offering of westerns and native Oklahoma steers swelled the aggregate. Quality was not very good, there having been very few good beeves and practically nothing strictly prime. The run early in the week was excessive, consequently, declines developed from which the market never recovered. The bulk of steers of all kinds closed around 10@15c lower, with heavies showing the largest decline. Good weight steers at $9.65 topped for the week.

A very light supply of butcher cattle was on sale all during the week just closed and with a good demand, the market was active each day. One of the chief sources of strength was the strong inquiry that came from butchers and outsiders. These two elements gave packers close competition. As a result the market was strong and prices on bulk of heifers 10@15c higher. No strictly good heifers were received.

Conditions which governed the heifer trade were also true of cows. A very light supply was received and all classes were wanted. Consequently the market was active each day and all kinds of cows, from canners up to best grades, were 10@15c higher. Bulls were also in light supply and with a good demand were firm at 15@25c advance.

Vealers Are Steady.

Vealers opened steady and continued on this basis throughout the week. All kinds of vealers were wanted and the market was strong. Week's top was $11.00.

Stockers and feeders found a strong demand throughout the week and supply was not sufficient. Demand was especially good for lightweight stockers. Bulk of cattle in this division were 10@15c higher.

Receipts in the Southern division were just of moderate volume, but notwithstanding this fact, the trade in steers was on a lower basis, due largely to the fact that order buyers were out of the market during the early stages of the week. At the middle of the week steers showed a 25@40c decline, but subsequent advances brought this loss down to about a flat quarter. No strictly good steers were offered. Twenty-three cars of Guatemala steers, the third consignment of them to come to market, brought $6.30.

Trade in mixed cattle from Southeastern territory was on a strong basis all week, and the majority of sales were at a 15@25c advance.

Each day there was but a moderate or a small suppy of hogs on sale, and yet the market did not show any improvement. It really was lower the first and middle of the week, and by hard work was gotten back the last of the week to about the same basis as the close of the previous week. The lightweights and butcher grades were best sellers all week. Heavy hogs were extra poor sellers.

The market, taken as a whole, was on a much higher basis than any of the other Western markets. The top ranged between $7.60 and $7.75 all week, so that the range was rather narrow. The bulk went at $7.35@$7.65. Packers were right good buyers, but they did not want any hogs except what they could use for their fresh meat trade, as they have all the cured meats they really want, also more lard than they can get rid of satisfactorily.

Best offerings under 190 lbs. found sale at $7.60@7.75, plain and medium weights went at $7.25@7.55, heavy hogs $6.25@6.50, and the poorer packers $6@6.25, some plain heavy hogs $6.25@6.50, and the poorrer grade of pigs and lights at $6.50@7.25, with the common kinds selling for less than $6.50. Grassy offerings were poor sellers all week, but the heavy hogs were the most unsatisfactory sale of any.

Sheep Receipts Are Light.

Only a small supply of sheep and lambs was received this week. At the opening of the week there was a right fair supply on sale and the market took a tumble, losing 50c on both sheep and lambs. All kinds of sheep showed the loss, but a part of this decline was regained later on the breeding ewes, but mutton sheep and lambs showed no improvement whatever.

On Monday the best lambs sold at $8.50, mut the last few days none have sold higher than $8.40 and most of the lambs went at $8.25@8.35, fair grades, $7.50@8.15, and the culls and common kinds in general at $6.25@7.25, with a few of the common little lambs going for $6 or less. Buyers sorted the lambs pretty closely as a rule.

Practically all of the mutton sheep went to the slaghterers at $5.50, while breeding ewes sold at $6.50@7.00, best stockers, $5.50@$6.00, plain stockers, $4.50@5.25, choppers, $4.00@4.50; canners, $2.50@3.50 and the bucks at $4.25@4.50, most of them at the latter price.

Receipts of horses last week were considered liberal, but none too heavy, in view of the fact that the demand was good for most all classes, except eastern chunks. Auction was farily strong on all southern types, but there was not much demand for eastern animals of any description. Princes in this department of the market ranged steady throughout the week.

War horses sold on the usual strong basis. All buyers were in the market except Belgians, and they were out loading, but are expected to begin on the usual basis Monday. Other foreign governments took large supplies, and no material change was noted in this trade.

Mules were slow sellers throughout the week. Buyers were in for extra good quality types of big mules and miners, and these kinds were practically the only ones that met with a good demand. Princes, however, were low and shippers are advised to get their material cheap as possible in the country in order to make money.

Selling pressure was heavy on wheat yesterday on the Merchants' Exchange, owing in the main to difficulties that were hampering export trade. The close was nervous, 2¼c to 2½c net lower, with September $1.02⅜ and December at $1.00⅝. Corn finished ⅝c to 1⅛c down; oats off ¼c to ⅜c.

Conditions resulting from the sinking of the boats by Germany and the demoralization of exchanges, appeared to have reduced to nearly the vanishing point all immediate chance of any important business in wheat. This fact, with signs of an augmented shipping movement to primary terminals, both in the Northwest and the Southwest, brought about a decided rush here to dispose of holdings. Meanwhile, the only buying worth mention was confined to shorts, who wished to even up for the week end.

Rains in Illinois and the Ohio Valley gave the wheat market a momentary show of strength at the outset, but otherwise conditions proved almost unanimously adverse to the bull.

As a matter of fact, a good many traders were disposed to regard further storm damage to the winter crop as being a factor on the bear side. Excessive moisture was said to be making the quality of winter wheat on the whole greatly inferior as compared with Manitobas, which were said to have been offered east at lower figures than could be met from Chicago.

Increased rural offerings had a depressing effect on corn. Unseasonable weather appeared temporarily to have lost influence as a prop for the market.

Oats could not withstand the declines in corn and wheat. Threshing delays were altogether lost sight of.

Situation Is Unusual.

Seldom if ever has there been a season like the present in wheat. Continued rains have delayed the winter wheat movement until the flush receipts from the crop must seek a market at the same time that spring wheat begins to move. In addition, this must come when export demands, as compared with last year, are a negative quantity and when foreigners instead of buying are said to be cancelling contracts for early shipment.

The extreme weakness in the market, however, may be traced directly to the uncertain diplomatic outlook between this country and Germany. The trade realizes that a severance of diplomatic relations with Germany would only complicate the position of getting American wheat abroad, and at a season when it seems absolutely necessary to make foreign shipments to sustain prices at the present level, especially as the American wheat harvest promises to exceed anything ever before raised in this country.

While rains in the Southwest were used as bullish ammunition on several days of the week, the perfect spring wheat outlook offset the former influence, because weather was such as not only to assure a record-breaking yield of spring wheat, but possibly the earliest harvest that the Northwest has ever known.

The break in the exchange market further unsettled grain prices. That England should permit her credit in pounds sterling to sink to the present level of 4.61 to 4.67, the range for the week, is hardly an inducement for exporters to contract for large shipments of wheat, especially as continued victories of the Germans have raised the question whether the allies could successfully float a large loan in the United States, as had been planned recently to adjust the exchange market.

That some plan must be adopted by England to adjust the situation is apparent, however, but the lack of initiative on the part of the British Government, in this as well as other important questions that have arisen since the war started, has had a bad effect in grain as well as financial circles, and until some definite plan is announced uncertainty as to the outlook is bound to prevail.

Foreign Crops Fair.

Broomhall's foreign crop summary said:

"United Kingdom—Crop prospects distinctly unfavorable; rain continues and delaying harvest, and there is much lodging.

"France—Wet weather attending has further affected the yield, which, according to our agents, will render the yield much under last year with the quality poor. Importation will be large. Reserves are light and new wheat harvest is moving slowly.

"Germany—Officials at Berlin still claim that harvest is excellent, both as to yield and quality.

"Russia—General harvest of both winter and spring crops is good. The Minister of Agriculture reports that supplies are abundant and available amount for export large.

"Rumania—Harvest is good, but lack of export is causing much trouble.

"India—Some rain has fallen in the Punjaub, but this was insufficient; elsewhere dry. Holders of wheat are very reserved and offering little even at the advance.

"Australia—Our agent at Sydney reports further beneficial rains and places the yield of wheat in the commonwealth at 148,000,000 bu, against 12,000,000 bu last year and 100,000,000 bu the previous year."

LACK OF EXPORTS IS A BEAR POINT ON WHEAT

CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—Wheat turned downward today after a hesitating start. The depressing outlook for the export trade seemed to be chiefly responsible for making prices decline. Rains in Illinois and the Ohio Valley had only a temporary bullish effect. Opening prices, which varied from ½c off to ⅝c up, with September at $1.04¼ to $1.04⅝ and December at $1.02¼ to $1.02⅝, were followed by a decided setback all around.

Corn fell in sympathy with wheat. Cool weather failed to uphold values. After opening at ¼@⅝c decline to a like advance, with Sept. 75⅞c to 76¼c, and Dec. 63⅞c to 64¼c, the market underwent a pronounced general sag.

Rains that hindered threshing caused firmness in oats. Lasting gains, however, were prevented by the weakness of other cereals.

Trading in provisions amounted to barely enough to establish quotations. Pork tended lower, but lard and ribs held steady.

Prospects of a substantial enlargement of wheat receipts in the Southwest resulted later in additional weakness. Furthermore, big threshing yields were reported in the spring crop belt. The close was nervous, 1⅝c to 2⅜@2¼c net lower, with Sept. at $1.02⅜ and Dec. at $1.00¼@1.00⅜.

Subsequently enlarged offerings of corn from the West brought about a further loss. The close was heavy at ⅛@⅝c to ¼@1c net decline, with Sept. at 74⅞c and Dec. 63½c.

GERMANS ADVISED FIRM IN U. S. TO DELAY WAR ORDER

New York World Prints Correspondence Regarding Railroad Supplies for Russia.

LEGAL ADVICE IS GIVEN

Company Told That Certain Shipments Would Violate German Penal Code.

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—The New York World today prints another copyrighted installment of the correspondence which Dr. Heinrich F. Albert, financial agent of the German Government here, declares to have been stolen from his office.

The publication of this matter began a week ago.

Letters to Bernstorff.

Today's article contains correspondence which the American branch of the Orenstein-Arthur Koppel Co., manufacturers of railroad supplies, whose main office is in Berlin, had with Germany's official representatives in the United States. Chief among the latter, figuring in the correspondence, are Count von Bernstorff, German Ambassador, and Dr. Stobbe, German consul in Philadelphia.

The correspondence shows that the Orenstein-Arthur Koppel Co., which has a large plant at Koppel, Pa., near Pittsburg, received an order from a Russian firm for 9000 tons of portable railroad track, with appurtenances. The American branch of the Orenstein-Koppel firm was under orders, from its central office in Berlin, not to fill orders from countries hostile to Germany, except with the express consent of the official representative of the German Government.

Therefore, the management of the American branch wrote, March 11 to Ambassador Bernstorff, through its New York lawyer, stating that the order was for material not covered by patent; that it could and would be sold to the Russians by others, if the firm should refuse the business; and suggesting further that the firm would be willing "to delay the order, if that would in any way be desirable."

The letter asks whether the filling of this order would be a violation of paragraph 89 of the penal code. This meant the German penal code, to which the heads of the corporation, living in Germany, would naturally be subject. Paragraph 89 prohibits German subjects from rendering assistance to a hostile Power during a war.

Ambassador Didn't Object.

Ambassador Bernstorff promptly replied that he would not object to the acceptance of the order, and that he felt sure that there was "no possibility of a conflict with the German laws, in respect to paragraph 89 of the penal code." He said Financial Agent Albert had talked with him of the matter.

At the same time, he inclosed a letter, which was not signed, but which the World says was in all probability written by Dr. Landsberger, the Ambassador's legal adviser. The writer said the penal code would be violated if the firm "intentionally renders assistance to a hostile Power." He advised, however, that the firm could help Germany by accepting the order and delaying its fulfilment. "In like manner," he wrote, "other German firms have proceeded successfully." He further suggested that the rails might be shipped through the Baltic Sea, and that the German authorities might be advised "seasonably" of the departure of the steamer.

In connection with this opinion, a statement as to the contents of paragraph 89 of the German penal code was inclosed. It provides that "any German who intentionally, during any war against the German Empire, renders assistance to a hostile power, or inflicts loss or damage upon the military forces of the German Empire, or upon those of any ally of theirs, shall be punished by imprisonment for not to exceed 10 years in the penitentiary or in a military fortress."

German Decree Quoted.

A decree "published last fall" is also quoted, by which "any person who knowingly, and contrary to any German embargo on exports, ships goods to a hostile country either directly or indirectly, will be punished by imprisonment for three years and a fine not exceeding 50,000 marks ($12,500), or either." This decree, it is said, applies "in so far as other and greater punishments are not provided in other penal statutes." This, it is stated, refers to paragraph 89, already quoted.

The writer of the opinion then promised to supply a certificate which the Orenstein firm could later use in its own defense, "for the improbable possibility that difficulties might later arise in Germany."

All this correspondence was in March. The World has no further correspondence on this matter until July 13. At that time, Erich Joseph, manager of the Orenstein-Arthur Koppel plant at Koppel, Pa., wrote to Dr. Stobbe, German Consul-General in Philadelphia.

Joseph wrote to Consul Stobbe that the Orenstein firm had in the previous few months delivered a number of orders for rails, ties and some cars for "hostile countries." These orders, he said, were to be used only for peaceful purposes, and did not violate the existing export embargo of Germany.

Mentions Russian Order.

He then mentioned the large Russian order for portable rails, and said that, because of the size of this order, he believed it was intended for military purposes, and advised the New York office against accepting it unless official permission could be obtained from the Embassy or the consulate. He then inclosed the Bernstorff correspondence. He stated that the Russian order had not yet been delivered.

He then asked whether it would be possible in future for the company to ship railway cars and wheels to hostile countries in so far as they were not intended for military purposes. He said he would be glad to furnish a list of the future orders received, "in order that you might in one case or another raise a protest against their fulfillment." He says the firm does not wish to violate "the letter or the spirit of the German law."

Consul Stobbe replied that in his opinion, it would be hazardous for the firm to ship locomotives, cars or wheels to Russia.

"All these transportation means," he said, "would lighten the transport of troops, ammunition and provisions for the Russian Government, and your firm would, within the meaning of paragraph 89 of the penal code, be rendering aid to the enemy thereby. The circumstances which you mentioned—(a) That Russia would secure the mentioned articles from another American firm in case they are not furnished by your firm; (b) that you will deliver the material free on board at New York and not know to what port the shipment will go; (c) that you are in a position to delay the delivery of the order to the prejudice of the hostile country ordering them—will in no measure relieve you from liability.

Suggests Refusing Order.

"Inasmuch as, according to your letter, you do not wish to violate either the letter or the spirit of the German law, nor the love for the Fatherland, I would respectfully suggest that you propose to your home office in Berlin that the orders in question were refused for the reasons mentioned."

Consul Stobbe forwarded this correspondence, July 16, to Ambassador Bernstorff, and the Ambassador, through Prince Hatzfeldt, chancellor of the embassy, referred it to Financial Agent Albert, "with a request for your kind consideration."

From this correspondence, the World makes the deduction, as stated as the beginning of its news articles, that, "In furtherance of its propaganda, already clearly established, the German Empire sought to substitute, in this country, the criminal laws of the Fatherland for those of the United States Government." It further speaks of the legal opinion obtained by Ambassador Bernstorff as being "an opinion as to the application of the German penal code in the United States."

The fact that the correspondence was referred by Bernstorff to Financial Agent Albert, the World says, "furnishes pretty clear proof that Albert was advised of all undertakings of the officials of the German Government in the United States."

World Shows Fac-Simile of $5000 Check Paid to Magazine.

NEW YORK, Aug. 22 (Sunday).—The World shows in fac simile today a check for $5000, signed by Count Johan von Bernstorff, German Ambassador, and payable to the Fair Play Printing and Publishing Co. It also shows a letter on German embassy note paper, written by the Ambassador to Marcus Braun, editor of Fair Play, praising that publication.

Braun, a native of Hungary, who has been known as a Republican politician, and later as a Progressive, and who was at one time connected with the United States immigration service, has for several months been publishing Fair Play, a pro-German monthly magazine.

In his letter, Ambassador Bernstorff says Fair Play has always lived up to his name, and "has always taken the American point of view." It has treated all belligerents justly, he says, and has been of service to the millions of foreign-born Americans, particularly those of German and Austro-Hungarian origin. He gives Braun permission to exhibit the letter, but asks that it be not published, "as this would be contrary to the instructions of my Government, which does not wish me to publicly advertise any reviews or newspapers."

ROOSEVELT GIVES OUT STATEMENT CALLING FOR DEEDS

Germany Will Care Nothing for Mere Severance of Diplomatic Relations, Colonel Says.

"I see suggested in the papers, that the German answer to our last note, that is, the sinking of the Arabic by a German submarine and the consequent murder of certain American citizens, will be adequately met by the administration dismissing Bernstorff and severing diplomatic relations with Germany. I earnestly hope the administration will not take this view, for to do so would be a fresh sacrifice of American honor and interest.

"The President's note to Germany in February last was an excellent note, if only it had been lived up to. But every subsequent note has represented nothing but weakness and timidity on our side; and the sinking of the Lusitania and of the Arabic, the attacks on the Gulflight and Falaba and all the similar incidents that have occurred represent the arrogant answers which this weakness has inspired. Germany will care nothing for the mere severance of diplomatic relations.

"The time for words on the part of this nation has long passed; and it is inconceivable to American citizens who claim to be inheriters of the traditions of Washington and Lincoln, that our governmental representatives shall not see that the time for deeds has come. What has just occurred is a fresh and lamentable proof of the unwisdom of our people in not having insisted upon the beginning of active military preparedness 13 months ago."

CARRANZA TO ASK FOR RECOGNITION, HIS MEN INDICATE

Replies to Appeals From Pan-American Peace Conference Received in Washington.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—Gen. Carranza's purpose to ask for recognition of his government by the United States and Latin-American republics was further indicated today by replies received from Gen. Obregon and other Carranza chieftains to the Pan-American appeal for a peace conference in Mexico.

Gen. Obregon emphatically declared he would stand by Carranza, asserting that the United States and the Latin-American republics had been misinformed regarding the strength of the Carranza movement.

"If our sister republics are, as I believe them to be, animated by a lofty principle of morality and fraternity," Gen. Obregon stated, "and sincerely desire for our beloved Mexico a future of peace and prosperity, and are ready to lend their aid to accomplish it, they could do so by the mere act of not allowing themselves to be misguided by false information or unscrupulous influences and allow the constitutionalist administration to end its work of pacification."

Gen. Carranza's own reply is expected early next week. Meanwhile he proposes to establish himself in Mexico City, and there have been intimations that he would propose to the Pan-American conferees that they arrange to have leaders of Mexican factions confer with him there on the future of the country.

Another reply to the appeal received today came from Gen. Cesar Lopez de Lara, governor of the Federal District of Mexico. It was addressed to Secretary Lansing and the Latin-American diplomats and read as follows:

"I have received your courteous note of the 16th instant, in which you inform me that, pursuant to instructions from your Government, you are transmitting to me a correct translation of a note addressed to military and political leaders of Mexico by the Secretary of State of the United States of America and the plenipotentiaries of Brazil, Chile and Argentine, Guatemala, Bolivia and Uruguay. I have also received the translation of the note attached to your letter.

"On account of the object which the document seems to pursue, I must say to you at once that it is not of the province of this Government of the Federal district of the United Mexican States, which is under my charge, to treat matters of this character and that the decision of them is of the exclusive power of the first chief of the Constitutionalist army, depository of the executive power of Mexico, citizen Venustiano Carranza, whose determination shall be duly respected and sustained in every respect. The documents referred to are being transmitted by me to Mr. Carranza for his consideration."

How to Lose Your Tan, Freckles or Wrinkles

A day's motoring, an afternoon on the tennis ground or golf links, a sunbath on the beach or exposure on a sea trip, often brings on a deep tan or vivid crimson or, more perplexing still, a vigorous crop of freckles. A very necessary thing then is mercolized wax, which removes tan, redness or freckles quite easily. It literally peels off the affected skin—just a little at a time, so there's no hurt or injury. As the skin comes off in almost invisible flaky particles, no trace of the treatment is shown. Get an ounce of mercolized wax at your druggist's and use this nightly as you would cold cream, washing it off mornings. In a week or so you will have an entirely new skin, beautifully clear, transparent and of a most delicate whiteness.

Wrinkles, so apt to form at this season, may be easily and quickly removed by bathing the face in a solution of powdered saxolite, 1 oz., dissolved in witch hazel, ½ pint. This is not only a valuable astringent, but has a beneficial tonic effect also.—ADV.

Where the flowers gently wave,
Lies the one I love so dearly
In her lonely, silent grave.
Peaceful be your sleep, dear daughter,
'Tis sweet to breathe your name,
In life I loved you dearly,
In death I do the same.
All the world is gray with shadow,
Clouds have dimmed the sunset glow,
Just a year, dear, since you left me,
Yet it seems so long ago.
I often sit and think of you
When all alone,
For memory is the only thing
That grief can call its own.

Sadly missed by

Notice!! All City Water Users

Owing to the large number of complaints by citizens against the arrogant and unlawful methods pursued in the assessing of city water rates, a committee has been formed to investigate these complaints for the purpose of taking action to stop the abuse of official authority. All persons having just complaints should send full particulars, names, dates and amounts to Charles P. Comer, attorney for "Citizens' Protective Committee," 557 Pierce Bldg. (7)

MR. PROPERTY OWNER YOU WANT THE TENANT WHO PAYS

The uncertain sort of tenant is easy to find. He is always answering the call of the window sign of "To Let." He is easy to please. Even a rather high rental does not frighten him away.

But the STAY-AND-PAY tenant is not so easy to secure. He is surer of what he wants. He does not take the first house or apartment or store that he finds. HE WATCHES AND ANSWERS "TO LET" ADS.

Property that is advertised adequately is rarely rented injudiciously.

5000 MILES MORE FROM YOUR OLD TIRES

Here is the most revolutionary idea in the history of the tire industry. It makes your rim-cut, tread-worn, junk casings good for another whole season, and at a very small cost to you.

Go to the junk pile, get out your old casings, bring them in at once—and we will turn them into puncture and blowout proof casings. Blowouts, stone bruises, etc., will be charged accordingly.

Write for circular and price list. Send a postal and a representative will call. Call us up or come in with your old casings. Agents wanted in all small cities.

FRENCH WAR VIEW LESS OPTIMISTIC THAN IS BRITISH

Both Entente Allies Equally Confident, However, as to Ultimate Outcome of Conflict.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

LONDON, Aug. 8.—The French Ambassador to the Court of St. James, M. Paul Cambon, is one of the most interesting figures in London during these war days, for, more than any other individual, he is the physical embodiment of the alliance by which England, France and Russia are jointly prosecuting the tremendous struggle. It was he who signed, on April 8, 1904, the convention establishing the entente cordiale reconstructing the relations between England and France and leading to the present compact by which the three allies are fighting today.

When M. Cambon was seen at the French embassy by a representative of the Associated Press he was preparing to leave for Paris to meet his brother, M. Jules Cambon, who, as French Ambassador at Washington, signed with President McKinley the protocol reestablishing peace between the United States and Spain, after arranging the preliminaries with Madrid by which Spain was to retire from Cuba, Porto Rico was to be ceded to the United States and the Philippines were to pass under American control by purchase.

The Ambassador never speaks for publication, yet certain impressions were gathered during the visit which indicate the role of the principal figures in the negotiation of the entente cordiale and the events leading to the present war drama.

Reconciliation Salisbury's Idea.

It was Lord Salisbury who first perceived the need of reconciling the differences long existing between England and France. Two main reasons had been operating to make this need apparent. First, both England and France had embarked on extensive colonial policies, and these colonies were so situated that they were a contiual source of discord and misunderstanding—in Siam, where the British interests were on one side and the French interests of Indo-China on the other; in Africa, with Egypt in the northeast; Morocco, Algiers and Tunis in the northwest and the Congo and Niger and Nile country in the center; the Newfoundland fisheries, a source of controversy for 200 years; with Madagascar, New Hebrides and many other points affording points for misunderstanding in colonial development. Some of these had become acute, notably the Siam crisis and the Fachoda incident, when the French expedition under Capt. Marchand reached the Nile simultaneously with the arrival of Gen. Kitchener, two weeks after his capture of Khartoum.

The second reason for such a reconciliation had impressed itself rather slowly on British statesmen, the need of a counterpoise to the ambition of Germany, which, it is apparent, by its alliance in Central Europe, was seeking to build up a predominating influence on the course of European affairs. When Germany, after the war of 1870-1, was ready to crush France, England was not aroused that such a course might affect not only France, but the equilibrium of Europe, in advancing the imperial design of a paramount influence of the Central powers over the affairs of Europe. But later events made this motive clear to English statesmen, and it was the decisive factor leading to the reconciliation of France and England.

Singularly, however, Lord Salisbury's early conviction that the time had come for this reconciliation was not realized because of a peculiar obstacle. He had seen many French ministries come and go, for some of them were of brief duration, and these frequent falls of ministries impressed Lord Salisbury with an idea that there was lack of stability and continuity in French policy. For that reason the first hopes of a reconciliation were not realized.

Hastened by Bismark.

The reconciliation moved thus slowly, until the decisive action of Bismarck clearly showed the design of a dominating central influence. And even then negotiations did not take a definite form until shortly before the actual signing of the Anglo-French convention. M. Cambon had arrived here a few days before, having had exceptional opportunities, as private secretary of President Jules Ferry of France, for observing the development of international forces at work in Europe. With Lord Lansdowne in the Foreign Office here, M. Delcasse at the head of foreign affairs in France, and M. Cambon as the intermediary between the two Ministers, the negotiations took a new life, and at last eventuated in the convention signed in London by Lord Lansdowne and M. Cambon, at noon on April 8, 1904.

Three days before the London Times had issued a formal denial to a dispatch cabled from Paris to the Associated Press that such a reconciliation was about to be consummated by a treaty, assenting that such a thing, beneficial though it might be, was inconceivable of realization. This reflected British public opinion; that England and France could not be reconciled after being traditional enemies for hundreds of years, with a long train of historic wars between them.

The convention cleared the slate of the many questions of discord between France and England in all parts of the world. In Egypt, France recognized the predominant position of England. In Morocco, England recognized the predominant position of France, and thus laid the foundation for a great French empire of Northwest Africa, linking Morocco, Algiers and Tunis. Similarly the long-standing controversies over the Newfoundland fisheries were settled; also those of Siam, Madagascar and New Hebrides, with various mutual readjustments of territory in Central Africa and including the islands off Sierra Leone. The entente cordiale not only established a sympathetic and practical working arrangement between the two countries, but also when the supreme crisis of the present war came, brought them together with Russia.

As to the war, the French viewpoint is probably less optimistic than the English official view, but no less confident of the ultimate result. To the French, the war has the grimness of being on their own soil, and not, as with England, in the distance. But with all its trials, the events of yesterday, today and tomorrow are looked upon as passing scenes in a larger drama, which may take months or years for its denouement, but which must be worked out to a successful conclusion though the contest be reckoned by decades instead of years.

CAMPAIGN STARTS TO GET TRADE FOR AMERICA IN CHINA

Plan of State and Commerce Departments Seeks Fair Share of Coutry's Business.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—An aggressive campaign to obtain for American business a share in the development of the enormous resources of China has been planned by the departments of state and commerce. The plan contemplates the development of an American vested interest in China that will insure the United States a fair share of that country's foreign trade and be powerful enough to take care of itself in the complicated political and commercial situation there.

The scheme was developed by Paul S. Reinsch, Minister to China, Julean H. Arnold, commercial attache at Pekin and Dr. E. E. Pratt, chief of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce. Reinsch brought to Washington a program framed by himself and Arnold which was submitted to Dr. Pratt, Secretary Lansing and other officials. It was generally endorsed and the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce already has begun work along the lines suggested. Arnold will return to the United States this winter and tour the country to secure capital for investmetn in China.

Watching Conditions.

State Department officials have been watching commercial conditions in China since the recent granting of extensive special privileges demanded by Japan. No political steps have been taken to secure concessions or privileges for Americans, however, and the policy of the Government has been steadfastly against commercial politics, such as other nations have employed in China. The plan now proposed is expected to develop an American interest there which will be powerful enough to meet the competition of other nations.

Dr. Pratt pointed out today that American capital was piling up as a result of the European war, and that vast sums of idle money are available for investment.

The bureau expects to take advantage of every opportunity now offered in China and to have an American interest strongly intrenched there at the close of the war.

Dr. Pratt issued today a summary of the Chinese trade situation, which stated in part:

Mining Enterprises.

"China offers splendid inducements to American capital in mining enterprises, especially tin, zinc, antimony, lead, coal and iron. Hunan Province, the most accessible of the richer mineral areas, is a particularly inviting field for investment.

"China offers splendid inducements to American capital and American machinery, in connection with the erection of cotton yarn mills.

"Opportunities for the investment of American capital are offered in the China rug-making industry for rugs for the American market.

"American capital and expert management applied to tanning Chinese hides with a tannery at Kalgan, Tientsin or Hankow would be a paying venture.

"China imports annually nearly $10,000,000 (gold) worth of aniline and synthetic dyes. A high-grade American substitute for the European products could probably secure a great deal of this trade, which is now at a standstill, owing to lack of supplies.

Market for Window Glass.

"On account of the war, China offers a splendid field for American window glass of cheaper grades. Window glass importations in China net several millions dollars gold each year and prices are nearly treble those of a year ago.

"Because of the war China will be obliged to purchase much of her railway materials and machinery, electrical and industrial, from the United States.

"With the favorable exchange which exists at the present time, Chinese products, which previously went to Europe should make their way to America. Among these are sesamum seed, vegetable tallow, hides, egg products, mineral products, wood oil, peanuts, bean oil, gall nuts, etc."

Work along some of these lines already has been begun by agents of the Commerce Bureau in the United States, and several New England business men now are in China closing contracts for the installation of American machinery in cotton mills built under Chinese Government supervision.

It is expected that the establishment of an American bank in China will be the first big result of the campaign, and this proposal is now under consideration by various financial interests.

Lovers of mystery stories will find here a delectably tantalizing plot, abounding in brilliant surprises. Lovers of humor will revel in the gay and whimsical wit which sparkles in every paragraph. On the glaring stage of a London "Coney Island" is set picturesquely a drama of dark intrigue, in which two memorable figures—Carpentaria, greatest of bandmasters, and a tremendous woman, evil and masterful—play their roles of enmity and crime.

Elderly Fathers Have Most Gifted Children

Newest principle of eugenics based on fact that many men of genius were sons of fathers 40 to 50 years old when offspring were born

HERE is the latest counsel given to the world by the science of eugenics: "If you aspire to be a genius, be careful to pick a father who, at the date of your birth, is between 30 and 40 and preferably between 40 and 50 years of age!"

Francois La Motte of Calais, mathematical prodigy at age of six.

In support of this startling theory, students of genetics point to a long line of men of genius whose fathers were men of mature age when their famous sons were born. The age of the mother seems to matter little, but it is declared that in order to give a child an auspicious start on the road to intellectuality the father must be mature enough in brain to transmit a well-developed mental tendency to his offspring.

The case of Thomas A. Edison, at whose birth his father was 43 years old, is cited. When Benjamin Franklin was born his father was 57 years old, and Franklin's paternal grandfather's age, at the birth of his son, was 65. Audubon's father was 57 years old when his illustrous son entered the world; Irving's father was 52; Farragut's, 56; Webster's, 43; Poe's 40; Washington's, 38; Voltaire's, 45; Francis Bacon's, 51; Samuel Johnson's, 47, and Goethe's, 40.

Mozart at age of four composed minuets. At ten he had written six sonatas.

A father older than 33 years was the blessing possessed by Victor Hugo, who began to write at 8 years of age; by Dickens, who wrote fiction at 9 and published at 22, and by Rudyard Kipling, another example of precocity. Sir Walter Scott's father was more than 50 when the future novelist was born. James Mill was 33 years old at the birth of his celebrated son, John Stuart Mill, who learned the Greek alphabet at 3 years of age, knew Euclid and algebra at 8, read all the Herodotus and other Greek authors at 9, and at 15 "knew as much as a college don."

An average taken of the most distinguished men in the American Hall of Fame shows that at their birth their fathers were more than 44 years old. Among musicians who were the sons of fathers of mature years were Beethoven, Schubert, Mendelsshon and Mozart; the latter a true wonder-child who learned the clavicord and composed minuets at 4 and had written six sonatas at 10. John Dalton, founder of modern chemistry and of the atomic theory, was born of a father 36 years old.

A father 3 years old and a mother 45 were the parents of Francois La Motte of Calais, a famous mathematical prodigy. At the age of 6 he could add at once five columns of 20 figures each after a mere glance at them; and after a calculation of a few seconds could tell the square root of long figures or the cubic contents of a vessel of given size.

John Dalton, founder of modern chemistry, was a prodigy and his father was 36.

The lucky possession of a father of mature age accounts, according to the eugenists, for the gifts of Otto Pohlen of Berlin, probably the most wonderful of all the "wunderkinder," as the Germans call them. He was born in 1894. At the age of 2, it is said, this amazing infant could read Greek and Latin print or script aloud with great rapidity, and with readiness and precison could pronounce scientific terms of jawbreaking difficulty. He developed a miraculous memory, and at the age of 6, according to Prof. Coldscher[illegible], Prof. Placzek and others who examined him, was a veritable walking encyclopedia. The prodigy Johnson of New Orleans, son of a father of advanced years, possessed a genius for calculation second only to La Motte's, and an incredible memory for dates of historic events.

Virgil Markham, one of the most gifted boy pianists in the United States and the composer of numerous nocturnes and sonatas, was born when his father, Edwin Markham, the poet, was in his forty-ninth year.

Victor Hugo wrote stories from the time he was eight years old.

The genealogies of infant prodigies bear out the theory that children, and therefore men and women of high mental attainments, are, in most cases, the progeny of fathers of mature years, and that none of them was the first-born of parents who married early in life. When a remarkably precocious child is born of parents younger than 30 at the time of his birth, it is pointed out that his grandparents and great-grandparents were, in all probability, well advanced in years at the time of the birth of the children of his line.

The American Genetic Association has for more than a year offered a reward of $200 to any genealogist who would prove that any person of the first rank of intellectuality was descended from a male line whose aggregate ages counted three generations or more to the century. No one has as yet received the reward, though many have tried for it, and the time limit has been extended to the end of the present year.

The closest students of eugenics of late years have arrived at the conclusion that in nine cases out of ten, precocity—the almost constant forerunner of genius—is the result of a low rate of reproduction—generally three generations or less to the century.

John Stuart Mill knew Euclid and algebra at eight and at nine had read Greek historians.

Science now smiles at the idea so long retained by old-fashioned physiologists, that precocious children are almost of necessity short-lived and that even if they attain a considerable age they are doomed to mediocrity. Genealogical experts disprove this theory by reference to many men of genius, all of whom were precocious children and most of them remarkably so. Sir Francis Galton, the father of eugenics, was the first to point out the relation of precocity to genius.

It is a well-known fact that men of great intellectual ability usually live longer than ordinary persons. This, the modern physiologist declares, is because they are from successive generations of mature parents. They assert that more health and vigor are transmitted by older parents than by younger ones, because of the older person's cumulative resistance to disease. This resistance is transmitted to offspring, and it affords one of the strongest arguments against early marriages now advanced by some of our leading eugenists.

Many persons regard infant prodigies as mere freaks of nature, like the three-legged girl or the Siamese twins. For ages men of science were prone to look wise when confronted by these "abnormalities" and to declare that they were an indication of cerebral disease. Even up to a decade or so ago American physicians did not hesitate to identify any remarkable manifestation of precocity with chronic inflammation of the membrane of the brain.

Otto Pohlen of Berlin could read Latin and Greek at age of two.

But more recently these theories have been utterly abandoned; and if cerebral disease attacks a very precocious child, it is merely set down as proof of the fact that its proud parents or guardians have encouraged it to exercise its faculties too strenuously in exhibitions of its powers.

If the theory is correct that persons of genius in most cases are born of fathers no younger than 32 or 33 and sometimes as old as 50 or more, then the present tendency towards late marriages is an unconscious impulse in the direction of improving the mentality of the human race; and in time early marriages, instead of being smiled upon as pretty romances, may be frowned down as misdemeanors against the species.

WHY THE GREAT WAR IS DULL

By STEPHEN PHILLIPS, Author of "Marpessa," "Ulysses," "Paolo and Francesca," etc.

AT first sight it might appear somewhat of an irrelevance that one whose chief business in life has been to write poetic plays should put forward any personal impression on the grim business of the present war. But I have been a lifelong student of military history, and especially of the strategy of the long struggle with Napoleon, so that an impression, which I put forward in all humility, may carry with it a certain interest. And this is the apparent lack in so vast a shock of numbers of any towering, individual genius on either side.

I use the word apparent advisedly, for the simple reason that the chief operations in this war take place behind so thick a veil and calculated obscurity of silence that for all one knows some really great and magnificent military feat may have been accomplished by "someone, somewhere."

It will, of course, be answered that this is warfare entirely under new conditions; that those conditions are, by the allies at any rate, only beginning to be grasped, and that therefore all former standards and comparisons with the last are out of place. This is a war, it will be said, of underground entrenchments, of munitions, and of chemistry, and affords no field, as in the past, for any outstanding individual initiative. But this reply is belied by the whole course of military history. It is, has been, and always will be the prime business of a military genius, possibly even to create new battle conditions, but, at any rate, instantly to recognize and instantly to adapt himself to those conditions, however novel, by which he is faced. If he fails thus to recognize, and to adapt himself, he is, by that very confession, no genius at all.

In ancient history the crossing of the Alps by Hannibal may be taken as an instance of entirely new and overwhelming obstacles being confronted and overthrown.

Again in recent warfare the ability of Napoleon so to maneuver from his base that he could strike at any moment at any point which he deemed vulnerable created a new tradition in tactics.

The present war is undoubtedly the greatest so far as the number of combatants engaged is concerned, but, so far as we are allowed to know, it is probably the dullest.

At the outbreak of the war the Germans failed in their immediate, original objective. Is it too much to assume that this failure was in a great measure due to the lack of a commander of unhesitating insight and initiative? But, on the other hand, this original failure was followed by no tremendous counter-stroke on the part of the allies, but by a stubborn retreat of the Germans, ending in a state of endless entrenchment; and so matters, it will hardly be denied, remain at the present moment in the western theater.

So in the east we were at first led to believe that the Russians were so victoriously advancing that it was merely a question with them by what time and by what route they should arrive in Berlin. At the present moment, so far from any great aggressive movement having succeeded, they are being steadily and continuously beaten back and are themselves invaded, not invading.

It is possible, of course, that signal military ability has been displayed on the German side in this massive and tremendous offensive; but news now comes, once again bearing out my original thesis, that the Germans in their turn are now being held. In the Dardanelles we were practically told that but a few miles separated us from a brilliant and overwhelming victory, but it is now found that the piercing of the Turkish defense, if not ultimately impossible, is likely to assume the monotony of operations elsewhere.

Harking back to my original contention of an apparent lack of any towering individuality; in home affairs, in England, this is perhaps even more keenly obvious. A crisis like the present cannot be dealt with drastically by the "lawyer-politician," who may be fairly successful in more normal times. This crisis cries for a dictator, a man of the caliber, and nothing short of it, of the elder, not the younger, Pitt, or, better still, of Cromwell. It has usually been said that the great opportunity finds the man. Surely a greater opportunity than this conflict affords has never been given in history.

SUICIDE of AN OHIO VILLAGE

The entire village will be wrecked to make space for the Great Miami Valley reservoir.

Osborn, population 1000, passes death sentence upon itself so that its site may become a reservoir, to protect the Great Miami Valley from another Dayton flood, which cost $200,000,000 and score of lives

> Sweet smiling village, loveliest of the lawn,
> Thy sports are fled, and all thy charms withdrawn;
> Amidst thy bowers the tyrant's hand is seen,
> And desolation saddens all thy green * * *
> Sunk are thy bowers in shapeless ruin all,
> And the long grass o'ertops the moldering wall.
> From Goldsmith's "The Deserted Village."

MANY a man has laid down his life for his friend; but rare and touching among sacrifices is the fact that the pretty village of Osborn, in Greene County, Ohio, has determined upon suicide, so that by its death Dayton and the surrounding country may be preserved in the future from such floods as in March, 1913, cost more than a score of lives and did a damage of $200,000,000. Osborn is to be razed from the earth, and its site occupied by a $2,000,000 reservoir and dam.

Life is pleasant and sweet to Osborn village, and it was with many pangs that its citizens at last consented to its voluntary act of destruction. Many of them were born and reared in its precincts; now they will be compelled to break up their lives, and seek new homes and neighbors in strange communities. Their sorrow is expressed by Osborn's oldest living resident, Mrs. Elizabeth Statz Wallace, daughter of John Cox, who founded the village in 1850.

"If our dear old home must be destroyed," she said with tears, "I wish to be the last one to leave. I want to stand on the hillside and watch the waters as they pour over the streets and roads I have loved for so many years. Then I will go, and I shall never wish to return."

Osborn did not even wet its feet during the flood which swept the Great Miami valley two years ago; but when the conservation work now under way is completed, its site will be buried under many feet of water. Anglers will perhaps cast their lines where today stand its homes, churches and schools.

After the Dayton flood an organized effort was begun to prevent the possibility of such another disaster. The Miami Conservancy District Board of Directors was organized, and formed a scheme for flood prevention calling for an outlay of $20,000,000. An essential part of the project was the building of a reservoir which would absorb the storm waters should they ever arise again to the danger stage.

It was first planned to build the reservoir in the vicinity of Springfield. But Springfield was not unselfish. Although not a brick of the city was to be disturbed, the citizens protested strenuously. They cried out that a reservoir filled with water in flood period nearby would be an alarming menace, as its dams might break and inundate the city. In vain the engineers protested that the walls would be so solidly built that they could not yield.

At last the Springfield burghers brought forward an argument which was convincing to the Conservancy Board. If, instead of building the reservoir near Springfield, they said, the directors would persuade the residents of Osborn to vacate their homes, to see their schools and churches wrecked, and to take themselves off to any other place, so that the dam could be located on the site of the village, then the Board would save about $1,000,000 in its building expenses.

So the proposition was placed before Osborn, somewhat apologetically. It was a good deal to ask. The village is a typical farming center, with a quiet and idyllic home life and that attachment to the soil which comes to the dwellers in such communities. It is true that under the law property owners would receive a fair price for their holdings, but this could not outweigh the sacrifice of leaving the spot where many of them had grown up and to which they had become attached.

It is no crossroads settlement, but a prosperous and thriving business community. It has a postoffice and a bank, four churches, a high school, two lodge buildings, 300 homes, water and electric light plants, and fire and police departments. It is incorporated and has a Mayor and other officials. Three flour mills, three grocery stores, a drug store, a harness shop, a bakery, two implement shops and two restaurants comprise its business district. Through it pass the Erie and Big Four railroads, and it lies upon the traction line between Dayton and Columbus, capital of Ohio. Its population is more than 1000. Many rich Dayton men have built country homes in its vicinity.

It was represented to Osborn that while it might be hard to give up all these things, the fruit of the labor of many years, and to see itself become a "Deserted Village" in the most desolate sense of the word, yet the sacrifice would safeguard life and property for a hundred miles around, and forever prevent such another catastrophe as the flood still vivid in the State's memory.

Osborn might have protested that floods, however high, could have no terrors for it, because of its situation; and that the sacrifices, if any, should be made by those whom future overflows might endanger. But Osborn did nothing of the sort. It weighed its own interests, its very existence, against the common good; and the former tipped the scale. The village by its own will passed the death sentence upon itself, and the voluntary suicide will be consummated within the next year.

Within six months the proper papers will be signed and damages agreed upon by State appraisers will be paid, and then the village will pass into the absolute possession of the Conservancy Board. Within the year the exodus of citizens and their families will begin, and its people will be scattered among other cities, far and near. The railroads have already prepared plans for moving their lines aside from the doomed tract, and the electric line will swerve about in another direction.

Then the work of wreckage will begin, and the high school, the churches and rows of homes will be leveled with the dust. Soon nothing will remain of the village but a barren plain; and then, mercifully, the work of destruction will be hidden from sight under the waters of the great reservoir. It is expected that this will be completed in three years.

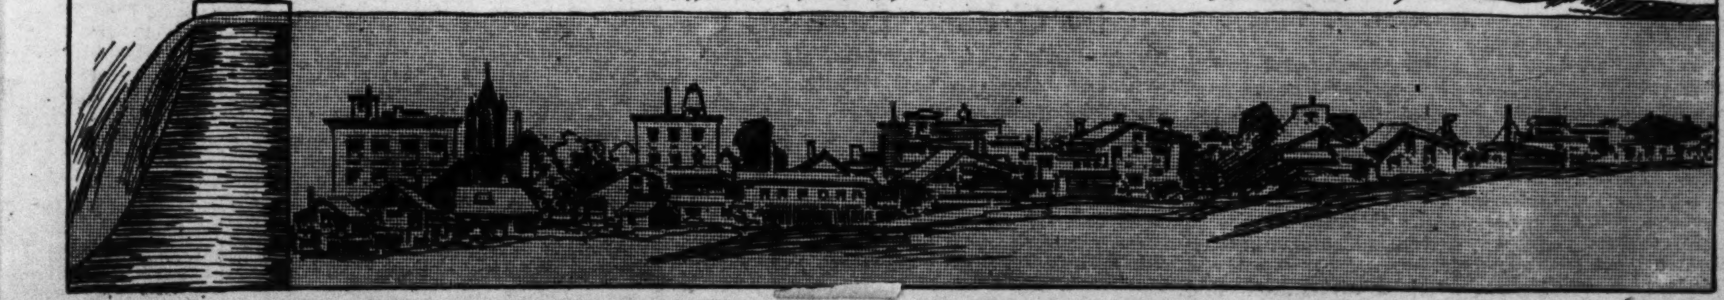
But Osborn, though dead as to body, may survive in the grateful memories of the cities and countryside for the sake of which it will give up its existence. Years from now, should another flood rise in the Great Miami Valley, people will go about their work in peace and without fear. Perhaps some will remember to say: "We owe our safety to the heroism of Osborn village." At any rate, Osborn, two weeks ago unknown outside its immediate vicinity, has become famous throughout Ohio, and its name, as a symbol of altruism, is even spreading beyond the State borders. A half-dozen cities have opened their gates to the Osborn folk who will be compelled to quit their homes.

The Miami Conservancy Board is the outgrowth of the passage of the Vonderheide flood law by the Ohio Legislature under the administration of Gov. James M. Cox. The Board, as named by the Conservancy Court, consists of E. A. Deeds, a rich Dayton manufacturer; Gordon Rentschler, a wealthy manufacturer of Hamilton, in Butler County, and H. M. Allen, a banker at Troy.

The directors have suggested the appointment of three chief appraisers, to have charge of appraising 150,000 pieces of property in the district, with the help of their assistants, who will number about 150. These properties are those which will be affected by the flood plans in Osborn and other places. The reservoir plan was adopted after State and national experts were called into consultation. Considerable antagonism has developed on the part of four counties, Clark, Darke, Shelby and Greene, against the reservoir plan, but the Vonderheide Conservancy law, after many contests in lower and upper courts, has finally been declared legal in every respect.

The flood plans for the valley call for a beginning sometime early in 1916, and will require about three and one-half years for their completion. Nine Ohio counties are included in the Miami Conservancy District.

"The Deserted Village" is the name that will apply to Osborn presently. "Sweet Osborn, loveliest village of the plain," is the new parody given to the Goldsmith poem of long ago. Memories still cling to the town's early history. Romance and industry were there a half century ago. Lovers met beneath the shade of the village trees and plighted their troth, and boys and girls ascended into young manhood and womanhood as the village grew. But the village is fated; it must be razed in order that thousands outside its boundaries may be saved from the ravages of future floods.



The site of Osborn's churches, schools and hundreds of homes will be buried under many feet of water.

"THE TEST TUBE IS MIGHTIER THAN THE DREADNOUGHT!"

So say German chemists, whose laboratory experiments are declared to have offset British blockade by supplying new sources of food and munitions—Yeast, sunflower seed, weeds, nettles and willow fiber some of the materials utilized—Wood cellulose instead of cotton for manufacture of explosives, and iron and aluminum in place of copper :: ::

THIS has aptly been called "the chemists' war." Far behind the lines of trenches, the scientists of all the belligerent nations are working to fabricate victory in their laboratories—each toiling to produce a more terrific explosive, a more venomous gas, than the others.

The supremacy of the chemist is particularly true in Germany, not only because of its commanding position in this science, won before the outbreak of the war, but also because of the urge of necessity. Deprived of most of its imports by the sea power of England, which is regarding even foodstuffs as contraband, Germany has been compelled to become a self-supporting nation. For the salvation of the beleaguered empire the mobilization of its chemists was of as vital importance as the mobilization of its legions; and the men of the test tube and retort have won triumphs as stupendous in their effect upon the welfare of the nation as were the victories in Poland.

Prior to the war, Germany imported each year millions of dollars worth of foodstuffs, both for men and cattle. After the German Government took over the administration of the nation's food supplies, Great Britain declared foodstuffs contraband, asserting that it was no longer possible to distinguish between provisions destined for civilians and for combatants. Germany branded this measure as an attempt to starve her civil population. Yet, according to all reports, food is almost as plentiful in Germany as it ever was. How has this miracle been accomplished? In the last analysis, it is the chemical laboratory which has set at naught the huge British armada blockading the North Sea.

As an example of the ingenuity of German chemists, under the stress of dire and sudden need, there is the feat which they have accomplished in the field of supplying fodder for their domestic animals. It is described by Dr. Hugo Schweitzer, a distinguished American chemist, who has recently returned from a visit to Germany, where he had previously enjoyed an extended experience both as a scholar and as an industrial chemist.

Before the war, farmers of our Middle West and South annually exported to Germany $250,000,000 worth of fodder, mostly in the form of so-called concentrated feed—such as cottonseed oil cakes, corn oil cakes and similar by-products. This supply was abruptly and almost totally terminated when the British sea blockade began. The imperial Government, in the emergency, called upon its chemists to act.

It was well known, says Dr. Schweitzer, that in the process of fermentation—which is the conversion of sugar into alcohol by means of certain lower orders of plants, such as yeast—albuminous substances are generated by the growth of the yeast which are of food value, both to human beings and animals. However, the yield of albumen was so small that the process, as a source of food supply, was considered unprofitable.

The experiments of the chemists, however, showed that the yield of albumen is immensely increased by the presence of sulphate of ammonia; the nitrogen of which, in the digestive organs of the yeast plant, is converted from its inorganic form to its organic form—albumen. As much as 100 parts of water-free dry yeast were obtained from 100 parts of sugar.

Now Germany, owing to its sugar beet industry, is the largest producer of sugar in the world, and inexhaustible supplies of yeast could not be lacking in the country which is the native land of beer. But these plentiful materials seemed to avail nothing, because no process was known for producing sulphate of ammonia at an economical cost.

The chemists answered this difficulty by perfecting a method of directly combining the nitrogen and hydrogen found in the atmosphere; and their discovery, experts promise, will in time revolutionize food production all over the world. Just what the details of the process are remains a German secret. It is known to be mechanical, and to rely for power upon the immense deposits of cheap lignite coal in Germany. It is said that the giant chemical factories, which formerly supplied the world with dyestuffs, synthetic remedies and other coal tar products, are today largely engaged in manufacturing sulphate of ammonia out of the air; and the Government recently asked the German Parliament to grant an imperial nitrogen monopoly.

German cattle are now fed upon this yeast enriched with albumen. It is stated that 25 cents worth of yeast yields 904 calories, while 25 cents worth of beef yields only 623 calories; and that one pound of dry yeast treated by the new method is equivalent to 3.3 pounds of medium beef.

Albuminous yeast is also being recommended and possibly used as human food. It is preferred as a substitute for animal albumen by many persons who have an aversion for meat and consider the slaughter of animals for food purposes cruel and disgusting. Its importance will be further realized by bearing in mind that it affords the vegetarian the required amount of an albumen which is even superior to meat albumen, since it contains 2 per cent of lecithin, which is of great value as a nerve food and tonic.

This is the most direct process of converting nitrogen into food which science has ever discovered. In the usual process nitrogen is converted into an assimilable form by plants. They are eaten by cattle, in whose bodies the nitrogen is made into animal albumen; and at last it is ready to be absorbed by man. In the new process nitrogen from the air, after being assimilated by yeast plants, is immediately available for human consumption. And yeast plants attain their full development in a few days; they can be grown the year round, and thrive in any kind of a receptacle regardless of rain or shine, light or darkness.

It has been ascertained in Germany, says Dr. Schweitzer in an article in the Review of Reviews Magazine, that many plants previously regarded as useless weeds possess considerable food value. Fourteen wild-growing vegetables were found which furnished substitutes for spinach, while five plants supplied excellent material for salads. Nine varieties of roots, rich in starch and affording wholesome aliment for man and beast, have been discovered.

As a substitute for American cottonseed oil, the chemists are recommending a widespread cultivation of the sunflower, the seeds of which supply a valuable oil, both for food and as a lubricant, when mixed with certain distillation products of lignite coal. The chemists are also utilizing the blood of freshly slaughtered animals, which is mixed with dough and baked into a bread resembling black rye bread, which is said to be very nutritious and very economical.

Some observers have predicted that with the closing of the cotton markets in the Southern States to Germany, the empire would in a few months exhaust its possibilities of ammunition supplies, cotton fiber having been considered an essential component in the manufacture of high explosives.

On the contrary, says Dr. Schweitzer, the German chemists have already perfected substitutes for cotton, both in the manufacture of explosives and as wearing apparel. From wood pulp they are extracting a cellulose which, for the purpose of making explosives, is pronounced to be even superior to cotton; and they are now making gunwood instead of guncotton.

To replace cotton clothes, the chemists are developing the fibers of the nettle plant and the bast fibers of willow bark. The nettle fiber was once largely used in Europe as a textile fabric before the introduction of cotton. A special school for the cultivation of willow trees exists in Graudenz, West Prussia.

The fiber of willow bark is said to be of a fine and strong structure, surpassing hemp and closely approaching cotton in purity and tensile strength. The bark is first spread and dried, either in the sun or by artificial heat. It is packed in small bales, which can be kept for years without injury or decomposition. The bark is then treated in an alkaline bath for five to eight hours, dried and freed from tannin, and mechanically freed from wooden fibers, like hemp and flax. The fiber obtained is especially recommended as a substitute for cotton in surgical purposes, as it possesses great powers of absorption. It also furnishes an excellent paper.

Instead of cotton bags, the Germans are weaving bags which need endure no great strain from paper, spun into threads by a special machine. In manufacturing celluloid they are using certain tissue papers instead of cotton, with better results, they say, than under the old process.

The rearing of silkworms and the production of silk have received a great impetus from Germany's inability to import American cotton. Mulberry trees thrive in South Germany and the Rhine Province, and the occupation offers easy and profitable work to war cripples and invalids. The aim is to make Germany independent of the importation of raw silk.

The chemist has also succeeded in replacing the product of the camphor tree, which before the war had been obtained from Japan, and is of so great importance in medicine and in the manufacture of smokeless powders. It is now made artificially in the factory, and it has been found that synthetic camphor not only surpasses the natural in medicinal efficiency, but that it is of greater purity, a stronger disinfectant, and cheaper, at least as long as war prices prevail.

The German chemist, who has already solved the problem of manufacturing synthetic rubber, will perhaps also tackle the problem of making Germany independent of rubber imports in another direction. The milkweed plant, which belongs to the Asclepias family, furnishes a latex which resembles that of the cheaper grades of rubber. Although the amount of rubber is small and the quality poor, yet the chemist need not despair if he remembers that the sugar beet first used in sugar making contained only 4 per cent of a not very superior grade of sugar, while today it furnishes 22 to 24 per cent of sugar of such high quality that it cannot be distinguished from the finest cane sugar.

Great ingenuity is displayed by the metallurgical chemist in replacing copper by other metals. As a result, the consumption of copper for war purposes and for the arts is considerably reduced. With its inexhaustible supply of iron and steel, its wealth of zinc, and its domestic supply of copper amounting to an annual production of 40,000 tons, Germany is in an excellent position to manufacture substitutes for copper. Gun and rifle cartridges and the fuse heads of grenades are made of soft iron with a small percentage of copper and zinc. Buttons, button facings for helmets and belt buckles, which were formerly made of brass, are now made of alloys free from copper.

In the electrical industry iron and steel wire are used exclusively. Long-distance electric power transmissions are being conducted over steel cables; and cables are also manufactured of aluminum.

In machinery construction and journal bearings brass is entirely replaced by steel and iron. Instead of massive bronze, hollow bronze castings or iron or steel castings, coated or covered with bronze, are employed.

Next to steel and iron, aluminum and magnesium play a prominent part as substitutes for copper. It has been found that an aluminum-magnesium alloy possesses great advantages over the latter as an electric conductor. Magnesium is said to be useful for many purposes for which aluminum is being employed today. This is a very important discovery because Germany has enormous supplies of magnesium chloride, a by-product of the potash industry, which has been considered worthless up to now. Two large factories, started during the war, are now producing magnesium.

While magnesium may thus be obtained from a domestic source, aluminum has been hitherto made from bauxite, a mineral imported from France. The necessities of the war forced the chemist to look for a domestic raw material for this important metal. He now uses a cheaper grade of bauxite found in Carinthia, Dalmatia, and Hungary. But more wonderful still he has succeeded in extracting from cheap clays which are found in great abundance throughout Germany a

Passenger relates sensations as he skimmed over "sea of solid glass" on newest speed demon—a 250-horsepower engine mounted on a raft

THE most recent departure in speedboat manufacture is embodied in the "Tiddledywink," which looks at first glance like a third cousin of a scow, but which in trial trips has developed the terrific velocity of 70 miles an hour. When it is tuned up and put to the supreme test, it is expected to develop 80 and 85 miles an hour; and experts predict that later boats of the same pattern, employing the hydroplane idea, will achieve a speed of 100 miles an hour.

The new speed demon is owned by Charles Chesebrough of Northport, L. I., and was built by Alfred Luders of Stamford, Conn. It does not sail through the water, but on top of it, the hull rising until it barely touches the surface. It is 19 feet long and 12 feet wide. Its width is due to the wings, which are each three feet across, eight inches thick at the hull and two inches at the tips. The boat has an eight-cylinder engine, which develops 200 horsepower. The engine revolves 1500 times a minute and turns the propeller 2200 times. Three can ride in the cockpit.

On her second trip, a reporter for the Sunday Post-Dispatch Magazine was a passenger. In the following article he describes arousingly the sensations which come to one skimming over the water at 70 miles an hour.

By ROWLAND THOMAS.

THE clutch slipped in.

The mild purr of the engine changed instantaneously to sharp protest at the load. The two shafts at my feet—the upper one leading forward from the engine to the gray case that inclosed the gears of the transmission, and the lower leading aft again, under the engine-bed, to the propeller—began to revolve slowly. The Tiddledywink was under way, off on her second trial trip.

Up to that time the afternoon had been but mildly productive of emotions. The few it had brought were not of the adventurous sort. I had got to Stamford, in Connecticut, uneventfully enough, and down to the wharf in front of Alfred Luders' boat shop, fronting on a river abrim with high tide. My only feeling had been that it was pleasanter that hot afternoon to be there than in New York.

On the wharf lounged Luders. In the stream the Tiddledywink floated at her moorings with equal listlessness. Luders was just a slim young man, gray-eyed and sandy-haired, pleasant, not voluble. The Tiddledywink, at the most, was just amusing.

For what she looked like I lack a proper simile—perhaps because the sun has never shone before on anything which looked like that. She might have been suggestive of a turtle; only there never was a turtle 19 feet long and 12 feet wide, with a cockpit cut through the middle of him, and behind that a 250-horsepower engine with four stubby exhaust pipes sticking up.

I might have thought of a sad-iron. But sad-irons do not float. Also, they have handles.

As for comparing her to the insect politely referred to as Cimex lectularius—Cimex is well rounded out behind, instead of terminating in a squarely inserted transom.

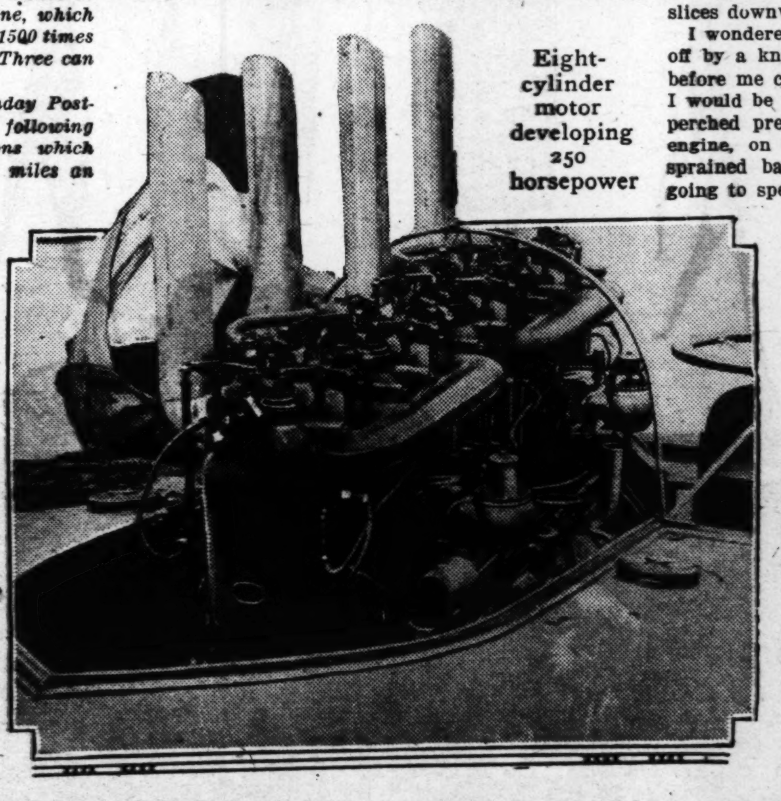
Whatever the Tiddledywink looked most like, she looked least like a contraption that could set one's heart to pounding in one's throat, and all one's senses thrilling with exultation.

A couple of men were puttering round her engine, and while they puttered, Luders talked.

He spoke of the inherent devilishness of hydroplanes in general. He spoke of the angelic and surprising innocence of the Tiddledywink, as demonstrated in the one trip she had made. He spoke also, casually, of the properties of water when one is skimming its surface at 40 miles an hour. It would be hard as glass, he thought, and added: "If she capsized, or bucked and tossed us out, it would mean sprained backs and necks, I guess."

Such considerations failed to impress me at that time as having any connection with my immediate future.

Even when everything was ready, when the last wrench had twisted up a nut and the last oil can nose had poked into metal mysteries, when Luders and his engineer had donned life-preserving suits of duxback stuffed with kapok, I felt no personal interest in their proceedings. Mechanically I followed instructions. I stuffed cotton in my ears against the coming assaults of the unmuffled exhaust. I donned a long coat for protection against a possible shower bath of oil. And I clambered up over the curve of the thing's turtle back to the cockpit. All without perceptible emotion.



Eight-cylinder motor developing 250 horsepower

My first discovery was that the Tiddledywink was mostly mechanism. Humans had to accommodate themselves to that. Against my left shoulder blade the engine's forward cylinder was snuggled. By my left foot ran the lines of shafting which terminated in the transmission just in front of me. By my right foot ran the bronze rudder ropes. And between my feet was stowed the cork jacket I was not to don just yet.

"Wait till we get up speed," suggested Luders. "The thing is hot and heavy, and there's no possible danger while we're running slow. No danger anyway, of course," he added hastily. "But still—I'd feel better to have you wear it when she gets to going."

The engine purred. The mooring was cast off. The clutch slipped gently in. Then came The Moment.

If you are cursed with an imagination, and have ever stood while boot-toe found pigskin in the first kickoff of the game, or felt your spikes dig into cinders while you waited for the starter's pistol, you know exactly what I mean. That deadly feeling that you are in, completely in, for Whatever May Be Coming To You.

I got it as those two shafts began to turn. Luders' casual comment on the solidity of water met at 40 miles an hour took on a wealth of connotation.

Side by side with it went another thought. A wiseacre from the safe vantage point of shore had found fault because the wings that gave the Tiddledywink her turtle-back curve downward at their forward edge. They made her a death trap, this Solomon insisted. Let one wave catch the nose of her, and she would slice downward for the bottom as a volplaning aeroplane slices downward for the earth.

I wondered how it would feel to have one's head shorn off by a knife of solid water. The rim of the cockpit before me came just up to the level of my collar bone. I would be the one to get it. Luders and his engineer, perched precariously in little bucket seats behind the engine, on the very tail of her, might get off with sprained backs. But I was forward—and they were going to speed her.

All these thoughts came in the moment when I realized there was no more any backing out. The next, and the Tiddledywink was slipping up Stamford harbor past the coal wharves and lumber schooners, in and out among the anchored yachts, gliding as smoothly, steering as sweetly, at eight or nine miles an hour as any trustworthy family runabout could do.

Back behind the engine, oil-spattered faces were a-wreath with smiles. "Runs like a sewing machine," the engineer shouted. "Steers like a bird," roared Mr. Luders. They had to accommodate their voices to cotton-wadded ears.

The Tiddledywink was headed for the open Sound. She slipped down placidly past the Bug Light, and then the measured barking of the engine quickened to a roar broken by staccato silences. The boat lifted to the call of it as steps and wings met the inertia of water and air. Up went the pace, 10, 15, 20 miles an hour.

The long line of harbor buoys came rushing back to us. I looked behind me. The sandy hair of Luders, the black thatch of the engineer, were flying in the wind we made. Their faces were set against the drive of it. And at their backs the wake creamed up to shoulder level and then spread out in a V a hundred feet across. Luders' eyes, fixed down the course, caught mine for an instant. "Great!" I shouted, and he grinned.

Never glancing down from his steering, he dropped one hand to the throttle. The engine's heartbeat quickened till the separate explosions were blended in a terrific monotone. The spray flew out to port and starboard. We hit hard going then. The Tiddledywink bumped as if she were running over cobble pavement. The nose of her twisted and wrenched and tugged as she fought the rudder. Up went the pace still, 25, 30, 31 miles an hour. The buoys, that had rushed, streaked backwards to us now. I found myself leaning forward tensely. Speed, more speed, all the speed there was in the world—that was what I wanted.

Luders must have felt the same demand within himself. He moved that controlling hand again, and—ZIP!

That is the only word for it. The madly whirling engine burst out into song—a steady, sweet, triumphant

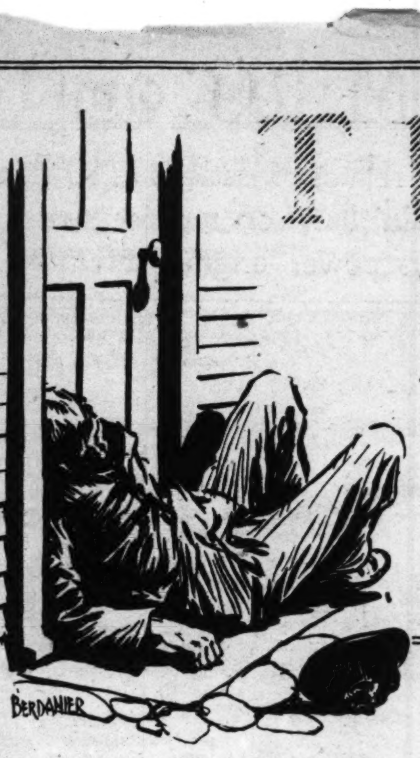
The City of Pleasure



"A notion occurred to him, one of his fanciful pranks . . . he placed the unconscious form against Ilam's door."

By ARNOLD BENNETT

Author of "Clayhanger," "The Old Wives' Tale," "Denry the Audacious," Etc.

THE first installment of this fascinating story fairly teems with exciting events. We are introduced with breathless astonishment to the world's greatest amusement park, "The City of Pleasure," and to its creators—Carpentaria the Magnificent, and his partner and enemy, the ponderous Josephus Ilam. The two magnates are pursued in a balloon by a reporter of American-like enterprise who cuts the rope, but are saved by Carpentaria's quickness of wit. Then we see Carpentaria in his glory, leading his famous band, and witness the amazing attempt made upon his life. Last, but not least, the reader comes face to face with Ilam's terrible and masterful mother. All is told with the tireless verve and unflagging high spirits which characterize Arnold Bennett at his best.

PART I.—CARPENTARIA.

"CARPENTARIA!"

One of the three richly-uniformed officials who were in charge of the captive balloon, destined to be a leading attraction of the City of Pleasure, murmured this name warningly to his companions, as if to advise them that the moment had arrived for them to mind their p's and q's. And each man looked cautiously through the tail of his eye at a striking figure which was approaching through crowds of people to the enclosure. The figure was tall and had red hair and a masterful face, and it was clothed in a blue suit that set off the red hair to perfection. Over the wicket of the enclosure a small sign had been hung:

"CITY OF PLEASURE

"PRESIDENT: Josephus Ilam.

"MANAGING AND MUSICAL DIRECTOR: Charles Carpentaria.

"Balloon Ascents every half hour after 3 o'clock. Height of a thousand feet guaranteed. Seats, half a crown, including field glasses."

The sign was slightly askew, and the approaching figure tapped it into position, and then entered the enclosure.

"Good afternoon," it said, "Everything ready?"

"'D afternoon, Mr. Carpentaria," said the head balloonist respectfully. "Yes, sir."

The three men with considerable ostentation busied themselves among ropes, while a young man in gold-rimmed spectacles gazed with sudden selfconsciousness into the far distance, just as if he had that very instant discovered something there that demanded the whole of his attention.

"Going up, sir?" inquired the head balloonist.

"Yes," replied Carpentaria. "Mr. Ilam and I are going up together. We have time, haven't we? It's only half-past 2."

"Yes, sir."

Carpentaria examined the vast balloon, which was trembling and swaying and tugging with that aspiration towards heaven and the infinite so characteristic of well-filled balloons. He ignored the young man in spectacles.

"Where's the parachutist?" Carpentaria demanded.

A parachutist was to give eclat to the first public ascent of the silken monster by dropping from it into the Thames or somewhere else. His apparatus hung beneath the great circular car.

"He'll be here before 3, sir," said the head balloonist.

"He's been here once, sir," added the second balloonist, anxious to prove to himself that he also had the right to converse with the mighty Carpentaria.

A few seconds later the august president arrived. Mr. Josephus Ilam was tall, like his partner, but much stouter. He had, indeed, almost the inflated appearance which one observes constantly in the drivers of brewers' drays; even his fingers bulged. His age was 50, ten years more than that of Carpentaria, and it was probably ten years since he had seen his own feet. Finally, he was clean shaven, with areas of blue on his chin and cheeks like the sea on a map, and his hair—what remained of it—seemed to be hesitating between black and gray.

"What's the matter?" he asked of Carpentaria.

"Oh, I thought I would just like to make the first ascent with you alone," Carpentaria answered and added, smiling, "I have something to show you up there."

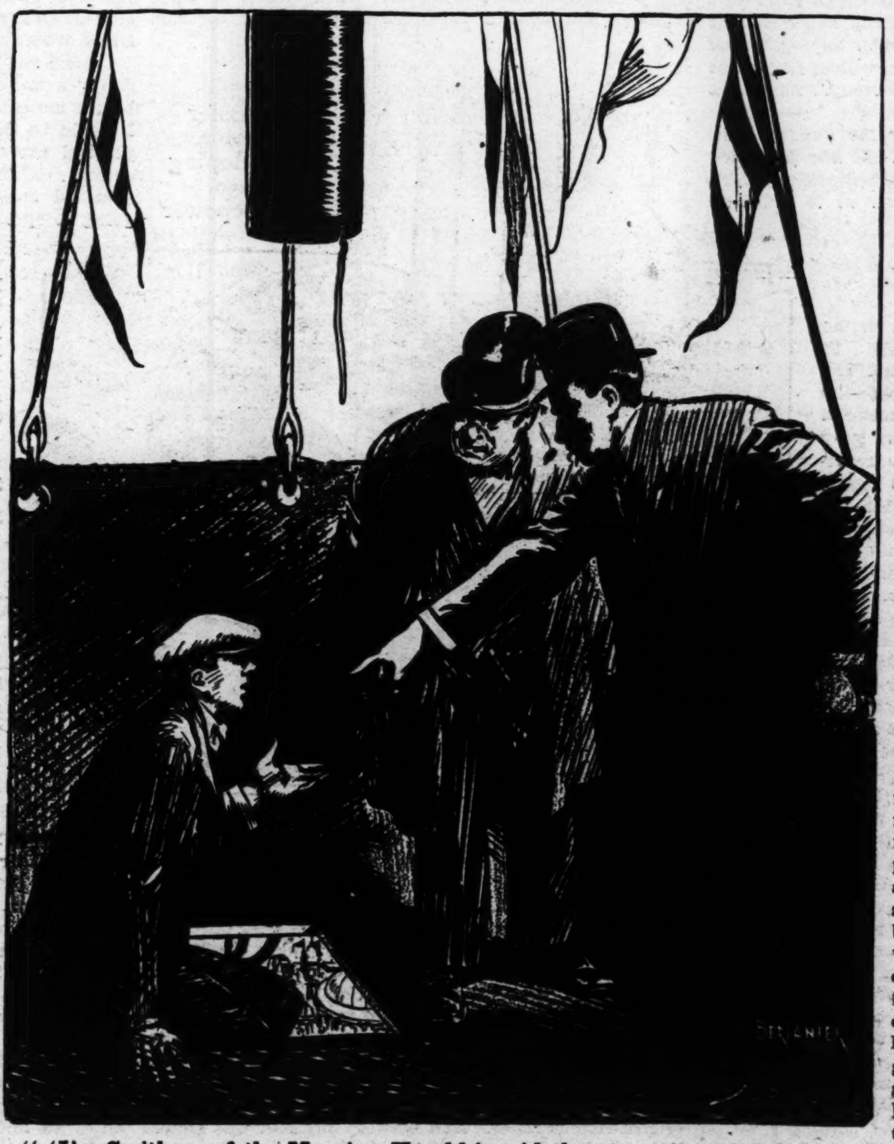
His hand indicated the firmament, and his peculiar smile indicated that he took Ilam's consent for granted.

Ilam sighed obesely, and agreed. He did not care to argue before members of the staff. Nevertheless, the fultility of ascending to the skies on this, the opening day, when the colossal organism of the show cried aloud for continual supervision on earth, was sufficiently clear to his mind. He climbed gingerly over the edge of the wickerwork car, which had a circumference of thirty feet, with a protected aperture in the middle, and Carpentaria followed him.

"Let go," said Carpentaria, gleefully. "Let go!" he repeated with impatience, when the balloon was arrested at a height of about ten feet.

"Right, sir," responded briskly the head balloonist. There appeared to have been some altercation between the balloonists.

The day was the first of May, but the London spring had chosen to be capricious and unseasonable. Instead of the snow and frost and east wind which almost invariably accompany what is termed, with ferocious irony, the merry month, there was strong, brilliant sunshine and a perfect calm. The sun glinted and glittered on the upper surfaces of the balloon, but, of course, the voyagers could not perceive that. They, in fact, perceived nothing except that the entire world was gradually falling away from them. The balloon had ceased to shiver; it stood as firm as consols, while the City of Pleasure sank and sank, and the upturned faces of more than fifty thousand spectators grew tinier and tinier.



"'I'm Smithers of the Morning Herald,' said the young man brightly."

It would be interesting and certainly instructive to unfold some of the many mysteries and minor dramas which had diversified the history of the making of the City of Pleasure, from the time when Carpentaria, having conceived the idea of the thing, found the necessary millionaire in the person of Josephus Ilam, to the hurried and tumultuous eve of the opening day; but these are unconnected with the present recital. It needs only to remind the reader of the City's geography. Towards the lower left-hand corner of any map of London not later than 1905, may be observed a large, nearly empty space in the form of an inverted letter "U." This space is bounded everywhere, except across the bottom, by the Thames. It is indeed a peninsula made by an extraordinary curve of the Thames, and Barnes Common connects it with the mainland of the parish of Putney. Its dimensions are little short of a mile either way, and yet, although Hammersmith Bridge joins to Hammersmith at the top, it was almost uninhabited, save for the houses which lined Bridge Road and a scattering of houses in Lonsdale Road and the short streets between Lonsdale Road and the reservoir near the bridge. The contrast was violent; on the north side of the Thames the crowded populousness of Hammersmith, and on the south side—well, possibly four people to the acre.

Ilam and Carpentaria, with Ilam's money, bought or leased the whole of the middle part of the peninsula—over three hundred acres—with a glorious half-mile frontage to the Thames on the east side. They would have acquired all the earth as far as Barnes Common but for the fact that the monomaniacs of the Ranelagh Club Golf Course could not be induced to part with their links, even when offered a fantastic number of thousand pounds per hole. They obtained the closing of the Bridge Road, which cut the peninsula downwards into two halves, and the omnibus traffic between Hammersmith and Barnes was diverted to Lonsdale Road—not without terrific diplomacy, and pitched battles in columns of newspapers and in Local Government offices. They pulled down every house in Bridge Road, thus breaking up some seventy presumably happy English homes, and then they started upon the erection of the City of Pleasure, which they intended to be, and which all the world now admits to be, the most gigantic enterprise of amusement that Europe has ever seen.

As the balloon rose the general conformation of the City of Pleasure became visible. Running almost north and south from Hammersmith Bridge was the Central Way, the splendid private thoroughfare which had superseded Bridge Road. It was a hundred feet wide, and its surface was treated with westrumite, and a service of gaily colored cable cars flashed along it in either direction, between the north and the south entrances of the City. It was lined with multifarious buildings, all painted cream—the theater, the variety theater, the concert hall, the circus, the panorama, the lecture hall, the menagerie, the art gallery, the story-tellers' hall, the dancing rooms, restaurants, cafes and bars, and those numerous shops for the sale of useless and expensive souvenirs without which the happiness of no Briton on a holiday is complete. The footpaths, 20 feet wide, were roofed with glass, and between the footpaths and the roadway came two rows of trees which were industriously taking advantage of the weather to put forth their verdure. Footpaths and road were thronged with people, and the street was made gay, not only by the toilettes and sunshades of women, but also by processions of elephants, camels and other wildfowl, bearing children of all ages in charge of gorgeous Indians and Ethiops. From every roof floated great crimson flags with the legend in gold: "City of Pleasure. President: Ilam; Director: Carpentaria." Add to this combined effect the music of bands and the sunshine, and do not forget the virgin creaminess of the elaborate architecture, and you will be able to form a notion of the spectacle offered by the esplanade upon which Ilam and Carpentaria looked down.

Midway between the north and south entrances, the Central Way expanded itself into a circular place, with a twenty-jetted bronze fountain in the middle. To the west was the facade of what was called the Exposition Palace, an enormous quadrangular building, containing a huge covered court which, with its balconies, would hold twenty thousand people on wet days. The galleries of the palace were devoted to an exhibition of everything that related to woman, from high-heeled shoes to thrones; it was astonishing how many things did relate to woman. North of the Exposition Palace stretched out the Amusements Park, where people looped the loop, shot the chute, wheeled the wheel, switched the switchback, etc.; and here was the balloon enclosure. South of the palace lay the Sports Fields, where a cricket match was progressing.

Finally, and most important of all, to the east of the circular place in Central Way rose the impressive entrance to the Oriental Gardens, the pride of Ilam and Carpentaria. The Oriental Gardens occupied the entire eastern side of the City, and they sloped down to the Thames. They formed over a hundred acres of gardens, wood and pleasaunce, laid out with formal magnificence. Flowers bloomed there in defiance of seasons. On every hand the eye was met by vistas of trees and shrubs, and by lawns and statues, and lakes and fountains. In the middle was Carpentaria's own special bandstand. A terrace, two thousand five hundred feet long, bordered the river, and from the terrace jutted out a pier at which steamers were unloading visitors.

CHAPTER II.—Interviewed.

THE occupants of the balloon could see everything. They saw the debarkation from the steamers; they saw the unending crowd of doll-like persons thrown up out of the ground by the new Tube at the south end of Hammersmith Bridge; they saw the heavy persistent stream of vehicles and pedestrians over the bridge; they saw the trains approaching Barnes on the Southwestern Railway; they saw the struggles for admittance at all the gates of the City; they even saw flocks of people streaming Cityward along the Barnes High Street and the Lower Richmond. It was not for nothing that advertisements of the City of Pleasure had filled one solid page of every daily paper in London, and many in the provinces, for a week past. Visitors were now entering the city at the rate of seventy thousand an hour, at a shilling a head.

There was a gentle tug beneath the car. The thousand feet of rope had been paid out, and the balloon hung motionless.

Then a faint noise, something between the clackling of musketry and the surge of waves on a pebbly beach, ascended from the City.

"They're cheering," said Josephus Ilam. "What for?"

"Cheering us, of course," answered Carpentaria excitedly. "Isn't it immense?"

"Immense?" said Ilam heavily. "It's hot. What did you want to show me up here?"

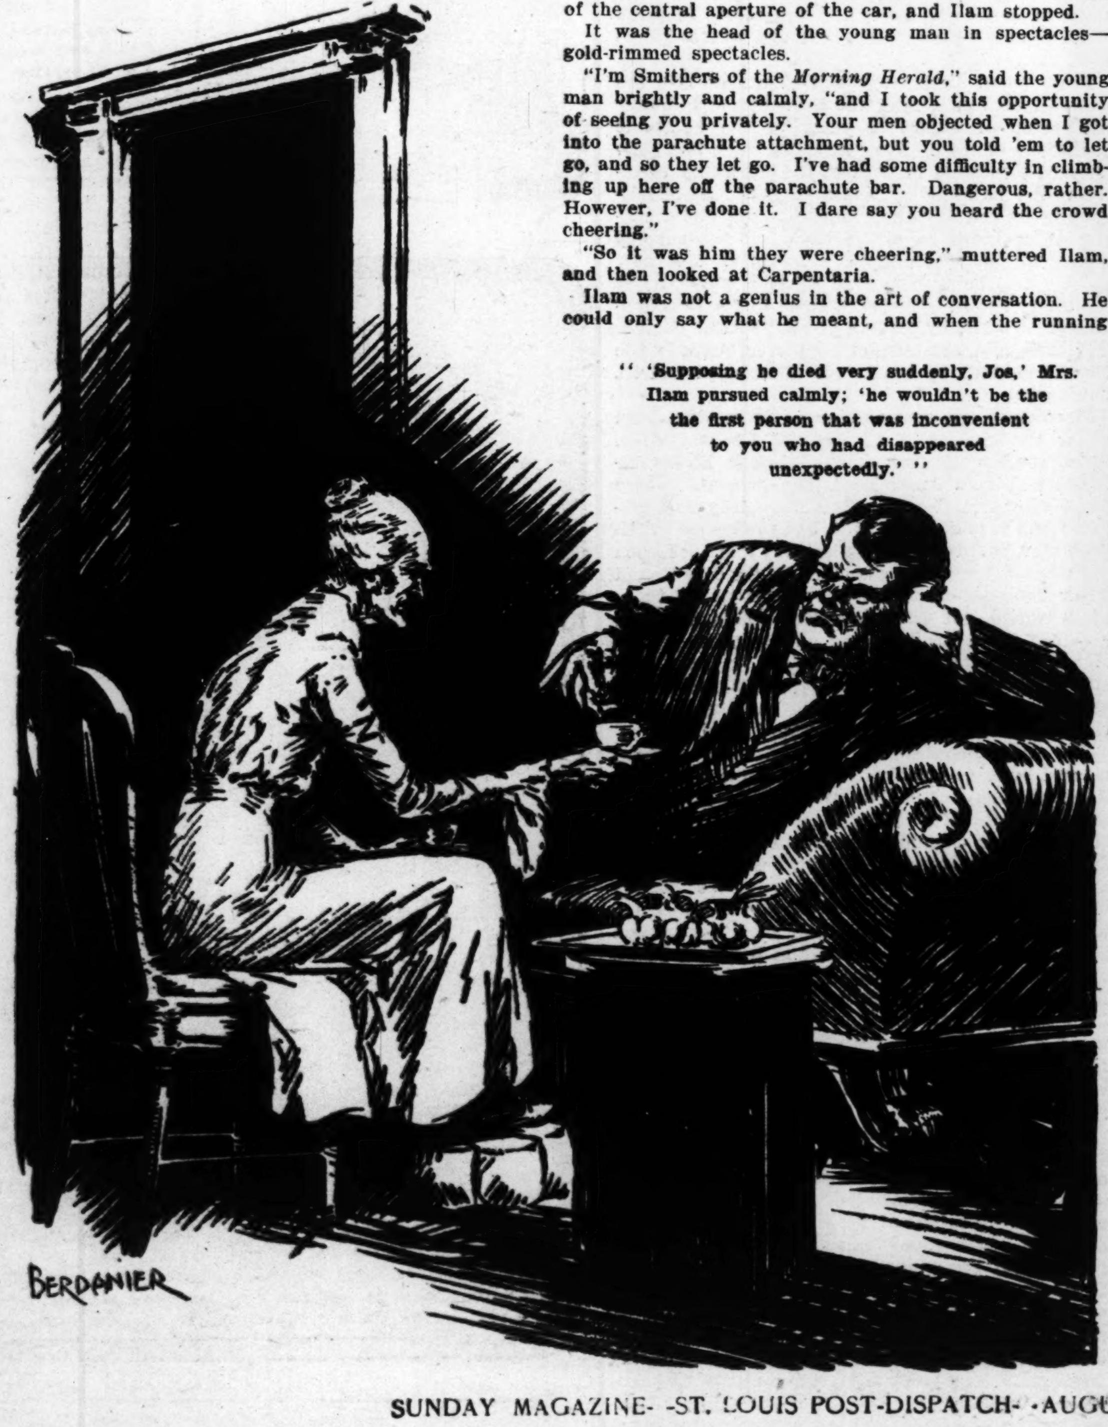
"That!" exclaimed Carpentaria, pointing below to the City with a superb gesture. "And that!" he added passionately, pointing with another gesture to the whole of London, which lay spread out with all its towers and steeples and its blankets of smoke, tremendous and interminable to the east. "That is our prey," he said, "our food."

And he began to sing the Toreador song from "Carmen," exultantly launching the notes into the sky.

"Mr. Carpentaria," said Josephus Ilam, with unexpected bitterness, "is this your idea of a joke? Bringing me up here to see London and our show, as if I didn't know London and our show like my pocket!"

Ilam's concealed hatred of Carpentaria, which had been slowly growing for more than a year, as a fire spreads secretly in the hold of a ship, seemed to spurt out a swift tongue of flame in the acrimony of his tone. Carpentaria was startled. Even then, in a sudden flash of illumination, he grasped to a certain extent the import of Ilam's attitude towards him, but he did not grasp it fully. How should he?

"Why," he said to himself, "I believe the old johnny dislikes me! What on earth for?" He could not understand all Ilam's reasons. "Pity!" he reflected further. "If the managers of a show like this can't hit it off together, there may be trouble."



" 'Supposing he died very suddenly, Jos,' Mrs. Ilam pursued calmly; 'he wouldn't be the the first person that was inconvenient to you who had disappeared unexpectedly.' "

In which supposition he was infinitely more right than he imagined.

He balanced himself lightly on the edge of the car, his left leg dangling, and seized one of the field glasses which hung secured by thin steel chains round the inside of the wicker parapet, and putting it to his eyes, he gazed down at the Oriental Gardens. He must have seen something there that profoundly interested him, for the glasses remained glued to his eyes for a long time.

"I repeat," said Ilam firmly, standing up, "is this your idea of a joke?"

He was close to Carpentaria, and his glance was vicious.

"My friend," murmured Carpentaria, dropping the glasses. "What's the matter with you is that you aren't an artist, not a bit of one. You are an excellent fellow, with a splendid head for figures, and I respect you enormously, but you haven't the artistic sense. If you had you would share the thrill which I feel as I survey our creation and that London over there. You would appreciate why I brought you up here."

"I'm a business man—a plain business man, that's what I am," said Ilam. "I've never pretended to be an artist, and I don't want to be an artist. Let me tell you that I ought to be in the advertisement department, and not wasting my time up here, Mr. Carpentaria."

"My dear sir," said Carpentaria hastily, "accept my apologies. Let us descend at once."

"And while I'm about it," pursued Ilam unheedingly—his irritation was like a stone rolling down a hill—"while I'm about it, I'll point out that your objection to having advertisements on the walls of the restaurants is fatuous."

"But, my dear Ilam," Carpentaria protested, "people don't care to have to read advertisements while they're at their meals. It puts them off. We must think of our patrons. And, besides, it's so inarti"——

"Rubbish!" said Ilam. "One way and another these ads would be worth a hundred a week to us."

"Well, and what's a hundred a week?"

"It's the interest on a hundred and twenty thousand pounds," Ilam replied vivaciously. "And there's another thing. It would be much better if you employed more time in inspection instead of rehearsing and conducting your precious band. Any fool can conduct a band. Give me a stick and I'd do it myself. But inspection"——

"My precious band!" stammered Carpentaria, aghast.

His very soul was laid low; and considering that Carpentaria's Band had been famous in the capitals of two continents for twelve years at least, it was not surprising that his soul should be laid low by this terrible phrase.

"Yes," said Ilam. "I've had enough of it." His shoulder touched Carpentaria's, and his eyes—little, like a pig's—shot arrows of light. "Supposing I shoved you over? I should have the concern to myself then, and no foolish interference."

He twisted his face into a grim laugh.

"You have a sense of humor, after all, Ilam," responded gaily the man on the edge of the car, fingering his long red mustache, and he, too, laughed, but he got down from his perch.

"I'd just like you to comprehend"—— Ilam began again.

It was the head of the young man in spectacles—gold-rimmed spectacles.

"I'm Smithers of the Morning Herald," said the young man brightly and calmly, "and I took this opportunity of seeing you privately. Your men objected when I got into the parachute attachment, but you told 'em to let go, and so they let go. I've had some difficulty in climbing up here off the parachute bar. Dangerous, rather. However, I've done it. I dare say you heard the crowd cheering."

"So it was him they were cheering," muttered Ilam, and then looked at Carpentaria.

Ilam was not a genius in the art of conversation. He could only say what he meant, and when the running of the City of Pleasure demanded the art of conversation, he relied on Carpentaria, even if he was furious with him.

"What's the game?" asked Carpentaria.

"Well," said Smithers politely, "don't you think I deserve an interview?"

"We will answer any reasonable questions you care to put to us, on one condition."

"Name it," snapped Smithers.

"I will name it afterwards," said Carpentaria, looking at Ilam.

"All right," sighed Smithers, "I agree, whatever it is."

"You look like an honorable man. I shall trust you," Carpentaria remarked.

"Why have you gone and called this concern the City of Pleasure?"

"Because it is the City of Pleasure," growled Ilam.

"Yes. But it seems rather a fancy name, doesn't it? —rather too poetical, highfalutin?"

"That's merely because you journalists never have any imagination," Carpentaria explained. "You aren't used to this name yet. It was you journalists who cried out that the Crystal Palace was a too poetical and highfalutin name for that glass wigwam over there"—and he pointed to the twin towers of Sydenham in the distance—"but you've got used to it, and you admit now that it is the Crystal Palace and couldn't be anything else."

Smithers laughed.

"Good!" said he. "All that's nothing. Let me come to the core of the apple. Do you expect this thing to pay? Do you really mean it to pay, or is it only a millionaire's lark? You know all the experts are saying it can't pay."

"Can't it?" ejaculated Ilam.

"We shall take fifteen thousand pounds at the gates today," said Carpentaria. "The highest attendance in any one day at the Paris Exposition of 1900 was six hundred thousand. Do you imagine we can't equal that? We shall surpass it, sir. Wait for our August fetes. Wait for our Congress of Trade Unions in September, and you will see! The average total attendance at the last three Paris exhibitions has been forty-five millions. We hope to reach fifty millions. But suppose we only reach forty millions. That means two million pounds in gates alone; and let me remind you that the minor activities of this show are self-supporting. Why, the Chicago Exhibition made a profit of nearly a million and a half dollars. Do you suppose we can't beat that, with a city of six million people at our doors, and the millions of Lancashire and Yorkshire within four hours of us?"

"But Chicago was State-aided," Mr. Smithers ventured.

"State-aided!" cried Ilam. "Chicago was the worst-managed show in the history of shows, except St. Louis. If the State came to me I should—I should"——

"Offer it a penny to go away and play in the next street." Carpentaria finished his sentence for him.

"You interest me extremely," said the journalist.

"Now for my condition," said Carpentaria.

"Let's have it," said the journalist.

"You asked us to talk to you and we have talked to you. The condition is that you regard all you have heard up here as strictly confidential—mind, all! You tell no one; you print nothing. Remember, you are an honorable man."

"But this is farcical," Smithers expostulated.

"Not at all," said Carpentaria sweetly. "Do you imagine that because you have an inordinate amount of cheek, a family and two penniless aunts, we are going to break the habits of a lifetime? For myself, I have never been interviewed."

"Is this your last word?" the journalist demanded.

"It is," said Carpentaria.

"Very well," said the journalist, and his head disappeared.

"Let us descend," said Ilam, savagely pleased. And he waved the descent flag.

"We shan't descend just yet," the journalist informed them, popping up his head again.

"And pray, why not?"

"Because I've cut the rope."

Carpentaria, always calm when art was not concerned, tore a fragment of paper from an envelope in his pocket and threw it out of the car. It sank away rapidly from the balloon. Moreover, it was evident, even to the eye, that their distance from the earth was vastly increasing.

"I withdraw my promise now this moment," said the journalist, climbing carefully into the car. "Everything that you say henceforward will be printed. We shall have quite an exciting trip. We may even get to France. Anyhow, I shall have a clinking column for Monday's Herald. You evidently hadn't quite appreciated what the new journalism is."

Then there was silence in the mounting balloon.

Ilam bent his malevolent eyes longingly upon the disappearing scene below. The glory of the sunshine was nothing to him. He wanted to be in the advertisement department, arranging future contracts for spaces on the programs. He reflected that it was another of the mad caprices of Carpentaria that had got him into this grotesque scrape. And he was so angry that he forgot even to think of the danger to which he was exposed.

"So here we are!" said the journalist. "And you can't do anything!"

CHAPTER III.—Inspiration.

"PERMIT me to say, Mr. Smithers," Carpentaria remarked at last, "that your knavery is futile. The resources of civilization are not yet exhausted. We are, in fact, already descending."

He held tightly in his hand the end of a rope, which reached up high above them and was lost in the mass of cordage. He had opened the valve to its widest.

"Don't venture to move," he added, "or Mr. Ilam will break your head for you. This affair will cost us nothing but a few thousand cubic feet of gas at a half-a-crown a thousand. What it will cost you, I shall have to consider."

And without saying anything further for the moment, he unloosed a very thin cable that was wound round a windlass in the car itself, and, tying a white flag at the end of it, he began to lower it rapidly over the edge of the car.

Thanks to the perfect calm which reigned, the balloon was still well over the Amusements Park.

Soon the voyagers could perceive the excited movements of the crowds below, and then the white flag

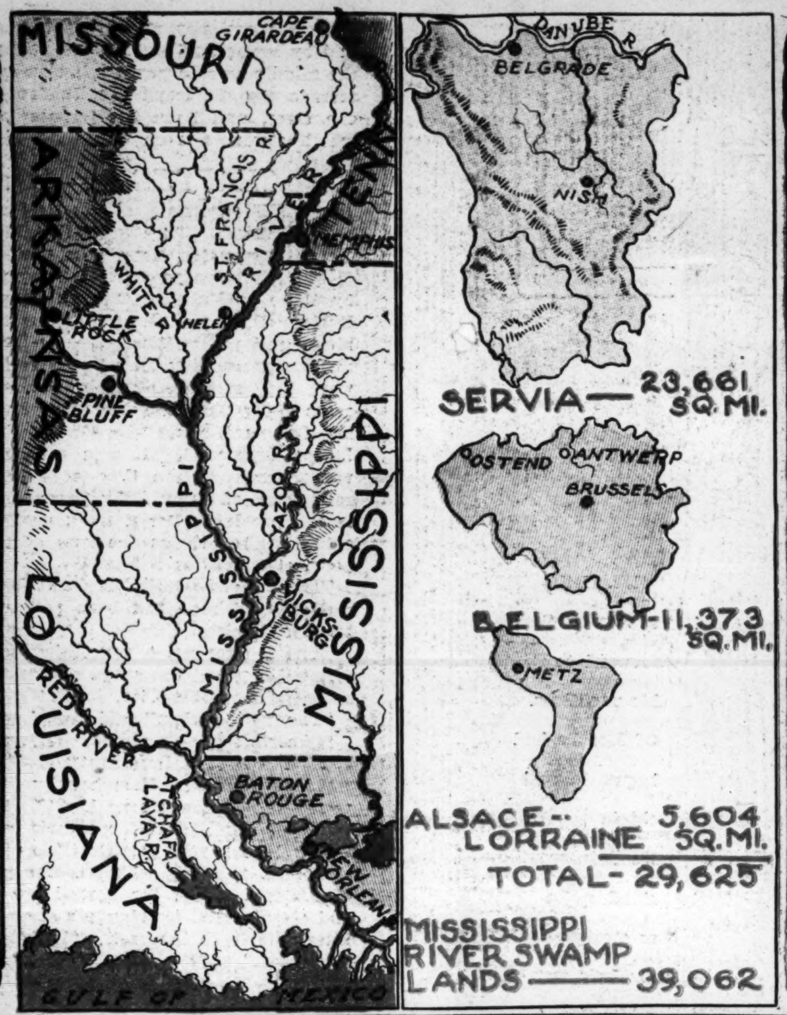
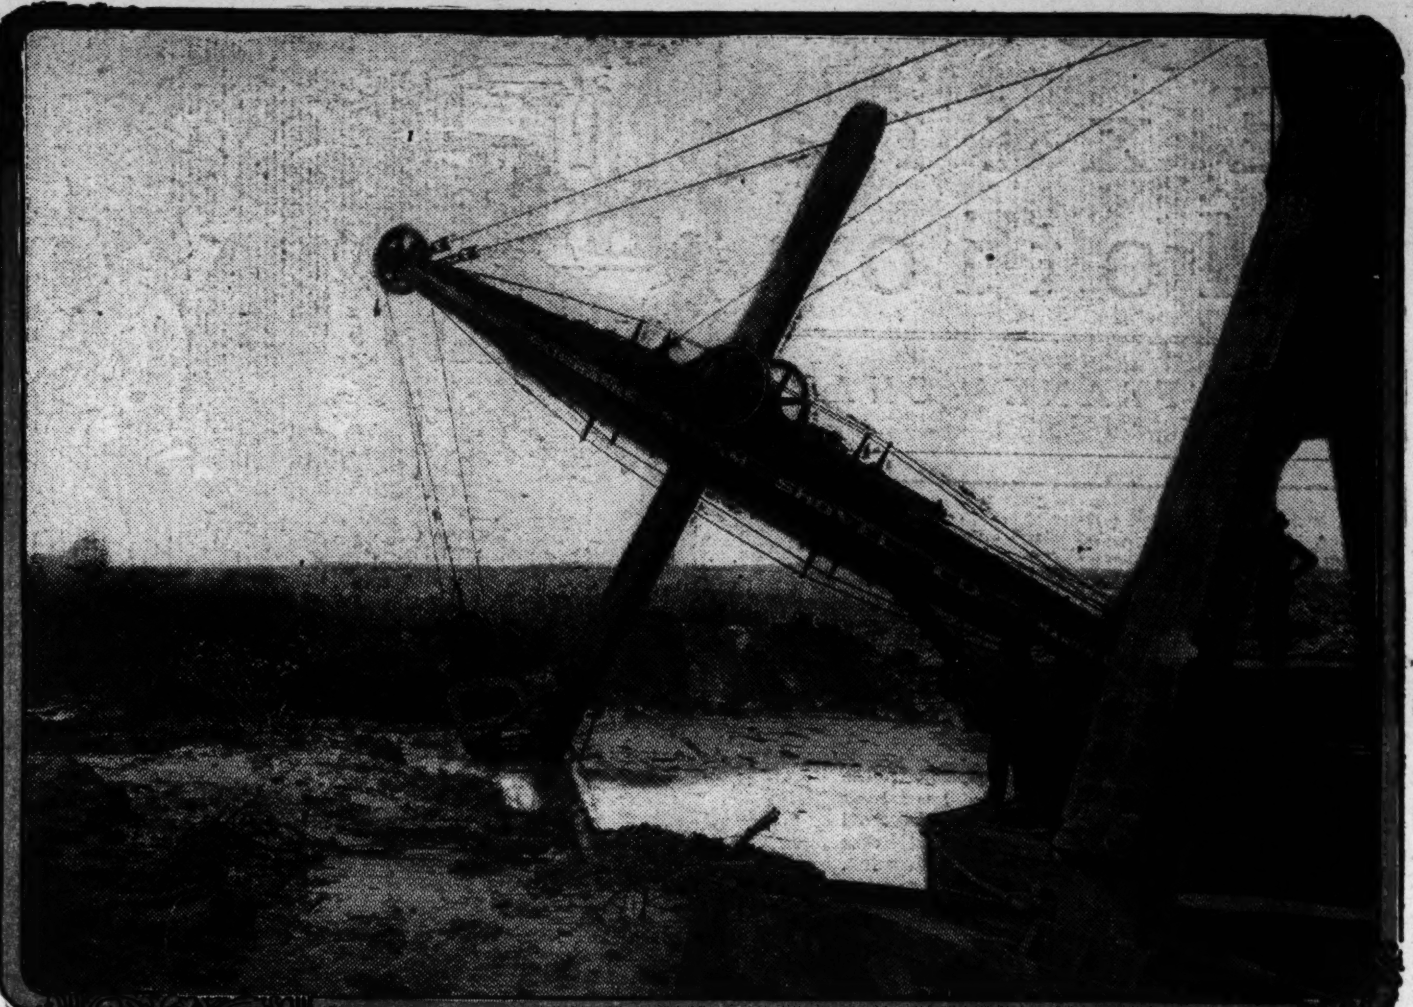
Empire for 2,000,000 Farmers Rising From Mississippi Valley Swamps

BEFORE THE DREDGERS GET TO WORK. DRIFTWOOD LEFT IN BED OF SMALL STREAM WHEN SPRING FLOODS RECEDED.





STEAM DREDGE AT WORK MAKING A CLEAR CHANNEL.

Levee and drainage operations steadily redeeming 39,000 square miles of alluvial soil between mouth of Ohio River and Gulf of Mexico—Total cost of vast project estimated as equal to that of five days of Europe's warfare, but it will recover territory as extensive as Belgium, Servia and Alsace-Lorraine together.

WITH Missouri as pioneer in the enterprise, the Mississippi Valley, purely by the arts of peace, at a nominal expense and without the cost of a life, is gradually annexing a rich empire of 25,000,000 acres—a territory equalling in extent Alsace-Lorraine, Belgium and Servia put together, for the conquest of which Europe has poured out a deluge of treasure and blood.

This new Mississippi empire consists of swamp and overflow lands between the mouth of the Ohio River and the Gulf of Mexico, which comprise 39,062 square miles, or slightly less than the entire area of the State of Kentucky. Projects for reclaiming to agricultural uses this great expanse of alluvial soil are either completed, under way or planned. The work is divided into two grand divisions—the building of levees, to which it is sought to give new impetus and system through the Ransdell-Humphreys bill, now pending in Congress; and drainage, which is wholly the undertaking of private enterprise, following the example set by adventurous Missourians in New Madrid County in 1888.

Alsace-Lorraine has been the prize of two great wars within half a century. Yet its area is only 5604 squares miles, or about one-seventh of the territory involved in the reclamation projects. Belgium, for the sake of which England went to war and for the conquest and defense of which hundreds of thousands of lives have been spent, has only 11,373 square miles. Servia has but 23,661 square miles; and Galicia, the stake of a year's desperate battling of three great empires, possesses only 30,307 square miles. The Mississippi Valley lands subject to reclamation are as spacious as Belgium, Holland and Alsace-Lorraine added together, with a State the size of Massachusetts thrown in for good measure.

This territory is divided by the Mississippi River Commission into several "basins," for which "valleys" would perhaps be a better term. Farthest to the north is St. Francois Basin, extending from the foothills of the Ozarks in Southeast Missouri to the White River in Arkansas. It has a frontage on the Mississippi River of 376 miles.

Parallel with this on the eastern side of the Mississippi is a narrow strip of lowland in Kentucky and Tennessee, 21 miles in length. Beginning at Memphis the valley widens out into the great Yazoo Basin, which runs south from Memphis on the east side of the river 331 miles to Vicksburg, and has a maximum width of more than 50 miles.

On the opposite side of the Mississippi, paralleling the Yazoo Basin in part, is the Tensas Basin, extending from the Arkansas River to the Red River, with a river front length of 350 miles and a maximum width of 50 miles. South of the Tensas Basin lies the Atchafalaya Basin, running from the Red River to the Gulf of Mexico, with a frontage on the Mississippi of 485 miles and a maximum width of more than 100 miles.

All of this land was once considered worse than worthless. Much of it stood under water the year around, and it was surrendered to the possession of the mosquito, the cypress tree and huge flocks of ducks and herons. Even today, in some of its remotest parts, deer, bear and wolves range wild.

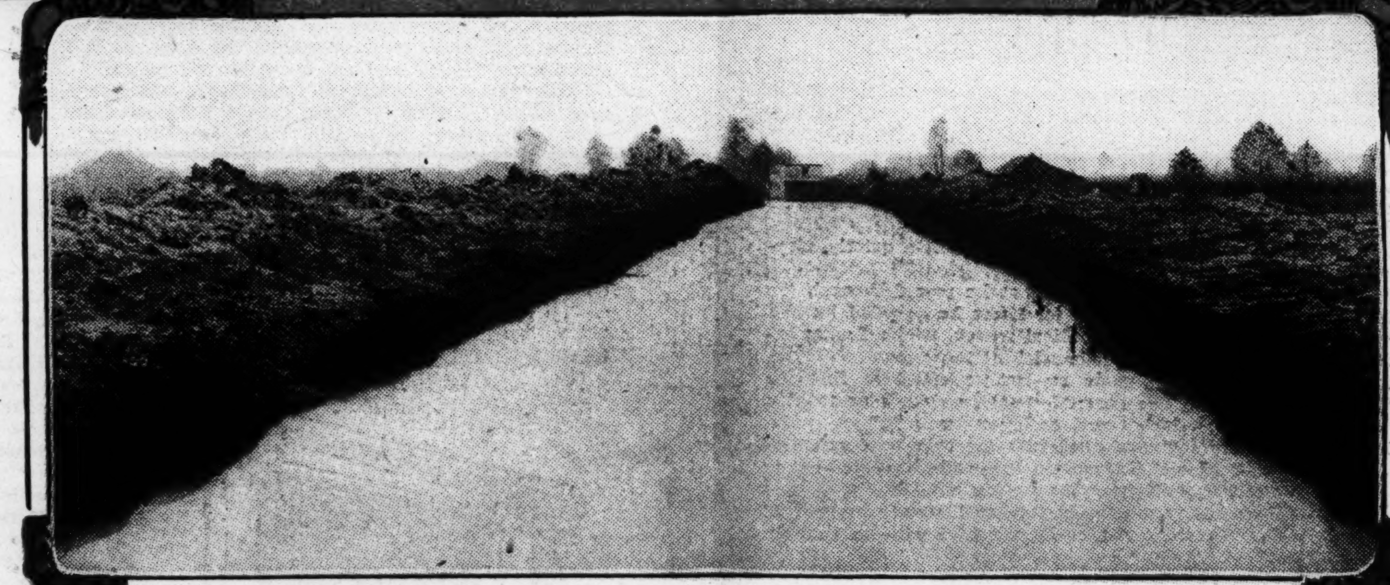
From small beginnings has arisen at last the imperial idea of adding the drenched and dreary wilderness of 25,000,000 acres to the habitable dominions of man. For years the work has gone forward piecemeal in both of the necessary directions—the building of levees to hold the Mississippi in its bed during flood season, and the dredging of drainage canals to carry off the surplus waters of the Mississippi's tributaries. But now the work is being conceived of as a whole, as is strikingly shown by support given to the Ransdell-Humphreys bill by leaders of all political parties, and civic and commercial bodies throughout the district drained by the Lower Mississippi and its tributaries.

Heretofore the construction of levees has been under the control of 13 District Levee Boards, acting under statutes of the various States affected and each under local management. There have, therefore, been various standards and policies; and it is declared that, had the levees which gave way during the floods of 1912 and 1913 been built according to the standard of the Mississippi River Commission, the disastrous deluges of those years would not have occurred. This standard provides for a levee having an eight-foot crown, side slopes with a grade of 3 to 1 on both land and river sides, with braquettes wherever required; and having a height of three feet above the estimate of the highest confined flood.

For the unsystematic and inchoate district method of levee construction and supervision, the Ransdell-Humphreys bill proposes to substitute control by the War Department through the Mississippi River Commission, supported by adequate appropriations from the Federal Treasury. The amount sought is $60,000,000, at the rate of $5,000,000 a year. Only $4,000,000 of this is to be applied annually to levee building; the other million is to be used for improvements in the river itself.

Of the total 1563 miles of levee required for the complete reclamation project, 1493 miles have been constructed. Of this the Federal Government, since 1912, has built 7,577,474 cubic yards. It is calculated that the entire levee construction, when completed, will embody 244,957,762 cubic yards.

If levee building represents peaceful defensive warfare—in the trenches, as it were—drainage may be likened to an offensive campaign, a sort of drive into the Poland of swamps. This campaign had its origin 27 years ago, when a lumber company, with many misgivings, undertook to deepen and straighten the channel of the Little River in New Madrid County, Mo. The stream was tortuous and its bed was filled with silt, decaying logs and other debris. Every spring it overflowed its banks and drowned the adjoining country, leaving pools and ponds to grow stagnant after it retired.



DRAINAGE DITCH COMPLETED

UNIMPROVED LAND, FORMERLY A SWAMP

MISSOURI THE PIONEER.

THE origin of the grand plan to make the submerged lands of the Mississippi Valley available for agriculture had its being in Southeast Missouri 27 years ago, so far as the essential drainage feature is concerned. A lumber corporation, as a speculation, bought up a quantity of "wet lands" at a small price, drained and cleared them, and placed them on the market as farm lands at a profit.

Their success attracted capital, chiefly in St. Louis. Since then nearly 1,000,000 acres have been redeemed in Missouri, and projects involving as great an expanse are under way. More than 2000 miles of drainage canals and ditches have been dredged in this State. Missouri's example has been followed by Arkansas, which has drainage enterprises under way as far south as the Louisiana border. Kentucky, Tennessee and Mississippi are expected to follow suit.

The company was to be paid in "wet lands," or land then under water, valued on a basis of $1.25 an acre. It took several years to complete the work. By a canal the length of the river was shortened from 80 miles to 40, and a channel 40 feet wide and 15 feet deep was provided—ample to carry away much of the water collected by the Little River at its highest floods.

These pioneers recouped their expenses so satisfactorily by the sale of the reclaimed lands at advanced prices that St. Louis capital was attracted to drainage work as a new field of investment. Thousands and thousands of acres of "wet" lands were bought up for an average of $2.50 an acre, drained with ditches and canals, cleared of their thick growths of valuable cypress wood, and turned into farms on which flourish crops of corn and wheat.

During the last 15 years more than 2000 miles of drainage ditches have been dredged in the eight Southeast Missouri counties of Cape Girardeau, Scott, Mississippi, New Madrid, Pemiscot, Dunklin, Stoddard and Butler; and approximately 1000 additional miles are under contract. Nearly 1,000,000 acres in this section have been redeemed from the swamps and converted into productive farm lands.

Missouri has proved itself the most energetic of all the states in drainage work; but Arkansas has taken it up with zeal, and drainage projects are in hand as far south as the Louisiana border. The progress of the work in a few years encourages observers to believe that in the near future this reclamation work will spread south through Louisiana to the Gulf, and also to the east side of the Mississippi River, in Tennessee and Mississippi.

Two great drainage projects now under way in Southeast Missouri will redeem another 1,000,000 acres of land at present occupied by marshes and swamps. The first is the Little River project, and the second is the St. John's Bayou project.

Contracts for dredging in the Little River enterprise have partly been let, on a basis of $5,000,000 as the estimated cost of the entire work. The territory to be drained is a valley 90 miles long and 10 miles wide, through which runs the Little River. This is a small stream having its source in the Ozarks, and its channel is insufficient to carry away the heavy rainfalls of the spring and autumn. Floods have covered the valley annually, and water has lain upon it for the greater part of the year. The proposed drainage system will relieve it of overflow water, empty the ponds, lakes and brakes and turn the entire tract into arable land of black loam soil.

The bold engineering salient of the project is its aim of controlling the water pouring down from an Ozark watershed of 1200 square miles, discharging it into the valley through two rivers and eight creeks, and then swinging this stream around the foot of the Ozark Uplift by means of a diversion canal 30 miles long, which will empty into the Mississippi River south of Cape Girardeau—nearly 500 miles north of the place where, in the ordinary course of nature, the water would enter the Mississippi. An area of 544,000 acres will be drained.

Within rifle shot of this work is the St. John's Bayou District, which presents a problem somewhat different. In the Little River project the need is merely to provide channels by which surplus storm water can be conducted to the Mississippi River. In the other district it will be necessary first to build an adequate levee on the Mississippi River water front, and then carry the waters of two bayous, rejoicing in the dignified names of St. John and St. James, over the levee by artificial means. Pumping stations will be employed, together with gigantic siphons, such as are already in use at some places for lifting swamp water over the levees. Later a canal 30 miles long will be dredged to the main channel of the Little River project. This work will redeem to man's use more than 400,000 acres of land.

Unusual rises in land values have been recorded as a result of drainage work in Missouri; but these increases, of course, include the cost of the drainage work. One tract of land is said to have been sold 10 years ago for $5 an acre; after it was drained, cleared and improved, it sold again for $70 an acre; and last year it changed hands for the third time at a price declared to have been $150 an acre cash.

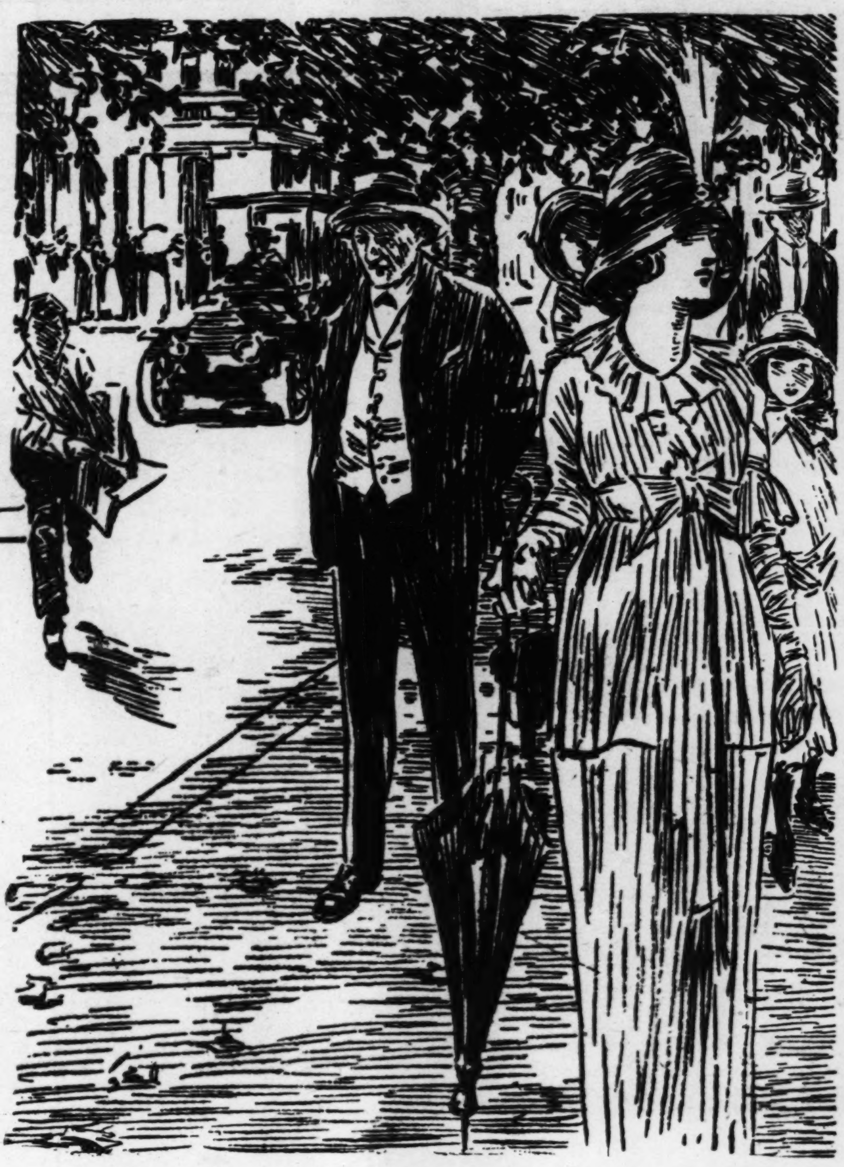
The method by which these public works is financed is an interesting one. The cost is assessed solely againest those who are benefited. The total cost of the work is estimated, and is assessed against adjacent land owners on a basis of 40-acre tracts. Against the total cost the County Court, as empowered by statute, issues bonds, running from 10 to 20 years at 6 per cent. To meet the interest charges and gradually to retire the principal, special drainage taxes are assessed against the beneficiaries and collected by the County Tax Collector.

In the Missouri counties where drainage projects have been carried out remarkable increases of population have resulted. In the last 10 years the population of New Madrid County has grown 73 per cent; that of Scott County, 71 per cent; Pemiscot, 61; Dunklin, 40; Butler and Mississippi, 23; Cape Girardeau, 14, and Stoddard, 13 per cent. The total increase has been about 50,000 persons.

Statisticians have estimated that, when all of the 25,000,000 acres of submerged lands in the Mississippi Valley are drained, they would afford 80-acre farms for 312,000 farmers, and homes for 2,000,000 persons. It is computed that, when completely under cultivation, they will add annually to the wealth of the nation $1,625,000,000. The total cost of annexing the entire area has been estimated at about $60,000,000, or approximately one-seventh of the cost of the Panama Canal. Thus the Southwest, by peaceful means, is preparing to increase its territories by an area as large as Belgium, Alsace-Lorraine and Servia put together, at the cost of a sum which the belligerents in the present war have expended every five days since the conflict began.

The Extra Motion

BY FRANK CHASE



"Mr. Babb always looked forward to his vacations. Of late he had begun to feel old in spirit. He didn't stand quite as straight and his hair was whitening."

AT 2 o'clock Decius Babb displayed the "Closed" sign at paying window A of the Mammoth National Bank. He removed the currency till from the horseshoe counter at his right and placed it in a black trunk resting on a table desk in the rear of his cage. He locked the trunk, tried the cage gate behind him and walked toward the locked room at a pace which moved a flippant teller to exclaim:

"Guess the old man's in a hurry today."

Mr. Babb was a year or two under 60, and to the underlings who set the driving pace of a large bank he was an old man. In point of service he was old indeed, having worked in the Mammoth for nearly forty years. And of late he had begun to feel old in spirit. He didn't stand quite as straight and his hair was whitening. His hands trembled a little, specially on Saturdays, when payments were heavy.

As Mr. Babb was shedding his black office coat he overheard snatches of a conversation which was being carried on in another aisle of the locker room.

"He's getting pretty slow and shaky—ought to resign. By and by he'll overpay someone, and then—clever swindler could"——

Mr. Babb did not move until the voices had left the room. Of course they had referred to him. It was the average slander of those who wait for promotion. He had been ranking paying teller for a score of years and now younger blood was after his job. One of the voices Mr Babb had recognized as that of Arthur Killum, one of the spare tellers, who was next in line for a regular place.

It was a hot July day and Mr. Babb ordered a seasonable lunch of graham crackers and milk. But he didn't feel hungry and ate only a few spoonfuls. He could still hear that nasty remark of Killum's: "He's getting pretty slow and shaky." And Arthur Killum was going to take over his cash! He must hurry back and see that everything was right. As senior paying teller, paying "clearing" and the big drafts, Decius Babb carried a working balance of about $300,000. Of course, it would come out right, as usual. Still, there was always a chance. Anyway, he ought to straighten out his cage a bit, for tomorrow he would begin his annual vacation and the spare teller would pay at window A during his absence.

Mr. Babb always looked forward to his vacations. He usually saw a bit of the country, and returned to work moderately tanned. But conditions would be different this year. He almost wished his vacation were over. It would be hard to derive much pleasure from it, knowing each day that his substitute was undoubtedly trying to root him out of a job.

The veteran teller returned to the bank and methodically listed the day's payments. Next he inventoried his cash and found it apparently correct. As had been his practice for 20 years, he rechecked the inventory and again ran over his additions.

After proving his work, Mr. Babb began to feel easier in mind. The "old man" might be slowing up a bit, he reflected, but he was still as accurate as the best of them. Not even backbiting Arthur Killum could gainsay that.

With a return of confidence in himself, Mr. Babb half resolved to tell Killum what he had overheard in the locker room and demand an apology. He fussed around the paying cage, putting everything in precise order and conjecturing the possible dialogue.

At 4 o'clock Martin, who paid in cage B, wished Mr. Babb a pleasant vacation and went home. The other counter men left soon afterward, and most of them paused to counsel the senior teller to take care of himself while he was away.

The floor of the big banking room was practically deserted when Arthur Killum appeared at the gate of cage A and announced that he was ready to take over Mr. Babb's cash. He exhibited a memorandum signed by the cashier authorizing the transfer.

Arthur Killum was a year or two past 30, tall and dark and quick-motioned. He apologized for the delay, stating that he had been straightening out cage — to turn it back to the regular teller, who would return from his vacation the following morning.

Mr. Babb was coldly courteous. He had decided to postpone his reprimand until the substitute teller had receipted for $300,000. Mr. Babb surrendered the key to the black trunk. Killum unlocked it and moved it across one end of the table desk to obtain more space to pile its contents. Excepting the broken straps of currency, the coins in the change machine, and a few rolls of gold eagles, the money was in straps of 100 bills each. Killum's long fingers ran through the straps of money with astonishing speed. Regularly every 30 seconds he counted a strip, initialed it and reached for another, like a well-adjusted machine.

There were about ninety full straps of various denominations and three unbroken packages from the Treasurer of the United States, each containing 4000 new bills. The broken straps made a pile about a foot high, and Killum counted them last. It was 6 o'clock when he finished with the paper and began on the rolls of gold coins.

From his stool near the paying window Mr. Babb watched the younger man work and inwardly envied his efficency. There was a fascinating rhythm to his movements.

First came a thump as he broke the wrapper on the desk behind the trunk; a twist of the wrist and the wrapper was emptied. The left palm came to the rim of the desk; a clink of metal and it held yellow coins, tumbled in by four sweeps of the right hand. The left fingers closed over the coins and they lay a milled bar, ready for the wrapper which the right hand had reached for. His arms went away together and the yellow bar was encircled with a cylinder of paper. Nimble fingers folded over the ends in the same motion. The left hand reached for an uncounted roll to repeat the operation. The spare teller handled money wonderfully fast, and he seemed sure of himself.

"An' so ye're off for a vacation tomorrow, Mr. Babb," said a jovial voice at the paying teller's window. Mr. Babb turned and grasped the strong hand of Jerry Ryan, extended under the window grating.

"I saw ye working late and thought I'd wish ye good luck," said Ryan, who had been a patrolman before he became a night watchman in the Mammoth.

"Seeing the young man clink off the gold pieces," continued Ryan reminiscently, "reminds me of a bricklayin' scheme I had sprung on me before I got on the force. I was young meself, then, and quick wid me hands—like Mr. Killum here. Do ye mind the swing of 'im now—every time his arm moves he does something. 'Twas the same idea—that bricklayin' scheme. I mind that a man was expected to pick up a brick wid one hand an' dig for his mortar wid the other—an' never look at either of 'em. Ye was supposed to be looking halfways bechune them—or thereabouts.

"Trainin' your digits, they called it then—that was twenty-odd years since. An' now it's the Taylor system—at least for the goat who does the work. The college boys, who learn how to do it out of a book, call it motion study. Anyway, it's all from the same basket. A crooked poker player cud trim the both of 'em, I'm thinkin'."

Killum soon finished with the gold coin and he began replacing the money in the trunk, handling the packages with his left hand and checking off the items on Mr. Babb's inventory with his right. Presently he turned and stared blankly at Mr. Babb, who still occupied his stool near the paying window.

"I don't find the 24 thousand-dollar bills which you show on your list," he said.

Mr. Babb was not greatly disturbed. He did not even quit his stool. The strap of thousand-dollar bills was there all right. He had counted it twice since lunch time. Here was a chance to take the young man down a notch.

"Guess you've been a little careless, Mr. Killum," he said serenely. "The money's there all right. Better check it off again—a little slower this time, maybe. Try the old man's pace for a while."

Stifling an angry retort, Killum turned to the trunk again. He removed the money once more and placed it in stacks by denominations on the table, carefully searching through each pile for the missing 24 certificates.

"There isn't a thousand-dollar bill in the lot, Mr. Babb," he announced finally. "You can see for yourself."

"I have seen!" snapped the elder man. "The strap of big bills is there, I can tell you. I had 54 of them this morning and I paid clearing 30. There are 24 left. I've counted them twice since lunch time."

"You're mistaken, Mr. Babb," replied Killum indulgently. "Wasn't it yesterday you counted them?"

"Yesterday!" choked Mr. Babb, jumping to his feet in a sudden rage. "Do you think I'm getting as shaky as that, you—you backbiting hypocrite? There were 24 thousand-dollar bills in my cash when you entered this cage. If they are missing, well—I shall know where to look for them!"

"I'll make you prove that," said Killum quietly, stepping back from the table.

Mr. Babb's hands trembled as he pawed through the stacks of money. With an effort he steadied himself and made a more methodical search, which finally extended the length and breadth of the cage.

Arthur Killum made no further effort to find the missing bills. He sneered openly, as much as to say: "The money isn't there, and you know it."

Suddenly Killum looked into the muzzle of an automatic pistol, which a moment before had reposed on its accustomed shelf near the paying window.

"Turn out your pockets, Arthur Killum!" grated Mr. Babb. "Turn' em out, or I'll shoot. I will—so help me God!"

Arthur Killum did not move a muscle.

"What kind of a game is this?" he asked coolly. "You can't shift this thing onto me. Why, man, you know better! You've been right here"——

"You've tricked me!" cried Mr. Babb. "The money's in your pockets! Let me see! Out with them! I'll kill you!"

The paying teller had lashed himself into a shrieking rage. His pistol hand—in fact, his whole body—was trembling with passion. Killum ducked forward and grasped the infuriated man's wrist. The bullet flattened against the balcony railing and dropped down just outside the cage door. Decius Babb struggled feebly for a moment and then collapsed.

Watchman Jerry Ryan was pulling the hook of a time clock in the basement when Mr. Babb began his tirade. He rushed up a flight of marble stairs in time to hear the final threat preceding the pistol shot. He bolted to the window of cage A and saw Arthur Killum supporting the elder man into a chair near the table desk. The pistol lay on the marble tiling behind him.

"Anybody hurt?" asked Ryan.

"No, I think not," said Killum. "Mr. Babb—accidentally fired his gun. I was taking over his cash, you know. It's $24,000 short. Things look bad to me, Jerry. Jump to the telephone and get hold of the cashier. If he isn't home, try the Union Club."

"All right, Jerry; call Mr. Dee," whispered the paying teller. He was still breathing hard. Presently he rose feebly and opened the black trunk.

"Must be somewhere," he repeated. "I know it's here." He dully fingered over the straps of paper money, mumbling the amounts and occasionally referring to his abstract of the day's work.

Mr. Babb was thus engaged when the cashier jumped out of a taxicab in front of the Mammoth Bank and hastened to the gate of cage A. Mr. Dee was 40 and aggressive. He was short and clear-headed.

"What's the trouble here, Mr. Killum?" he asked crisply, as the latter opened the cage gate.

"Babb's cash is short $24,000—I was to take it over tonight, you know."

"That seems incredible. What's your story, Mr. Babb?"

"I don't know what to say, Mr. Dee. My cash was right at 3 o'clock. That is, I went over it twice—by inventory. Of course, I didn't count the full straps. But I remember distinctly a strap of large bills. Really, if my cash is short—— It simply can't be. I rechecked my figures, as usual. Perhaps you'll run through the stuff, Mr. Dee. My eyes seem to be playing tricks on me."

The Extra Motion (Continued)

Mr. Dee's careful inventory verified Killum's figures. Decius Babb's cash was $24,000 short!

The old gentleman appeared to be crushed by the announcement. He paced back and forth in the cage, conducting a frenzied and aimless search, which would have been ridiculous under other circumstances. He lifted a small inkstand and looked underneath. He explored a litter of papers in the one drawer of the table desk, and soberly peered under Mr. Dee's hat.

"My cash was right at 3 o'clock," he mumbled doggedly, glancing at Killum. "The money is here somewhere. There were 24 bills. I counted them twice."

The cashier locked the trunk and took the key. Killum dangled his legs from the desk top, looking at the floor.

"Perhaps you would like to search me, Mr. Dee," he said. "In fact, I would like to have you do so for my own protection. I wish to prove that the strap of bills which Mr. Babb claims to have lost is not in my possession."

He removed his coat and vest and passed them to the cashier, who, after a moment's hesitation, proceeded to empty the pockets. They yielded a cigar case, a fountain pen, a pocketbook containing six $1 bills and a handful of matches and small change—nothing else.

As if to clear himself beyond suspicion, Killum removed his other garments down to knee drawers and socks. He even jokingly offered to shed them.

While Killum was dressing, the cashier leaned over the black trunk, thinking deeply. He was a warm-hearted man. And Decius Babb was an old and trusted teller. But duty demanded that he consider fact and exclude sentiment. He turned at length and told the paying teller as kindly as he could:

"I'm afraid I must notify your bondsmen, Mr. Babb. It is quite possible that they will demand your arrest. I'm sorry, Babb—sorry and puzzled I can't fathom it. You couldn't have cashed a big check and failed to record it. It isn't reasonable. But the money's gone. And we'll have a special directors' meeting tomorrow and the deuce of a row. They'll bombard you with fool questions, and—you're in bad. It'll be a tough session. Better go home and try to get a night's rest. Something may turn up yet, I suppose. Perhaps it's in you're figures somewhere. Or you may have overpaid clearing."

Decius Babb tried to return the cashier's hopeful smile, but it was a sorry effort. He was getting old and the future looked dark. He paused at the gate and looked back uncertainly, as if he feared they would detain him.

"I'll be at home when you want me," he said brokenly.

"Mr. Killum, you will pay at window A until further notice," he said. "I'll certify that your cash is short the amount claimed. Hello, what's this?"

The cashier picked up the flattened bullet and examined it with interest.

"I'm afraid Mr. Babb thought of suicide when I found the shortage," said Killum easily. "I knocked up his arm just in time. The bullet struck the balcony railing and dropped down."

"Good Lord, I didn't dream—— That makes the case look different. Wish I'd known of this before. But it doesn't greatly matter, I suppose. I'll have someone keep an eye on him. I wonder if the old man has been playing the market. Suicide, eh? And Decius Babb—of all men!"

Jerry Ryan had been loafing near window A and he overheard Killum's explanation of the pistol shot and the cashier's reply. And he didn't like the tone of either one. Being Irish and impulsive, he thought of stepping to the window and telling Killum that he lied, on general principles. But he reflected that such a procedure would hardly restore the missing gold certificates, and so he concluded to bide his time. He conned over the matter on his rounds.

Mr. Babb had shouted, "I'll kill you!" just before the shot was fired. Therefore he had not been thinking of suicide. But why had Killum lied about it? To make out that Mr. Babb knew of the shortage and feared discovery, probably. Even so, what did that prove? Mr. Ryan scratched his head over the puzzle. He walked back to paying window A and looked inside. A green-shaded light was burning above the table desk. The black trunk was in the vault, no doubt, and Killum had gone home. Jerry walked round to the gate of cage A and entered. As is often the case with night watchmen, he was talking to himself.

"Whin I was poundin' the paves the headquarters men used to act over a murder on occasion, to try and find out who pulled the trigger. It must be a divertin' pastime. Maybe I'll take a crack at it meself."

Jerry placed a filing case on an end of the table desk and seated himself to the right of it. "That's the black trunk," said he, "and I'm Mr. Killum, sitting here. Mr. Babb sits over there on the stool at me left. Jerry, you're at the window. What do ye see?"

Mr. Ryan executed a slow pantomime, as of a man counting money.

"That's straight Taylor system so far," he remarked. "Every move according to the book—nine of 'em. Now, Jerry, ye are still at the window, mind that. An' what did he do next, ye bonehead? Oh, yes—he reached ahead of himself this way; and then he did this—oh, come now, Jerry, there's an extra motion in that. Ye don't need it at all. But he did the same, says Jerry. An' the crafty eyes of him were bint on his work. Every move he made counted for something; ye can gamble on that. Now what would I be doing wid that extra motion? Jerry, ye are an honest man; there is no guile in ye. However, ye may as well move yer arm and see where yer hand goes. Oh, hell! I'm ashamed of ye, Jerry. That's whin he pulled the trick! An' ye lookin' straight at him wid yer two eyes." The last sentence was scornful.

Watchman Ryan sprang to his feet and hurried to register a half-hourly police call, already five minutes overdue. Next he walked to the vault room and scanned the time-lock records by aid of the electric flashlight which he carried. He was particularly interested in vault No. 6, where the tellers kept their cash trunks over night.

"Closed at 8:07," he said to himself. "An' the trunk was in cage A at 8:05. Which means that the crafty divil decided to wait until tomorrow and finish up the game at his leisure. We'll now proceed to upset the young man's calcula-ations."

Decius Babb arose at 7, wearily wrestling with the problem which he had struggled with on his pillow at midnight. He had not slept at all. Through the night hours the events of the preceding afternoon had revolved in his mind, a monotonous circle. Worry and the loss of sleep dulled his faculties. He shaved himself by force of habit, mentally reviewing payments through window A made the day before. He dreaded breakfast and wondered if he could put off telling his family for another day.

The house was bustling with the business of packing trunks. They had planned to start for the country on an afternoon train. What excuse could he give for remaining behind? For, of course, he must be at home when the summons came. The telephone was ringing now. Perhaps that was the call. Mr. Babb hurried below and answered. Mr. Dee was calling. He requested the paying teller to report at the bank as soon as possible. "Come directly to my office," he concluded.

Mr. Babb entered the cashier's office, dreading the ordeal which lay ahead of him. He was considerably surprised to find that none of the directors awaited him. And Mr. Dee's greeting puzzled him still more. The cashier got up from his desk and met the veteran paying teller with a warm handclasp.

"Old friends are best, Babb," he said, smiling.

"Thank you, Mr. Dee," faltered the elder man, "But—I don't understand"——

"Here comes a man who is wiser than both of us—Mr. Jerry Ryan, who routed me out in the middle of the night to listen to an intensive discourse on motion study."

"'Tis a fascinating subject," smiled Jerry, "an' ye were a good listener."

"Really, gentlemen," interposed Mr. Babb, "I am wholly bewildered. Is this in some way connected with my cash, the shortage?"

"Your cash wasn't short at all, Babb. That was what Jerry tried to prove to me with his motion study. His arguments were so convincing that I hung around until the time locks went off, and then we pulled out your black trunk and investigated. We found the 24 thousand-dollar bills safe inside."

"But that seems impossible. I can hardly believe it!" exclaimed Mr. Babb. "I searched through the trunk a dozen times. You inventoried the money yourself, sir, and"——

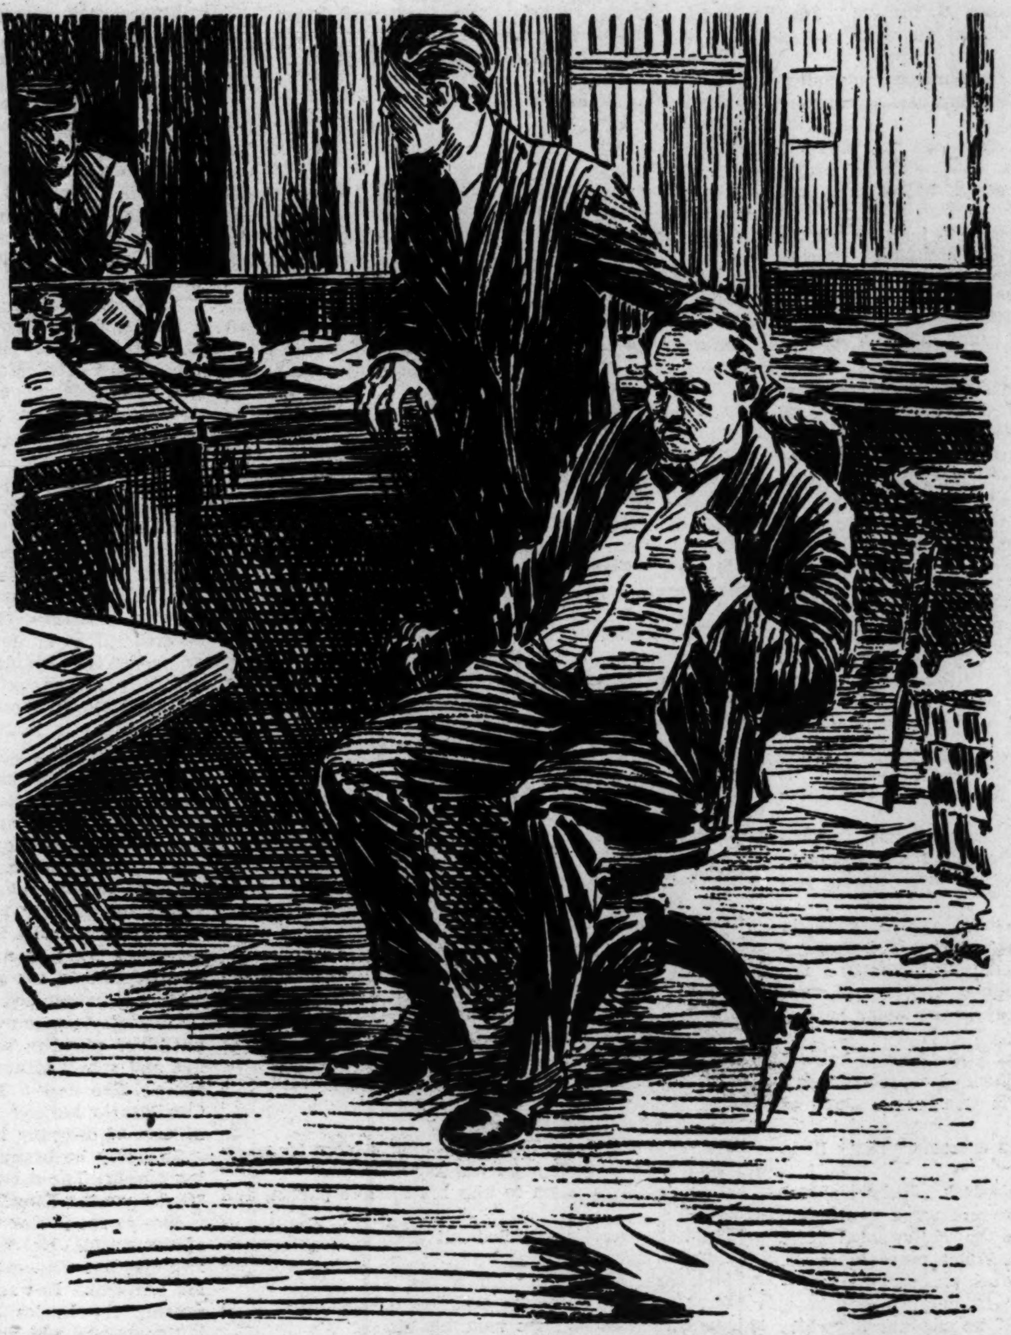
"Oh, yes, I know. We were both simpletons, and Killum is a slippery crook. I'm glad we've caught him. He doesn't know of the night's developments, and no doubt will be reporting for work soon. While we are waiting for him I'm going to ask Jerry to repeat his discourse on motion study and incidentally to show us how we were fooled."

The cashier produced duplicate keys and led the way to Mr. Babb's cage. It still lacked half hour of opening time and only a few men were at their desks. Jerry placed the black trunk across the end of the table desk as Killum had done the previous evening. Mr. Dee unlocked it.

"For the purpose of illustration," said Jerry impressively, with the trunk's contents on the table before him, "we'll suppose that I'm Mr. Killum takin' over yer cash, Mr. Babb. Ye had better stand close behind me. From the stool ye can't see me hand at all. An' 'tis hands that steal things—mind that. Only the stealin' requires an extra motion. Sure, if I hadn't laid bricks I wouldn't 'ave noticed it meself. But to get back to me illustra-ation: Here is a roll of gold coins. I break the wrapper wid a clip on the table. That's one motion. I empty it and scuff the coins into me left hand—which makes six motions. Though I'm hardly as graceful as Mr. Killum, I admit. Now I juggle the coins into a stack in me left hand while I reach for a new wrapper wid me right. So far the deal is off the top of the pack. But Mr. Killum reached twice, do ye mind that? An' the second time he reached for a thousand-dollar bill. It was folded across the middle, as ye see, or rather as ye did not see, because ye were over there on the stool, wid me blabbin' at ye through the window. Well, the extra motion places the folded bill on the top side—which is also the inside—of the coin wrapper—my big fingers were made for bricks, rather than this job—but anyway that's how the trick was done. When Mr. Dee opened the trunk an hour ago he found 24 thousand-dollar bills inside the same number of coin wrappers. An' 'tis God's mercy there were no more of 'em. He'd have swiped the bank."

Mr. Babb's eyes were wet with glad tears as he laughingly said: "You have a wonderful head on you, Jerry. I thank you more than I can say. Next time I promise to remember that ''tis hands that steal things.'"

"It has just come to me," said Mr. Dee, "why the fox left the birds in the wrappers overnight. He expected to exchange them for smaller denominations and cover his tracks in the course of today's business. But we will save him the trouble, eh, Babb? Take care of yourself on your vacation. Window A is waiting for you when you return. And, Jerry, you spotted Mr. Killum's extra motion and deserve a reward. You have been promoted to the bank's detective force at 500 more a year, and you may now make your first arrest. Your prospective prisoner has just stepped out of the locker room. He is coming this way."



"'Anybody hurt?' asked Ryan. 'No, I think not,' said Killum. 'Mr. Babb—accidentally fired his gun. I was taking over his cash, you know. Its twenty-four thousand short.'"

Aerial Post to Train Army Aviators

BY the institution of an aerial mail service, the War Department, it is reported, is planning to co-operate with the Postoffice Department in the training of aviators.

In both senses, supporters of the plan argue that the service should be established. There are many places in the Rocky Mountains, separated by a few miles, air-line, which require a long trip for mail to go by the roads. From Santa Maria to Shale, Cal., the distance is 50 miles, air-line, and both towns have important oil interests. It now takes two days to get a letter from one to the other.

But even a stronger impulse may come for the establishment of such a service as a training school for aviators, who are needed in greater numbers, and who would in this have something like a serious and responsible trial. It is the policy of the War Department to offer training to all national guardsmen who would become aviators, and to all citizens, up to the capacity of the war office plant.

Up to date all mail-carrying tests have been made by volunteers at their own expense and risk. The education of aviators is expected to increase, and the advocates of the air method for mail see an opening to establish their project. Edison has already, in his capacity of adviser to the Navy Department, directed attention to the improvement and extension of aerial service. With this, the probability of the establishment of an aerial service increases.

The City of Pleasure

touched earth, and was seized by the eager hands of the balloonists, and slowly the balloon, in a condition bordering on collapse, subsided to the ground with the gentleness of a fatigued British workman falling asleep. And great cheers, for the second time that day, filled the air.

"You might have been sure," said Carpentaria, when they were ten feet off safety, "that in a show like this due precautions would be taken against accidents and idiots!"

Smithers, nearly as limp as the balloon, made no reply. Josephus Ilam glared over him.

"It's nothing, it's nothing!" cried Carpentaria to the staff, who besieged the party with questions. "Fill her up as quick as you can, attach the rope, and get ready for your public. Don't bother me!"

And he leapt out of the car and was running, literally running away, when Ilam called out:

"Hi! wait a minute. What's to be done with this maniac here?" And Ilam muttered to himself, "Why does he run away like that? What's his next caprice going to be?"

"I was forgetting," said Carpentaria, stopping. "Young man"—and he addressed Smithers severely—"follow me, and no nonsense!"

Smithers obediently followed, pushing after Carpentaria through the curious crowds. They came at length to the Central Way, and Carpentaria halted and took Smithers by the coat collar.

"Listen!" said he. "We're much too busy to trouble with police court proceedings. And besides, there's your brace of penniless aunts. Cut! Clear out! Hook it! I rather admire you. See?"

Smithers saw, and vanished.

Carpentaria hastened on, rushing across the Central Way, scarcely avoiding cable cars, and so, by a private passage between two shops, into the Oriental Gardens. Now, just within the Oriental Gardens, on either side of the grand entrance to them, were two spacious houses, built in the bungalow style, with enclosed gardens of their own. One of these was occupied by Josephus Ilam and his mother, and the other by Carpentaria and his half-sister, Juliette d'Avray. Between the house of Ilam and the back of the shops in Central Way was one of those small waste trifles of ground which often get left in planning a vast exhibition or show. It was skilfully hidden from the view of the public by wooden palisades, and in this palisading was a door, painted so as to escape detection. The plot of ground, about three yards by two, was already being utilized for lumber. Carpentaria entered by the door and shut it after him. A man—a middle-aged man, in a blue suit of rather shabby appearance—was seated on some planks. He started up, and then seemed to sway.

"What are you doing here?" Carpentaria curtly demanded.

"Look 'ere," said the man, swaying towards Carpentaria, "I'm aw ri'—you're aw ri'—eh? I'm a gemman. Come here to re'—rest. You leave me 'lone—I leave you 'lone. Stop, I give you my car'."

The man was obviously inebriated and Carpentaria was in no mood to spend precious minutes in diplomacy with a victim of Bacchus. He departed, shutting the door, and leaving the victim fumbling with a card case. He meant to send someone to eject the man, but he forgot.

"Say!" cried the drunkard after him, "how ju know I wazz 'ere? Mus' been up in a b'loon—I repea'—b'loon."

In another moment Carpentaria was in the study of his bungalow, panting.

"Quick!" he said to Juliette, an extremely natty little woman of thirty or so.

He sank into the chair before his desk. Juliette placed some music paper in front of him and put a pen in his hand, and he scrawled across the top of the page: "The Balloon Lullaby," and began to scribble notes—quavers, crochets, semibreves and some other strange wonders—all over the page.

"It came to me all of a sudden," he murmured, "while we were up in the balloon."

"Don't talk, dear," said Juliette. "Write."

And he wrote.

When it was finished Carpentaria wiped his brow and drank a whisky and milk which Juliette had prepared for him. He sighed with content and exhaustion. The creative crisis was over.

"Play it," he ejaculated.

And Juliette sat down at the piano near the window overlooking the magnificent gardens, and played softly the two hundred and forty-seventh opus of Carpentaria.

"It is lovely," she said.

"Yes," he admitted. "It's a classy little thing. Came to me just like that!" He snapped his fingers.

"Your best ones always do," Juliette smiled.

"I'll have that performed this very night," he stated.

CHAPTER IV.—Mrs. Ilam.

SOMEWHAT later on the same afternoon, in the drawing room of the house opposite, Josephus Ilam was drinking tea with his mother. The aged Mrs. Ilam, who was very thin and not in the least tall—her son would have made a dozen of her—sat tremendously upright in her chair, while Josephus lolled his great bulk in angry attitudes on a sofa, near which the tea table had been placed. Mrs. Ilam wore widow's weeds, though it was many years since she had lost her husband, a man who had made a vast fortune out of soda water—in the days when soda water was soda water. She had a narrow, hard face, with intensely black eyes, and intensely white hair, and when she directed those eyes upon her son, it became instantly plain that her son was at once her idol and her slave. She lived solely for this man of fifty, who had scarcely ever left her side. For her this mass of fifteen stone four was still a young child, needing watchful care and constant advice. Certainly she spoilt him; but, just as certainly, he went in awe of her. The fact that by judicious investments in hotel and public house property he had more than doubled the fortune which his father left, did not at all improve his standing with the antique dame; it only made him in her view a clever boy with financial leanings. Moreover, every penny of the Ilam fortune was legally hers during her lifetime. Even Ilam's share in the City of Pleasure was hers. When Carpentaria had discovered him, he had had to decide whether or not he should put more than a million pounds into the enterprise, and it was his mother who decided, who listened to everything, and then briefly told him that he would be a fool to leave the thing alone.

"Well," she said, in her high quavering voice, as she passed him a cup of tea—the cup rattled on the saucer in her blue-veined hand—"so you are not getting on with Carpentaria? I was afraid you wouldn't."

"He won't listen to reason about the advertisments," said Ilam crossly, stirring his tea.

"No?"

"And he's absolutely mad about his music. He's spent ten hours in rehearsing these last two days. All the work, I've had to do myself."

"Indeed!"

"And then, to crown his exploits, he takes me up in the balloon, mother—wastes a solid hour."

"In the balloon!"

"And, after all, he lets that impudent journalist go free—absolutely free!"

"Jos," said his mother, "it's a wonder you're alive, my dear."

"It's a pity Carpentaria's alive," rejoined Ilam.

His mother's burning eyes met his.

"That's just what I've been thinking," she piped calmly.

Her son's gaze dropped.

"Since when?"

"Since you began grumbling about him, last week but one, my pet."

"He's no use now," Ilam grumbled. "We've carried out all his ideas, and it's simply a matter of business, and Carpentaria doesn't know the meaning of the word 'business.' Just think of his argument about those ads!"

"Never mind that, Jos," Mrs. Ilam put in.

"He's only in the way now," Jos proceeded gloomily.

"I suppose he wouldn't retire," Mrs. Ilam suggested.

"Anyway," said the mother, "you have the satisfaction of a very great success."

"Yes," growled Ilam. "And he gets half the profits. I've found all the money, and he hasn't found a cent. But he gets half the profits. What for? A few ideas—nothing else. He pretends to direct, but he'll direct nothing except his blessed band. And I reckon we shall clear a profit of ten thousand a week! Half of ten is five."

"He only gets half the profits as long as he lives, Jos," said Mrs. Ilam. "After that—nothing."

"Nothing," agreed Jos, biting cruelly into a hot scone. "But as long as he lives he's costing me, say, five thousand a week, besides worry."

"He mayn't live long," Mrs. Ilam ventured.

"No, but he may live fifty years."

"Supposing he died very suddenly, Jos," Mrs. Ilam pursued calmly; "he wouldn't be the first person that was inconvenient to you who had disappeared unexpectedly."

"Mother!" Ilam almost shouted, starting up.

"But would he?" Mrs. Ilam persisted.

"No, he wouldn't," muttered Josephus, and his voice trembled.

Mrs. Ilam blew out the spirit lamp under the kettle as though she was blowing out Carpentaria.

"I'm off," said Josephus nervously.

"Wait a moment, child. Ring the bell for me."

A servant entered.

"Bring me your master's knitted waistcoat," said Mrs. Ilam.

"But, mother, I shan't want it."

"Yes, you will, Jos. There's no month more treacherous than May. You'll put it on to please me."

He obeyed, bent down to kiss his terrible parent, and departed.

"Think it over," she called out after him.

Ilam stopped.

"And then, what about his sister?" he said.

CHAPTER V.—The Band.

THAT night the City of Pleasure was illuminated. Eighty thousand tiny electric lamps hanging in festoons from standard to standard lighted the Central Way alone; the facades of all the places of amusement were outlined in fire; the shops glittered; and the cable cars, as they flashed to and fro, bore the monogram I. C. in electricity on their foreheads. At 8 o'clock the thoroughfare was crowded with visitors, and the stream of arrivals was stronger than ever. In the superb restaurants, at all prices (no matter what the price, they were equally superb in decoration), five thousand diners were finishing five thousand dinners, their eyes undisturbed by the presence of advertisements on the walls. The theater, the music hall, the circus, the menagerie, the concerts, and the rest of the entertainments, were filling up. In the Amusements Park people shot down railways into water, slid down smooth slopes into mattresses, circled in great wheels, floated in the latest novelties of merry-go-rounds, ascended in the balloon, and practiced all the other devices for frittering away eternity, just as though night had not fallen. In the vast court of the Exposition Palace a band was swelling the strains of the newest waltzes to three stories of lounges and sitters at cafe tables, while within the interior of the building men and women wandered about examining the multifarious attractions of the Woman's Exhibition.

But the chief joy was the Oriental Gardens, wherein a multitude of over fifty thousand persons had gathered together. The Oriental Gardens were illuminated, but in a different manner from the Central Way. Chinese lanterns were suspended everywhere in the budding trees, giving the illusion of magic precocious flowers that had blossomed there in a single hour, in all the tints of the rainbow and many others entirely foreign to the rainbow.

The band stand alone was picked out in electricity. It blazed in the center of the gardens like a giant's crown, and, although yet empty, it formed the main object of attention. Overhead stretched a dark-blue sky, silvered with stars, and the wind had a warm and caressing quality which encouraged sightseers to expose themselves to it to such an extent that the fifteen cafes of the Oriental Gardens, some sheltered, some quite open, but each a center of light and laughter, were everyone crowded with guests. The four thousand chairs surrounding the band stand were occupied, and also the six thousand other chairs dispersed in various parts of the gardens. The murmur of conversation, the rustle of dresses, the tinkle of glasses, the rumor of uncountable footsteps, rose on the air. The faces of pretty women could be observed obscurely in the delicious gloom, and the glowing scarlet of cigars bobbed mysteriously about like a species of restless glow worms.

And everybody was conscious of the sensation of the extraordinary and amazing success of the great show. The evening papers had carried the news of the wonderful thing to each suburb of London. These papers gave from hour to hour the number of the persons who had passed the turnstiles, and calculated the number of tons of shillings that Ilam and Carpentaria would have to bank on Monday morning. But the principal thing that struck the evening papers was the complete readiness of the City of Pleasure. No detail of it was unfinished, and all agreed that this phenomenon stood unique in the history of the art of amusing immense crowds.

All felt that a new era of amusement enterprise had been ushered in by Ilam and Carpentaria, that everything was changed, and that in the future an enlightened and excessively exacting public would not be satisfied with what had pleased it in the past. And the owners of the old-fashioned resorts trembled in their shoes, and hated Ilam and Carpentaria, while the myriad patrons of Ilam and Carpentaria on that first day flattered themselves that they had personally assisted at the birth of the grand innovation, and thought how they would say to their grandchildren: "Yes, I was present at the opening of the City of Pleasure, and a marvelous affair it was," and so on, in the manner of grandparents.

All were expecting Carpentaria, the lion of the show. His band was due to perform from 8 o'clock to 10, and special bills, posted on the sides of the gilded band stand and in the cafes, announced: "Carpentaria's band will play the Balloon Lullaby, the latest composition of Carpentaria, composed this afternoon."

At 8 o'clock precisely Carpentaria faced the fifty thousand from his band stand, and, after having bowed elaborately thrice, turned to the band, and lifted the sacred stick.

It was a dramatic moment, the real inauguration of the City of Pleasure.

Cheers and hurrahs rolled in terrific volumes of sound across the gardens, and they did not cease; and people not acquainted with the fame and renown of Carpentaria perceived what it was to be a favorite of capitals, a leading star in the galaxy of stars that the public salutes and recognizes.

Carpentaria preserved the immobility of carven stone until the plaudits had ceased; they lased for exactly five and a half minutes. Consequently the concert was exactly five and a half minutes late in commencing. Carpentaria himself was never late, but his public had a habit of delaying him.

Suddenly he brought down his baton with a surprising shock. The carven stone had started into life, and "God Save the King" was under way.

Now to see Carpentaria conduct was one of the sights of the world. He conducted not merely with his hand and eye, but with the whole of his immortal frame and his uniform. It was said that he was capable of conducting the Eroica Symphony of Beethoven with his left foot—and who shall deny it? "God Save the King" was child's play to him. Moreover, he showed a certain reserve in handling it. He merely conducted it as though in conducting it he himself were literally saving the King. That was all. But with what snap, what dash, what chic, what splash and what magnificent presence of mind did he save the King! The applause was wild and ample.

The next item was "The City of Pleasure March," composed by Carpentaria. Indeed, Carpentaria conducted nothing but national hymns, his own compositions, and, as a superlative concession, Wagner and Beethoven. "The City of Pleasure" was in Carpentaria's finest style, and it was planned to give him the fullest scope in conducting it. He had already made it famous in a triumphal tour through the United States in the previous year. It began with the utmost possible volume of sound. touched earth, and was seized by the eager hands of the balloonists, and slowly the balloon, in a condition bordering on collapse, subsided to the ground with the gentleness of a fatigued British workman falling asleep. And great cheers, for the second time that day, filled the air.

"You might have been sure," said Carpentaria, when they were ten feet off safety, "that in a show like this due precautions would be taken against accidents and idiots!"

Smithers, nearly as limp as the balloon, made no reply. Josephus Ilam glared over him.

"It's nothing, it's nothing!" cried Carpentaria to the staff, who besieged the party with questions. "Fill her up as quick as you can, attach the rope, and get ready for your public. Don't bother me!"

And he leapt out of the car and was running, literally running away, when Ilam called out:

"Hi! wait a minute. What's to be done with this maniac here?" And Ilam muttered to himself, "Why does he run away like that? What's his next caprice going to be?"

"I was forgetting," said Carpentaria, stopping. "Young man"—and he addressed Smithers severely—"follow me, and no nonsense!"

Smithers obediently followed, pushing after Carpentaria through the curious crowds. They came at length to the Central Way, and Carpentaria halted and took Smithers by the coat collar.

"Listen!" said he. "We're much too busy to trouble with police court proceedings. And besides, there's your brace of penniless aunts. Cut! Clear out! Hook it! I rather admire you. See?"

Smithers saw, and vanished.

Carpentaria hastened on, rushing across the Central Way, scarcely avoiding cable cars, and so, by a private passage between two shops, into the Oriental Gardens. Now, just within the Oriental Gardens, on either side of the grand entrance to them, were two spacious houses, built in the bungalow style, with enclosed gardens of their own. One of these was occupied by Josephus Ilam and his mother, and the other by Carpentaria and his half-sister, Juliette d'Avray. Between the house of Ilam and the back of the shops in Central Way was one of those small waste trifles of ground which often get left in planning a vast exhibition or show. It was skilfully hidden from the view of the public by wooden palisades, and in this palisading was a door, painted so as to escape detection. The plot of ground, about three yards by two, was already being utilized for lumber. Carpentaria entered by the door and shut it after him. A man—a middle-aged man, in a blue suit of rather shabby appearance—was seated on some planks. He started up, and then seemed to sway.

"What are you doing here?" Carpentaria curtly demanded.

"Look 'ere," said the man, swaying towards Carpentaria, "I'm aw ri'—you're aw ri'—eh? I'm a gemman. Come here to re'—rest. You leave me 'lone—I leave you 'lone. Stop, I give you my car'."

The man was obviously inebriated and Carpentaria was in no mood to spend precious minutes in diplomacy with a victim of Bacchus. He departed, shutting the door, and leaving the victim fumbling with a card case. He meant to send someone to eject the man, but he forgot.

"Say!" cried the drunkard after him, "how ju know I wazz 'ere? Mus' been up in a b'loon—I repea'—b'loon."

In another moment Carpentaria was in the study of his bungalow, panting.

"Quick!" he said to Juliette, an extremely natty little woman of thirty or so.

He sank into the chair before his desk. Juliette placed some music paper in front of him and put a pen in his hand, and he scrawled across the top of the page: "The Balloon Lullaby," and began to scribble notes—quavers, crochets, semibreves and some other strange wonders—all over the page.

"It came to me all of a sudden," he murmured, "while we were up in the balloon."

"Don't talk, dear," said Juliette. "Write."

And he wrote.

When it was finished Carpentaria wiped his brow and drank a whisky and milk which Juliette had prepared for him. He sighed with content and exhaustion. The creative crisis was over.

"Play it," he ejaculated.

And Juliette sat down at the piano near the window overlooking the magnificent gardens, and played softly the two hundred and forty-seventh opus of Carpentaria.

"It is lovely," she said.

"Yes," he admitted. "It's a classy little thing. Came to me just like that!" He snapped his fingers.

"Your best ones always do," Juliette smiled.

"I'll have that performed this very night," he stated.

CHAPTER IV.—Mrs. Ilam.

SOMEWHAT later on the same afternoon, in the drawing room of the house opposite, Josephus Ilam was drinking tea with his mother. The aged Mrs. Ilam, who was very thin and not in the least tall—her son would have made a dozen of her—sat tremendously upright in her chair, while Josephus lolled his great bulk in angry attitudes on a sofa, near which the tea table had been placed. Mrs. Ilam wore widow's weeds, though it was many years since she had lost her husband, a man who had made a vast fortune out of soda water—in the days when soda water was soda water. She had a narrow, hard face, with intensely black eyes, and intensely white hair, and when she directed those eyes upon her son, it became instantly plain that her son was at once her idol and her slave. She lived solely for this man of fifty, who had scarcely ever left her side. For her this mass of fifteen stone four was still a young child, needing watchful care and constant advice. Certainly she spoilt him; but, just as certainly, he went in awe of her. The fact that by judicious investments in hotel and public house property he had more than doubled the fortune which his father left, did not at all improve his standing with the antique dame; it only made him in her view a clever boy with financial leanings. Moreover, every penny of the Ilam fortune was legally hers during her lifetime. Even Ilam's share in the City of Pleasure was hers. When Carpentaria had discovered him, he had had to decide whether or not he should put more than a million pounds into the enterprise, and it was his mother who decided, who listened to everything, and then briefly told him that he would be a fool to leave the thing alone.

"Well," she said, in her high quavering voice, as she passed him a cup of tea—the cup rattled on the saucer in her blue-veined hand—"so you are not getting on with Carpentaria? I was afraid you wouldn't."

"He won't listen to reason about the advertisments," said Ilam crossly, stirring his tea.

"No?"

"And he's absolutely mad about his music. He's spent ten hours in rehearsing these last two days. All the work, I've had to do myself."

"Indeed!"

"And then, to crown his exploits, he takes me up in the balloon, mother—wastes a solid hour."

"In the balloon!"

Ilam recounted the incident of the balloon.

"And, after all, he lets that impudent journalist go free—absolutely free!"

"Jos," said his mother, "it's a wonder you're alive, my dear."

"It's a pity Carpentaria's alive," rejoined Ilam.

His mother's burning eyes met his.

"That's just what I've been thinking," she piped calmly.

Her son's gaze dropped.

"Since when?"

"Since you began grumbling about him, last week but one, my pet."

"He's no use now," Ilam grumbled. "We've carried out all his ideas, and it's simply a matter of business, and Carpentaria doesn't know the meaning of the word 'business.' Just think of his argument about those ads!"

"Never mind that, Jos," Mrs. Ilam put in.

"He's only in the way now," Jos proceeded gloomily.

"I suppose he wouldn't retire," Mrs. Ilam suggested.

"Retire? Of course he wouldn't retire—nothing would induce him to retire. He enjoys it—he enjoys annoying me."

"Anyway," said the mother, "you have the satisfaction of a very great success."

She looked out of the window at the gardens.

"Yes," growled Ilam. "And he gets half the profits. I've found all the money, and he hasn't found a cent. But he gets half the profits. What for? A few ideas—nothing else. He pretends to direct, but he'll direct nothing except his blessed band. And I reckon we shall clear a profit of ten thousand a week! Half of ten is five."

"He only gets half the profits as long as he lives, Jos," said Mrs. Ilam. "After that—nothing."

"Nothing," agreed Jos, biting cruelly into a hot scone. "But as long as he lives he's costing me, say, five thousand a week, besides worry."

"He mayn't live long," Mrs. Ilam ventured.

"No, but he may live fifty years."

"Supposing he died very suddenly, Jos," Mrs. Ilam pursued calmly; "he wouldn't be the first person that was inconvenient to you who had disappeared unexpectedly."

"Mother!" Ilam almost shouted, starting up.

"But would he?" Mrs. Ilam persisted.

"No, he wouldn't," muttered Josephus, and his voice trembled.

Mrs. Ilam blew out the spirit lamp under the kettle as though she was blowing out Carpentaria.

"I'm off," said Josephus nervously.

"Wait a moment, child. Ring the bell for me."

A servant entered.

"Bring me your master's knitted waistcoat," said Mrs. Ilam.

"But, mother, I shan't want it."

"Yes, you will, Jos. There's no month more treacherous than May. You'll put it on to please me."

He obeyed, bent down to kiss his terrible parent, and departed.

"Think it over," she called out after him.

Ilam stopped.

"And then, what about his sister?" he said.

CHAPTER V.—The Band.

THAT night the City of Pleasure was illuminated. Eighty thousand tiny electric lamps hanging in festoons from standard to standard lighted the Central Way alone; the facades of all the places of amusement were outlined in fire; the shops glittered; and the cable cars, as they flashed to and fro, bore the monogram I. C. in electricity on their foreheads. At 8 o'clock the thoroughfare was crowded with visitors, and the stream of arrivals was stronger than ever. In the superb restaurants, at all prices (no matter what the price, they were equally superb in decoration), five thousand diners were finishing five thousand dinners, their eyes undisturbed by the presence of advertisements on the walls. The theater, the music hall, the circus, the menagerie, the concerts, and the rest of the entertainments, were filling up. In the Amusements Park people shot down railways into water, slid down smooth slopes into mattresses, circled in great wheels, floated in the latest novelties of merry-go-rounds, ascended in the balloon, and practiced all the other devices for frittering away eternity, just as though night had not fallen. In the vast court of the Exposition Palace a band was swelling the strains of the newest waltzes to three stories of lounges and sitters at cafe tables, while within the interior of the building men and women wandered about examining the multifarious attractions of the Woman's Exhibition.

But the chief joy was the Oriental Gardens, wherein a multitude of over fifty thousand persons had gathered together. The Oriental Gardens were illuminated, but in a different manner from the Central Way. Chinese lanterns were suspended everywhere in the budding trees, giving the illusion of magic precocious flowers that had blossomed there in a single hour, in all the tints of the rainbow and many others entirely foreign to the rainbow.

The band stand alone was picked out in electricity. It blazed in the center of the gardens like a giant's crown, and, although yet empty, it formed the main object of attention. Overhead stretched a dark-blue sky, silvered with stars, and the wind had a warm and caressing quality which encouraged sightseers to expose themselves to it to such an extent that the fifteen cafes of the Oriental Gardens, some sheltered, some quite open, but each a center of light and laughter, were everyone crowded with guests. The four thousand chairs surrounding the band stand were occupied, and also the six thousand other chairs dispersed in various parts of the gardens. The murmur of conversation, the rustle of dresses, the tinkle of glasses, the rumor of uncountable footsteps, rose on the air. The faces of pretty women could be observed obscurely in the delicious gloom, and the glowing scarlet of cigars bobbed mysteriously about like a species of restless glow worms.

And everybody was conscious of the sensation of the extraordinary and amazing success of the great show. The evening papers had carried the news of the wonderful thing to each suburb of London. These papers gave from hour to hour the number of the persons who had passed the turnstiles, and calculated the number of tons of shillings that Ilam and Carpentaria would have to bank on Monday morning. But the principal thing that struck the evening papers was the complete readiness of the City of Pleasure. No detail of it was unfinished, and all agreed that this phenomenon stood unique in the history of the art of amusing immense crowds.

All felt that a new era of amusement enterprise had been ushered in by Ilam and Carpentaria, that everything was changed, and that in the future an enlightened and excessively exacting public would not be satisfied with what had pleased it in the past. And the owners of the old-fashioned resorts trembled in their shoes, and hated Ilam and Carpentaria, while the myriad patrons of Ilam and Carpentaria on that first day flattered themselves that they had personally assisted at the birth of the grand innovation, and thought how they would say to their grandchildren: "Yes, I was present at the opening of the City of Pleasure, and a marvelous affair it was," and so on, in the manner of grandparents.

All were expecting Carpentaria, the lion of the show. His band was due to perform from 8 o'clock to 10, and special bills, posted on the sides of the gilded band stand and in the cafes, announced: "Carpentaria's band will play the Balloon Lullaby, the latest composition of Carpentaria, composed this afternoon."

At 10 minutes before 8 the members of the band, sixty in number, and clad in imperial purple uniform, marched in Indian file across the garden to the stand. At a distance of ten paces from the end of the procession came Carpentaria, preceded by a small page bearing his baton on a cushion of purple velvet. Carpentaria always did things with overwhelming style and solemnity. Superior persons laughed at the style and solemnity, but the vast majority did not laugh; they cheered; they appreciated. Whether they were right or wrong, the indubitable fact is that these things came naturally to Carpentaria; they were the expression of his exceedingly theatrical soul, the devices of a man who believes in himself.

At 8 o'clock precisely Carpentaria faced the fifty thousand from his band stand, and, after having bowed elaborately thrice, turned to the band, and lifted the sacred stick.

It was a dramatic moment, the real inauguration of the City of Pleasure.

Cheers and hurrahs rolled in terrific volumes of sound across the gardens, and they did not cease; and people not acquainted with the fame and renown of Carpentaria perceived what it was to be a favorite of capitals, a leading star in the galaxy of stars that the public salutes and recognizes.

Carpentaria preserved the immobility of carven stone until the plaudits had ceased; they lased for exactly five and a half minutes. Consequently the concert was exactly five and a half minutes late in commencing. Carpentaria himself was never late, but his public had a habit of delaying him.

Suddenly he brought down his baton with a surprising shock. The carven stone had started into life, and "God Save the King" was under way.

Now to see Carpentaria conduct was one of the sights of the world. He conducted not merely with his hand and eye, but with the whole of his immortal frame and his uniform. It was said that he was capable of conducting the Eroica Symphony of Beethoven with his left foot—and who shall deny it? "God Save the King" was child's play to him. Moreover, he showed a certain reserve in handling it. He merely conducted it as though in conducting it he himself were literally saving the King. That was all. But with what snap, what dash, what chic, what splash and what magnificent presence of mind did he save the King! The applause was wild and ample.

The next item was "The City of Pleasure March," composed by Carpentaria. Indeed, Carpentaria conducted nothing but national hymns, his own compositions, and, as a superlative concession, Wagner and Beethoven. "The City of Pleasure" was in Carpentaria's finest style, and it was planned to give him the fullest scope in conducting it. He had already made it famous in a triumphal tour through the United States in the previous year. It began with the utmost possible volume of sound. It had a contagious and infectious lilt to it, and both the lilt and the volume of sound were continued without the slightest respite during the whole composition.

In the course of this masterpiece Carpentaria performed physical feats that would have astounded Cinquevalli and the Schaffer Troupe. In the frenzy of self-expression he all but stood on his head. The band stand was too small for him; he needed a planet on which to circulate. By turns his baton was a scepter, a pump handle, a maypole, a crutch, a drum stick, a flag, a toothpick, a mop, a pendulum, a whip, a bottle of soothing syrup and a scorpion. By turns he whipped, tortured, encouraged, liberated, imprisoned, mopped up, measured, governed, diverted, pushed over, pulled back and turned inside out his band, and whenever their enthusiasm seemed likely to lead them into indiscretions, he soothed them with the soothing syrup. By turns the conducting of the piece was a march, a campaign, a house on fire, the race for the Derby, the forging of a hundred-ton gun, a display of fireworks, a mayoral banquet and a mother scolding a numerous family.

It was colossal.

At the close, as sudden as the shutting of a door, there was a vast strange silence, and then the applause, as colossal as the piece, broke out like a conflagration.

Carpentaria bowed; the entire band bowed; Carpentaria bowed again. Lastly he indicated a flute player with his baton, and the flute player came forward and shared the glory of Carpentaria. Why a flute player, no one could have guessed. Forty flutes could not have

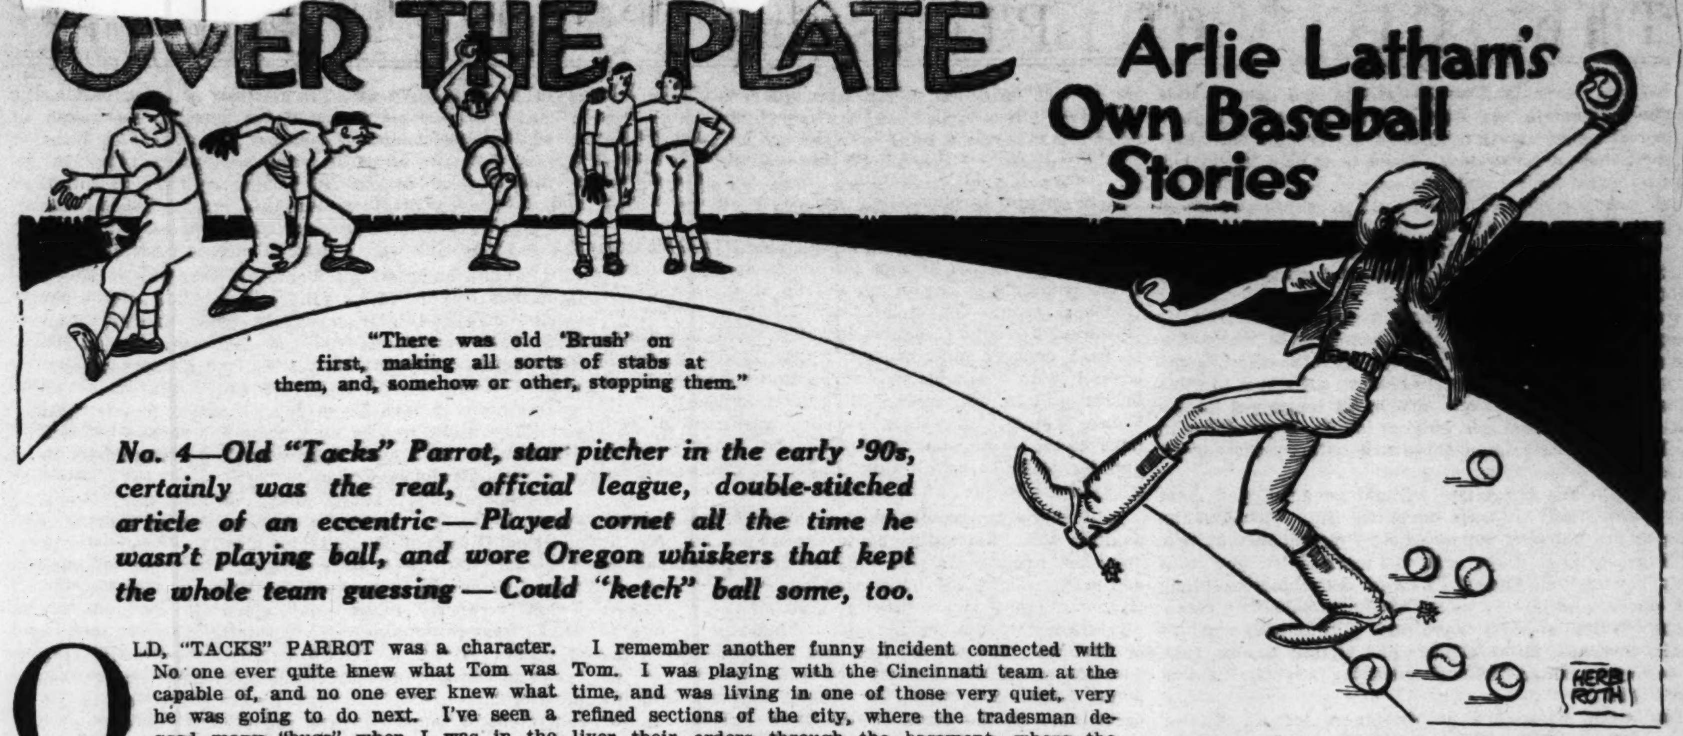
OVER THE PLATE

Arlie Latham's Own Baseball Stories



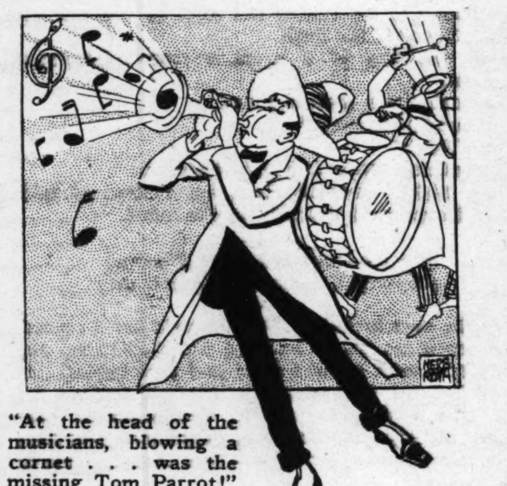
"There was old 'Brush' on first, making all sorts of stabs at them, and, somehow or other, stopping them."

No. 4—Old "Tacks" Parrot, star pitcher in the early '90s, certainly was the real, official league, double-stitched article of an eccentric—Played cornet all the time he wasn't playing ball, and wore Oregon whiskers that kept the whole team guessing—Could "ketch" ball some, too.

OLD, "TACKS" PARROT was a character. No one ever quite knew what Tom was capable of, and no one ever knew what he was going to do next. I've seen a good many "bugs" when I was in the game militant—from fellows who would go fishing in a mud puddle with a safety pin, a piece of thread and a limb of a tree, to eccentric gentlemen who would steal anything from second base to your best girl. But for the real official league, double stiched article, I never knew anyone that had it on Tom Parrot.

Tom was a pitcher in the early 90's, and when he wasn't playing ball, he was playing first cornet, or something in a bush orchestra back in his home town. Before a game Tom used to pitch up in practice for more than half an hour, and when he thought he was pretty well warmed up, he'd go out into center field and shag flies until his tongue got sunburned. Then he'd come in and pitch his head off in a game. When the game was over Tom would run for a hogshead of ice water and thrust his pitching arm into it. He said that sort of treatment kept the salary wing in condition.

Well, along the early 90's, before I developed gumhoofs and Umpire's crouch, I was playing with the Cincinnati team. We trained in those days at Dallas, Texas. On the day I speak of, there were a lot of rookies upsetting the pepper box around the infield, and whooping things up generally. The grounds were open, and pretty soon in strolled a big lanky six-footer, with a full set of bushes and a build like a bunch of coach whips.



"At the head of the musicians, blowing a cornet . . . was the missing Tom Parrot!"

He strolled over to one of the ball players, and asked him "if he could borry his glove and ketch a few." The player asked him if he could play any ball.

"Why, I'm a right smart ball player, I am," said the big fellow.

The player locked hard at the other's whiskers for a second, and then said: "I'll bet I know who you are. You're Pete Bush of the Alfalfa League."

"No, "I hain't," replied the other, "I'm a local boy."

Well, the player gave him his glove, which was a left hand one, and the busher put it on his right hand. Then he moved over to first base, and yelled for some "hot ones." He got them. And he got a hot reception, too. The minute the players spotted those whiskers, they started to ride him:

"Take off those rabbit nests!"

"Who's the guy with the steel-wool on his map?"

"Don't throw the ball into that alfalfa—he'll lose it!"

The big fellow never batted an eye at all this; he simply stood there waiting, with his arms stretched straight out before him, the heels of his palms closed, and his fingers stuck out at all angles like the blades of a jackknife.

And then they let him have it. Everyone that got the ball kicked it up and let drive at the busher with enough force to throw the ball clean through him. And there was old "Brush" on first, making all sorts of stabs at them, and, somehow or other, stopping them. And the more success he had in stopping the balls, the harder the players threw; and in about ten minutes there wasn't a man on the field that didn't have a sore arm.

After a time the big first baseman changed his glove to his left hand and started to "ketch" them in earnest. He speared them from all angles. He picked them out of the air and snatched them from his shoe laces. And he shot them back at the other players so fast that when they hit you could hear the smack all over the field. They they tumbled. The fellow with the sedge grass on his chin was "Tacks" Parrot!

You see, "Tacks" lived up in Oregon, where it was so cold in the winter that you could sharpen a piece of ice and use it for a razor all winter, and so Tom used to grow these whiskers to protect his throat. So, knowing he'd have a little fun, he left them on when he came to Dallas.

I remember another funny incident connected with Tom. I was playing with the Cincinnati team at the time, and was living in one of those very quiet, very refined sections of the city, where the tradesman deliver their orders through the basement, where the people all bat .300 in the Finance League, and where you never hear a stray cat singing to his love, or an organ grinder playing "Sweet Rosie O'Grady." Before the season actually started, I awoke one morning about 5 o'clock, and lay abed half awake, thinking idly of one thing and another.

Suddenly, somewhere in the neighborhood, the notes of a cornet rang out. This was at 5 o'clock in the morning. The fellow that played the cornet ran all the way down the scale, and then he ran all the way back again. Then he came down again, and stopped in the middle as though he had made only a two-base hit. He hung around second for a while, blowing on the same note; then he made a break for third, got there, and, without slackening speed, made for home. The last note was a sharp, snappy one, so I guess he slid and was called safe.

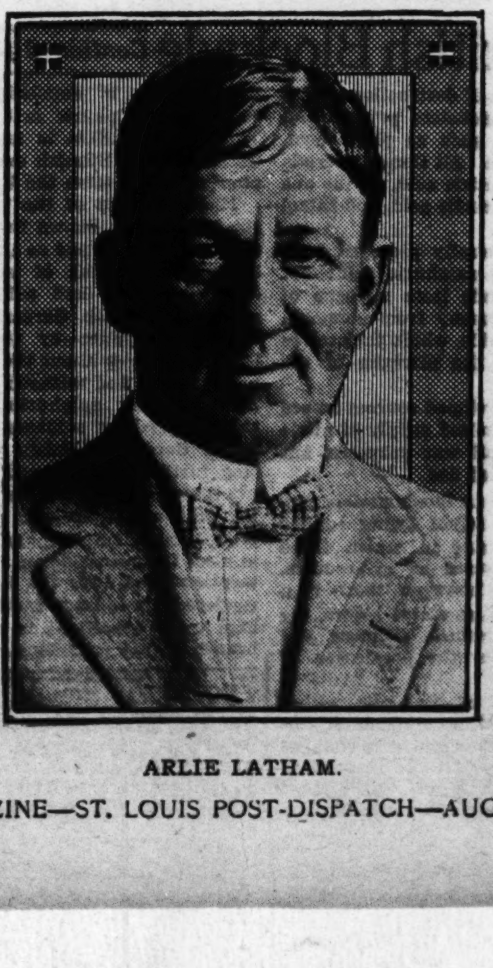
Well, that fellow blew everything out of a cornet that was in it except the hole.

This sort of thing continued every morning until the season opened. All this time we were wondering where Tom Parrot was. Up to the time the season opened no one had seen him. On the day the season opened, we were all dressed and ready to go to the grounds, but still no Tom Parrot. I might have suspected that the cornetist that bothered me in the morning was Tom; but somehow I didn't. As I say, on the day the season opened we were all ready and waiting for Tom. Not a sign of him. Finally along came the conveyance that was to take up to the grounds. We all climbed aboard and expected to see Tom come running up at any minute. But he didn't.

At last we were about to start, and had given "Tacks" up for lost, when a brass band on its way to the grounds swung around a corner and headed for us full blare. But it wasn't the band that caused us to nearly fall off the tally-ho; it was something else. There, at the head of the musicians, dressed in a long linen duster and sombrero, and blowing a cornet so hard that his face came to a point at his mouth, was the missing Tom Parrot! And then I knew who the morning soloist was.

When we took trips on trains Tom never bothered to waste his time talking or playing cards; he'd just take the mouthpiece of his cornet out of his grip, and practice making his lips flexible until we came to our destination. On boat trips Tom was as good as a play. First he'd take a seat near the orchestra and watch the cornetist. Little by little he'd edge up to him until he looked as though he belonged to the orchestra. Then Tom would pull one hand from behind his back, and there would be the cornet. And the next thing we knew Tom would be playing away for dear life and paying attention to nothing else.

I can very well remember the trips we used to take to Washington when old "Tacks" was along with us. After we had dressed in our hotel we proceeded to the ball grounds in a tally-ho. (That word "proceeded" always reminds me of a vacationist's diary—"we proceeded from the lake to the next village and thence took the 8:63 airship back to the boarding house"—you know.)

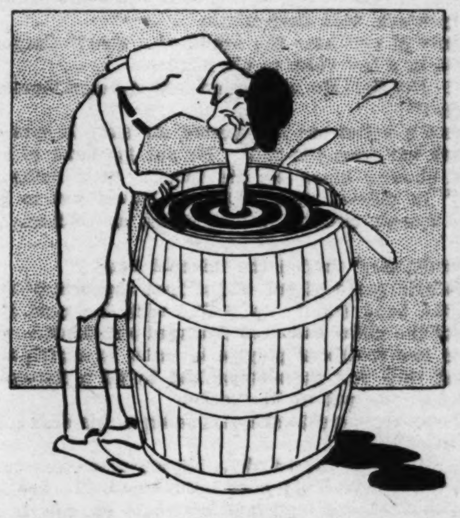


ARLIE LATHAM.

After we had climbed to the top of the conveyance, Tom would bring his cornet from under his duster and begin to wet his lips. Next he'd straighten up, throw out his chest and then stretch his arms out in front of him. By this time Tom was all warmed up and ready to go on the mound.

Ladies and gentlemen! Tom Parrot is now about to pitch (his cornet), and if necessary, to play any position, or tune, in the musical field.

After Tom had made a few preliminary passes through the air with the cornet he'd put it to his lips and let her go. People in the street would look in amazement after the tally-ho, and those in front of us would line up along the curb, thinking that a circus or a band was coming down the street.



"Tom would thrust his pitching arm out into a hogshead of ice water."

Tom would keep this up all the way to the grounds; he never paid any attention to the people on the street, but kept his eyes rolled up at the sky, as though there wasn't anything on earth, except the cornet, worth looking at. Tom wasn't a slouch with the stick, but he used to make bigger and more hits on the way to the grounds than he ever did in them.

When we'd get to the grounds someone would have to jog his arm to make him quit playing. If this were not done he would continue to play until there wasn't a note left in the cornet.

I don't know what Tom is doing now; but I think it very probable he is owner, manager and captain combined of some bush league orchestra up in Portland, Ore., and throwing them over with a good, free (musical) delivery, holding his opponents hitless, and getting a few blows (out of his cornet) himself.

Seal Is Nature's Submarine

WE have come to regard the soaring albatross or the condor as the prototype of the aeroplane. When we look for a natural model for the submarine we find it well made in the body of the fur seal and fully suggested by its method of progression in the sea, for it travels there only when wholly submerged.

Unlike, however, the "Unterseebote," the fur seal is not fitted for swimming on the surface; it only rises there to survey, to breathe and to sleep; it never attempts to swim with head above water on any course, no matter how short. It rises when undisturbed or not alarmed, looks about with head and neck well stretched up above the surface of the sea, fills its lungs with air (literally compressed), turns its head down, and, with its powerful anterior flippers, drives it below the surface to the depth of five or ten feet.

When our submarines were first brought out, a trip of more than 300 miles from base was the utmost limit of their cruising. Today, they have been so perfected by the Germans that we know that they can cruise safely more than 3000 miles from that base. Therefore, in this connection it is interesting to know that the fur seal makes a submarine journey in the North Pacific Ocean of more than 5000 miles from its base on the Pribilov Islands in Bering Sea, and then returns.

There is to be observed a close resemblance between the cigar-shaped submarine boat and the body form of the fur seal. As we view them laterally, this resemblance is complete; they are both driven ahead by feathering screws, and they are both kept on the level of their submerged course at a given distance below the surface by rudders.

Then we observe that the periscope, to which the submarine craft owes all of its efficiency, is duplicated exactly by the seal's nose and eyes.

Putting Venice Into Safe-Deposit

By N. CARRERE.

IT is no longer Venice, they told me, yet it is Venice for all that. No matter how they hide their art treasures, disguise their palaces, and even their campaniles, there remains that unforgettable and indestructible characteristic of the Queen of the Waters, the network of canals, big and little, mirroring the ranks of ancient houses and glinting back the sunshine. It is another Venice, but Venice still.

And yet how changed those very canals! You no longer see the flotillas of silent gondolas in which foreigners by the thousand use to traverse the lagoon. You no longer see vaporetti laden with the tourists who raved over the magic city in all languages known and unknown. You see only a couple of gondolas in an hour's watching and those are without passengers, like as not.

But while the canals are without gondolas, you must not imagine that they are devoid of life. Although the palaces are deserted and the hotels closed, all but two, with great white flags with red crosses to show that they have become hospitals, what a commotion along the canals, and how it would have astounded the voluptuous Venice of days gone by! Innumerable motor boats, carrying Italian officers and Italian jackies, rush at top speed, their "rollers" splashing mightily against the banks.

For while there are no foreigners left in Venice, there are countless officers, troopers, and especially sailors. Everywhere along the campi, the quays and the calli, you see them in their gray-green uniforms for soldiers, white uniforms for seamen. The apparition of a man in "cit clothes" and straw hat is almost a sensation. And yet there are women enough—black-clad women wearing a traditional black Venetian shawl, quite as if it were winter, and this monotonous pepper-and-salt effect of black dresses and white uniforms gives the city a strange aspect, for its most striking trait in normal times is the melange of all costumes, all races, all colors. It almost seems as if even the houses sought to shed their gay tints and neutralize or efface themselves.

For it is true that Venice has deliberately set out to dim everything bright and glittering, so as to defeat the searching scrutiny of airmen up aloft. Venice the Red has become Venice the Gray. Neither Musset nor D'Annunzio would recognize her now. She has ceased to be a crimson-and-ochre city. The Doges' palace is covered with a lugubrious coating that tones down the bright pink of its walls. St. Mark's is bereft of its bronze horses, its golden mosaics are marked with dark cloth, its cupolas and belfries are painted brown, and its contours have vanished behind sandbags piled everywhere to protect it against bombs.

And there are sandbags piled against the Logetta, against the Campanile, against the porches of the churches, against the pillars of arcades, against palaces and statues. The ferocious Bartolomeo Colleoni has entirely disappeared beneath a kind of huge wooden pigeon-house. Another big shanty incloses the statue of Fortune. The winged lion and the crocodile in the Piazetta are buried beneath sandbags, and so are the lovely Porta della Carta, the Giants' stairway, and the decorations in the court of the Ducal Palace. As for the statues, bas-reliefs, and immortal paintings which are the pride of Venice and adorn her palaces, churches and museums and the Basilica of St. Mark and the Doges' Palace, they have fled, all of them, to places where they find shelter against barbarian onslaughts.

Meanwhile, the life the Venetians lead today shows how indifferent they are to the dangers that threaten them individually. They live in the streets, just as usual. With its palaces closed, its churches barricaded, its statues masked, the stone city seems dead, but the human city throbs with vitality, though remaining splendidly level-headed. Although the first to suffer, should trouble come, it is more than resigned, it is ready and willing to make the last sacrifices for Italy. It awaits its destiny with a kind of intense curiosity.

At night, however, all Venice grows wary. Every light is extinguished by nine o'clock. The city turns black—densely, thickly, opaquely black—blacker than ink. Your gondola, if you can find one, threads the little canals without your getting one glimpse of anything definite enough to reveal where you are. The palaces seem to lean forward, as if about to fall upon you. The night weighs upon your shoulders like lead. The gondola might almost be a floating coffin adrift on some fetid rivulet of Erebus.

The doors and windows of restaurants are likewise veiled in black. Inside, a few oil lamps provide a wretched illumination for tables mostly unoccupied. In the hotels, the spectacle is still more curious, but also more tormenting because of the heat. At the Danieli, which is exposed to the sun's glare all day, even the velvet window-hangings are carefully pinned together at night. A pair of smoky candles conspire with the fumes of the mosquito-discouragers to make one's room insufferable. In the hallways, on the stairs, and in the central patio there are rare and all but futile candles lighted, for the municipal powerhouse shuts down at 9 o'clock and electricity is no longer to be had. Consequently, good-bye to electric bells, elevators and telephones!

The nightmare lasts till daybreak, when her ladyship, the "rosy-fingered Daughter of the Dawn," comes to reawaken Venice.

The City of Pleasure

been heard in that terrific concourse of brass and drums. But Carpentaria was Carpentaria.

"Did any of you hear the sound of a shot?" Carpentaria said in a low voice to his band.

"Shot? No, sir. No, sir," came from a dozen mouths. "Why, sir?"

"Because a bullet has just grazed my ear. It was in the fourth bar from the end." He put his hand to his ear and showed blood on his finger. "It's nothing, nothing," he quieted them. "I shall expect you to behave as though nothing had occurred, as soldiers, in fact."

"Certainly, sir," replied the intrepid band.

Carpentaria gazed at one of the iron supports of the roof of the band stand. In a line with his head the surface of the pillar had been damaged and dented. He disturbed two trombone players in order to search the floor, and in a few seconds he had found a flattened bullet, which he put in his pocket.

"Number two," he said sharply, going to his desk and tapping it.

Number two was the lullaby. No more striking contrast to the march could have been found. It was so delicate, so softly stealing, that you could scarcely hear it; and yet you could hear it—you could hear it everywhere. Carpentaria drew sweetness out of his band with the gestures of a conjurer drawing an interminable roll of colored paper from his mouth, previously shown to be empty. It was the daintiest thing, swaying in the air like gossamer. It brought tears to the orbs of mothers, and made strong men close their eyes. Such was the versatility of Carpentaria.

The applause amounted to a furore.

"I give you my word of honor, ladies and gentlemen," said Carpentaria, coming to the rail of the stand and stilling the cheers with a gesture, "at half-past 3 this afternoon not a note of the little piece was composed."

His demeanor gave no sign of agitation. But at the close of the concert, no more bullets having arrived, he wiped his brow with relief. Most of the band did the same.

He walked about on the river terrace for over an hour, calming his spirit, which had been through so many excitements, artisic and otherwise, during the afternoon and evening. And he meditated, now on the bullet, and now on Ilam. He could scarcely realize how nearly he had escaped quarreling with Ilam in the balloon; their relations hithero had been invariably amicable, at any rate on the surface; and he had done so much for Ilam; he had put a second fortune in Ilam's pocket. The dazzling success of the day of inauguration was the success of Carpentaria's ideas. And yet Ilam hated him. He felt that Ilam hated him. He almost shuddered as he remembered the moment when he had sat on the dizzy edge of the balloon car, and Ilam had threatened him, and then laughed.

The Oriental Gardens were empty and dark. The gay crowd had departed; the lights were extinguished Only the light in Ilam's drawing room shone across the expanse as it had shone through all the evening. Carpentaria's own bungalow was dark. He wondered what Juliette was doing.

At length he set off home through the gardens. And just as he was entering his front door he recollected that he had given no instructions about the drunken man in the enclosure. He turned back down the steps, and went into the enclosure and struck a match. The man was lying on the ground, no doubt asleep.

"Well, this is a caution!" he muttered.

A notion occurred to him, one of his fanciful pranks. He picked up the unconscious man, who held himself stiff and did not even groan, and carried him, not with too much difficulty—for Carpentaria was extremely powerful—to the side door of Ilam's residence; he placed the form against the door. Every night for weeks past Ilam had come out by that door about midnight to take a final stroll of inspection. He felt that he owed Ilam a grudge. Then he retired into the shadow and waited.

Presently the door opened, and Ilam fell over the man, as Carpentaria hoped he would, and picked himself up with oaths and struck a match and gazed at he form.

"Oh!" she cried softly, starting back.

"Why do you start like that?" he demanded.

"You—you—frightened me," she said.

He escorted her into their house. When he came out again Ilam was descending the steps by the side door. Nothing lay near the door.

"No," said Ilam, after a pause.

"Not near your door?"

"No. Why?"

"Oh, nothing. Only I thought I saw one."

"Good night," growled Ilam, but instead of taking the air he returned abruptly to the house.

(To Be Continued Next Sunday.)
(Copyright, George H. Boran Co.)

In the next installment Carpentaria has an amazing adventure which ends in his digging up the body of a man whom he has just seen buried. At breakfast the next morning the bandmaster's pet cat falls dead under sinister circumstances. Between the adjoining houses of Carpentaria and Ilam a double drama of crime and love mounts towards its climax.

Joy-Hydroplaning at 70 Miles an Hour!

note. Above it I caught the overtone of the wind whistling past my ears as the Tiddledywink lunged forward into her full speed.

It was a lunge. I felt her rise beneath me, tremble a moment dizzily, and then steady on the new level, upheld only by her afterstep and the uplift of wind and spray beneath her wings. Her bow ceased twitching, her wake flattened out, and there was just a level floor of water rushing back for us to meet at a speed incredible—a speed of 70 miles an hour.

I think it must have made us all a little drunk. I know I grinned inanely, opened my mouth wide and let miles of wind shoot down my throat, hummed silly little songs. I know the engineer, creeping forward on the perilous curve of the turtle-back all slippery with oil, yelled like a cowboy as he nursed his engine. And Luders—straight speed suddenly ceased to be enough for him. He began to swing the thing beneath us—the flying thing one finger touch controlled—in circles, S's, figure 8's.

So we had our speed-spree on the Tiddledywink. At last it was over. We were running demurely up the harbor, back to the boat-yard landing. Luders had come forward for his mooring, and was standing on the cockpit rim beside me. Happening to glance down, I saw between my feet a cork jacket that had not been used. Luders saw it, too. He looked both sheepish and apologetic. "I meant to have you put it on," he said. "I guess I just forgot it in the rush."

"I guess I just forgot it, too," said I.

pure alumina which serves as an excellent raw material for the manufacture of aluminum.

Aluminum has been employed on most of the more important power-transmission lines of recent years, the two largest power plants in the world being equipped with aluminum conductors exclusively, one alone absorbing nearly 3000 tons of the metal. Aluminum is also used largely for short-distance power distribution in central stations, railways, etc.; the whole of the feeder connections in the new Westminster (London) power plant, for instance, consist of aluminum, while the entire insulated feeder system of the Paris tramways is made of the same metal, the latter absorbing several hundred tons.

It is of interest to record that Capt. Scott of Antarctic fame employed aluminum wire for the portable telephone installation which he took with him to the South Pole.

Actual implements of war in the manufacture of which the chemist exhibits his remarkable ingenuity are the various kinds of gunpowder, explosives and primers used in cartridges, grenades, shrapnels, bombs, torpedoes and the like. Each of these instruments of destruction grades and mixtures of smokeless powder and of high explosives, such as picric acid, trotyl (T. N. T.), etc. All these materials are produced from nitric acid, on the one hand, and cotton, carbolic acid, and tuluol on the other.

Nitric acid is generally prepared from Chile saltpeter and sulphuric acid; but in Norway it is made from nitrogen of the air, and in Germany from ammonia and calcium cyanamide, which themselves are obtained from the nitrogen of the air.

These recently developed sources assure to Germany an unlimited supply of nitric acid not only for all war purposes, but for general industrial use.

Germany has also an inexhaustible supply of benzol and toluol owing to her vast coking industries in which these materials are recovered as by-products. As regards cotton, however, there is a great deficiency and, as stated before, the various kinds of refined cellulose and paper now serve for the production of smokeless powder.

In the synthesis of ammonia, either pure ammonia itself or ammonium carbonate is obtained, which must be changed into sulphate of ammonium, for which conversion sulphuric acid is necessary. This latter product is manufactured in Germany from Spanish ores or from sulphur imported from the United States.

The exigencies of the war caused the the testing of a known theoretical action on a factory scale and as a result domestic minerals consisting of sulphate of calcium (gypsum) and sulphate of magnesium, of which Germany owns inexhaustible supplies—by simple chemical transposition—without the use of foreign merchandise and without the trouble of manufacturing sulphuric acid, furnish this material for sulphate of ammonium.

The German chemists went even one step further and succeeded in substituting these domestic minerals for the Spanish ores and American sulphur in the production of sulphuric acid itself, which is most indispensable in all chemical enterprises, and thus the German chemist rendered his country independent of foreign trade conditions in this most vital branch of his profession.

This prayer for soldiers of all nations was written by His Holiness, Pope Benedict XV. It was translated into Italian verse by Mgr. Luigi Angelillo and set to music by Don Enrico Crispo, with the approbation of the Holy Father. This English translation is by Arthur Benington, and Don Crispo's music was edited to fit it by Pietro Alessandro Yon, organist of St. Francis Xavier's Church, New York.

The prayer was first sung by a chorus of girls in the church of S. Giorgio dei Genovisi in Naples.

MAKING A SUPERBEAUTY OUT OF FOUR REAL BEAUTIES

FOUR women famous in Europe and America for their beauty were assembled in the studio of Coles Phillips, the artist. They were there, the crowning belles of two continents, gathered into a single room at once, in order to take their part in as alluring an experiment as ever tempted painter's brush. For the artist's idea was the no less soaring one than achieving the loveliest feminine picture in the world, by means of combining into one composite portrait the finest charms of each of his fair sitters.

"The Supergirl" was the title which he planned to give to his work. And who were the members of the lovely quartet who were chosen to contribute to a picture aiming to seize the laurels of Helen, Cleopatra and Monna Lisa? They were:

Miss Justine Johnstone, winner of the first prize in a recent widely advertised contest for the most beautiful woman in the United States.

Miss Anna Orr, leading woman with Raymond Hitchcock in "The Beauty Show;" dancer and actress. George Cohan selected her for Phillips' undertaking, naming her as the loveliest woman he had ever engaged.

Miss Martha Hedman, now playing the leading role in "The Boomerang," in New York. Her blonde loveliness has been as highly acclaimed in London as in New York, and the late Charles Frohman praised her as the most beautiful woman he had ever engaged.

Mme. Ganna Walska, prima donna, hailed as peerless for her beauty in Warsaw and Petrograd. She is a Leszekynska by birth, and is descended from a royal Polish house.

"It will be a more difficult undertaking than I imagined. Each of the four possesses extreme loveliness in her type, but they have scarcely a feature in common. My study will perhaps register less of Miss Hedman and Miss Orr and more of Miss Johnstone and Mme. Walska. Yet there will be suggestions of all the faces.

"The most marked impression was given to me by Mme. Walska. I noted her nose and chin, both high-bred; her broad, straight, black eyebrows, her splendid eyes, her delicate, sensitive nostrils, and the way her hair clusters back from her forehead.

"These features will all be in my picture, but it will also include the exquisite youth, the freshness and fine coloring of Miss Johnstone. Her mouth is a perfect Cupid's bow, and her rounder chin will temper Mme. Walska's haughtier outline.

"Something of Miss Hedman's simplicity and thoughtful mien will appear in the picture. But her charm is more difficult to limn than that of any of the others. Admitting her admirable features, her appeal seems to vary with her mood. Hers is an introspective, sensitive face. Its lines are admirable. The broad space between her eyes is always an element of beauty. Hair such as hers, so blond and so fine-spun, lying as it does upon her shapely head, is a proud endowment.

"Miss Orr will contribute to the picture some of her splendid buoyancy. Hers is the beauty of health, of clear, abounding blood, of sympathy, frankness and jollity. What a figure, so admirably proportioned, so virile! She dances, she sings, she swims. If I had more scope in the picture, how I should like to express her fine shoulders, her graceful, beautifully molded and yet vigorous arms!"

And now for the result of the experiment based upon material so eloquently described by the artist. "The Supergirl" has been completed, and will appear in next Sunday's Post-Dispatch Magazine. What a treat of loveliness is in store for the reader may be judged by studying the four portraits upon this page, and then reflecting that the composite picture was intended to be as beautiful as the four put together.

Two Remarkable Photographs of

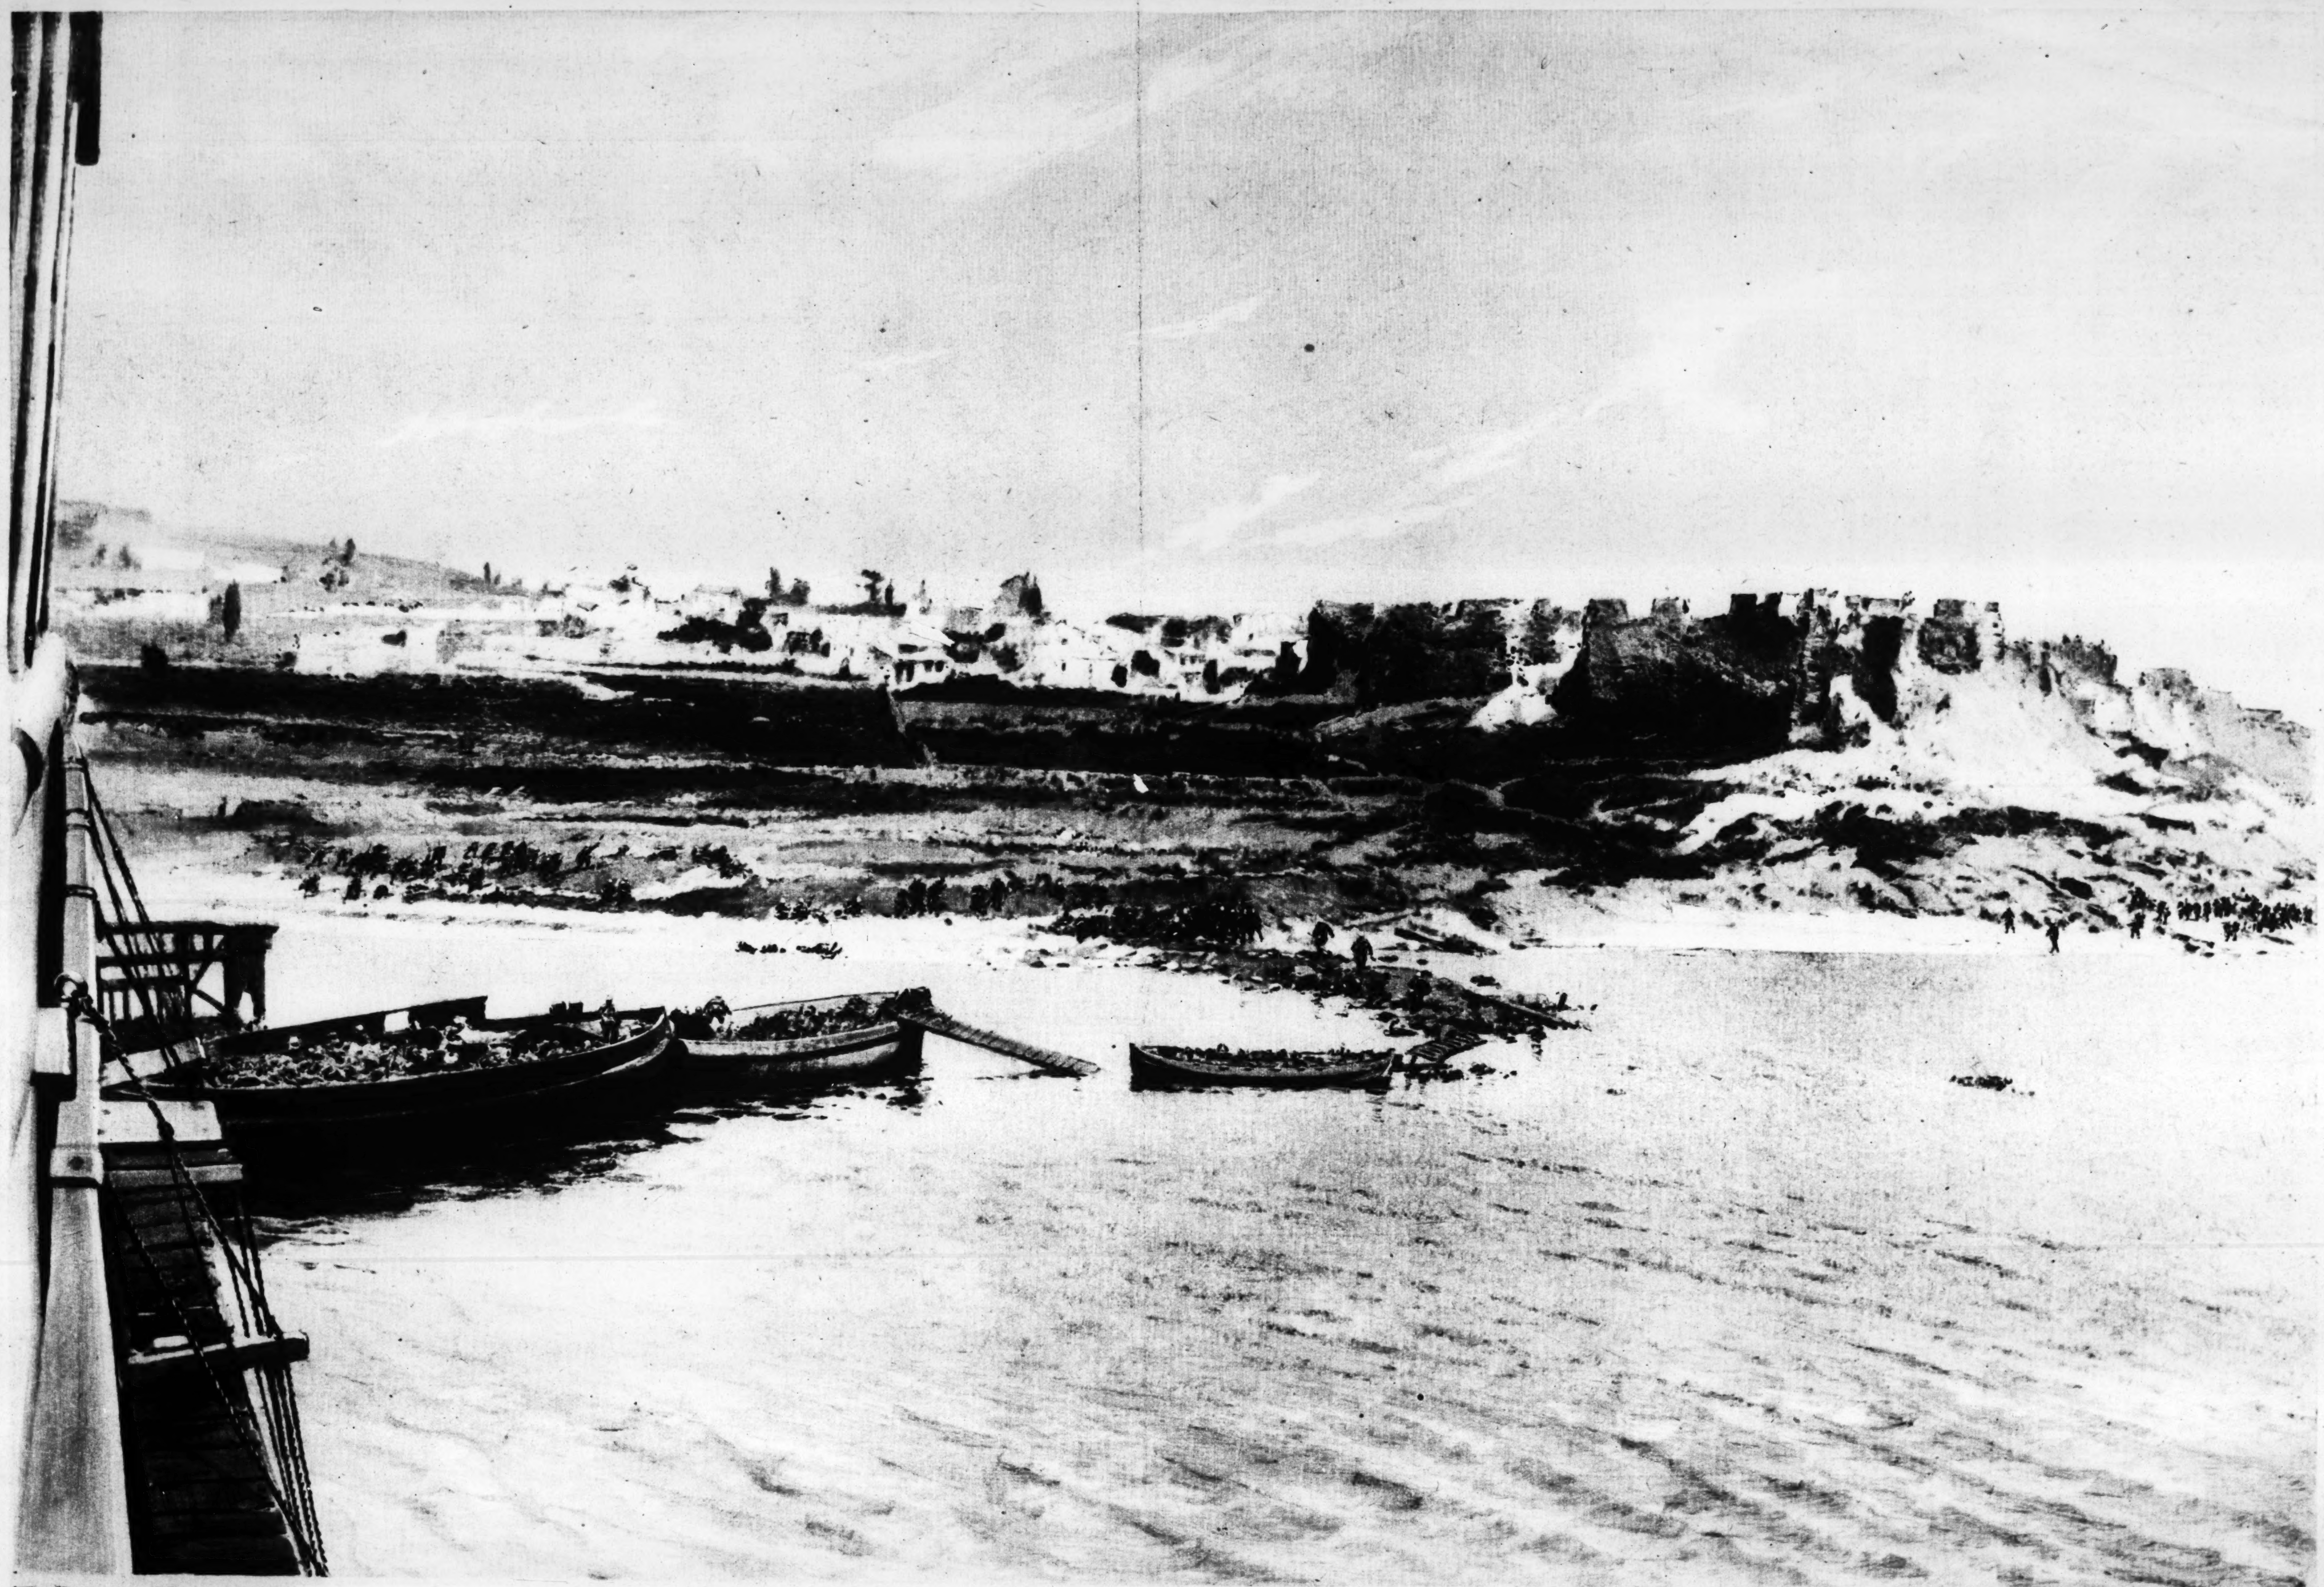
SNAPSHOT OF LANDING AND CHARGE OF BRITISH TROOPS AT THE DARDANELLES.



The photographer describes the scene as follows: "The Dublin Fusiliers and the Munster and Hampshire regiments were on the transport River Clyde. At daylight April 25 the Clyde was beached and the lighters brought alongside as a bridge. Across the lighters the men had to run under a terrific storm of fire from Turkish trenches less than 100 yards away. Only about half of them reached the beach where they found cover. The boats you see are all full of dead men and beside the jetty of rock dead men lie in the water.

The photograph was taken next morning when the great charge of the survivors began. They charged through the Turks and captured the dismantled Fort Sedd-ul-Bahr seen on the skyline."
